KOREAN TRUCE IS BELIEVED NEAR

Taft Says UN Should Decide Final Peace

Believes Conference Necessary; Declares Terms Unsatisfactory

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said tonight that if a military truce is agreed upon he assumed the final decisions aimed at bringing peace to Korea will be reached in the United Nations.

The Senate's majority leader, who recently urged that the U. S. "forget the United Nations as far as the Korean War is concerned" if armistice efforts failed, said he hopes an agreement is reached to end the fighting.

The U. N. and Communist high commands were reported on the verge of an agreement to stop the shooting.

Would End Differences

"That would end the differences," Taft said, in obvious reference to President Eisenhower's rejection of the Ohio senator's previous proposals that the U. S. operate outside the U. N. if the conflict continued.

Taft said in an interview that he still believes an armistice under the final terms offered by the Allies would be "unsatisfactory." But he made it plain he has no intention of balking at U. N. participation in subsequent political conferences.

"I suppose we will have to have a large-scale international peace conference, the kind that haven't been very successful in the past," he said. "That is what we are in for and we will have to make the best of it.

"I had hoped that we could settle all of the political questions in the truce agreement but now they will have to go to a conference."

Previously, he had advocated a "one-bite" approach to Far Eastern problems, including Korea and other trouble spots.

Sticks To Contention

Taft stuck to his contention that the U. S. should by-pass the U. N. if truce efforts fail, but he denied that he had ever said in so many words that the U. S. should "go it alone" or had advocated single-nation action in the Pacific.

Eisenhower used the words "go it alone" in describing Taft's Cincinnati speech at last week's White House news conference when the President said "no" he would not favor such a policy.

Taft said that what he was driving at in the speech which caused all the furore was that the U. S. should gather its chief allies together with it in a military alliance for the Pacific similar to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe.

He said if the Korean War continues he doesn't believe that nations which are taking no real part in it should be allowed to "hamper" future decisions.

"It is silly to have nations like India, which are members of the United Nations but still claim they

Claim Russia Has Deadliest Poisonous Gas

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — Col. Ulius L. Amoss, retired Air Force officer who heads a privately financed international intelligence agency, said today that Russia has developed a poison gas strong enough to kill a man if one drop contacts his body.

Col. Amoss, last March was credited unofficially with masterminding the scheme for Polish Flier Franczizek Jarewski to escape to the Danish owned Island of Bornhold with a Soviet built MIG-15 jet fighter plane.

However, Lt. Jarewski, now in this country, later denied that anyone helped him get the plane out of Poland.

He said he was not permitted to name the government sources with whom he was in contact. But he did say "two general officers" were involved.

Col. Amoss said the formulae were written on slips of paper smuggled out of Russia by a German scientist who was shot just before entering the east sector of Berlin.

A friendly agent traveling with the German, Amoss added, escaped with the papers and sent them on to ISI headquarters here in Baltimore.

Amoss confirmed the "poison gas" story late today when questioned about reports circulating in Washington that the private intelligence agency had obtained some formulas used by the Russians.

Amoss said the three formulas give the chemical composition of gasses listed as Tabun, Suman and Surin. They have a phosphorous base, he added.

Nixon Initiated Into Circus Club, Pats Lion's Head

WASHINGTON, June 4—(INS)—Vice President Nixon went above and beyond the call of duty today and handed out a few friendly pats to a non-voting resident of Florida—a lion.

Mrs. Nixon got into the act too but backed away when the beast demonstrated a little displeasure at her caress. Despite the trainer's claim that the lion was "a lot gentler than she looks," the vice president and Mrs. Nixon remained outside the cage reaching in to pet the animal.

The vice president's "date" with the lion—a male named Sheba—was arranged by the Saint's and Sinners' Club, an organization which takes its circuses seriously.

The close contact with the beast, although frowned upon by secret service men protecting the vice president, was part of Mr. Nixon's initiation into the club.

New Move Made To Stay Atom Spies Execution

NEW YORK, June 4—(INS)—A new move to stave off the execution of the condemned atomic spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg was made today by the "committee to secure justice for the Rosenbergs."

The committee sent a telegram to President Eisenhower contending that new documentary evidence had been uncovered in the controversial case.

Time, meanwhile, was running out on the doomed Rosenbergs, who are in Sing Sing Prison's death house awaiting death in the electric chair two weeks from tonight.

The Rosenberg committee, at a news conference, released several documents to the press, the most interesting of which was in the form of an affidavit signed by Bernard Greenglass and dated May 31, 1953. Greenglass is a brother of Ethel Rosenberg, and also brother of David Greenglass, who is now serving a 15-year prison sentence in connection with the crime.

The affidavit contends that some time in 1946, Bernard's brother, David told him he had taken a sample of uranium from Los Alamos without the permission of the authorities.

The affidavit added that about a year later, prior to David's arrest in 1950, "David told me he had thrown this uranium into the East River" (in New York.)

The Rosenberg committee could not explain why Greenglass had waited until now to make this alleged revelation. Bernard did not testify at the Rosenberg trial.

Conant To Report To President Soon

BONN, Germany, June 4 (AP)—U. S. High Commissioner Dr. James B. Conant left for the United States today to report to President Eisenhower and the State Department and to testify before congressional appropriations committees.

He and two of his top lieutenants will appear next week before Senate and House committees considering the high commission's budget for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

U. S. officials said the new budget has been sharply trimmed from the present fiscal year. They said Dr. Conant will ask Congress for about 34 million dollars compared with 46½ million for this year.

Flood, Famine Strike China, May Aid Korea Truce Talks

HONG KONG, June 4 (AP)—Flood and famine, twin vultures that hover over China, have struck again. Food production has been cut so severely it may affect the Red attitude toward a Korean armistice.

From here, on the basis of information gleaned from Communist utterances of the past 30 days, it looks as if China might not produce enough food to continue the war.

This is a risky presumption, and it may be quite wrong, but from the facts available that is the way things look.

News is scarce and censored. The Communists in their disaster proclamations tend to minimize the damage. But from certain admissions you can say this about the present famine situation:

Almost every province in China has been affected by floods, late frosts or pests. The wheat crop, which makes up about 10 per cent of China's cereal production, was nearly wiped out. Rice crops in the south and west have been badly damaged by floods which still persist.

Premier Chou En-lai himself in a directive May 16 said the main wheat provinces of Anhwei, Kiangsu, Honan, Shantung and Shansi were hit by cold, late frosts, pests and hailstorms. Wheat outlook was bad and such crops as beans and peas were hard hit.

Chou called on farmers to make up "the loss of the wheat crop by greater autumn crops," adding: "We must lead the peasants to conquer famine."

The Premier said Chinese "in famine areas should collect such substitute food as wild herbs for use as food during the period of shortage beyond the autumn harvest."

To meet the crisis, Chou virtully junked the Communist "land reform" program which has been vigorously resisted by peasants in many parts of China.

Martin Fears Income Tax Cut In Peril

Feels Excess Profits Levy Needs Extension To Permit Reductions

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The Republican chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee refused to budge today under mounting administration pressure to continue the excess profits tax through the rest of this year.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) declared after a White House conference with President Eisenhower that the 10 per cent cut in individual income taxes scheduled for next Jan. 1 may be placed in jeopardy if the excess profits levy is allowed to die on July 1.

They Go Together

"If the excess profits tax is not extended, it is very doubtful if financial conditions would be such as to warrant individual tax reductions," Martin said, adding:

"They go along together."

But Rep. Daniel Reed (R-NY), chairman of the tax-writing ways and means committee, promptly issued what he described as "a flat denial" that his group intends to change its stand in opposition to extending the excess profits tax.

This tax affects about 50,000 business firms. The individual income tax cut slated for next year would apply to about 50 million taxpayers.

Eisenhower and his secretary of the Treasury, George M. Humphrey, agree with critics that the profits tax is unjust and inequitable but they say the 800 million dollars it would produce during the last six months of this year is needed to help offset budget deficits.

"It must not be taken off until we can reduce the individual income taxes," Eisenhower told a nation-wide television audience last night.

Unproductive Tax

Martin, emerging from today's White House conference of congressional leaders, said:

"I'm sure an overwhelming number of members of the House want the excess profits tax extended. I also believe the ways and means committee members will give the House that opportunity."

Reed retorted, however, that "the testimony being presented to the committee had strengthened the members' conviction that this unproductive tax which discriminated so unjustly against small companies should die."

The administration has said it "definitely" plans to let the 10 per cent individual income tax reduction go into effect Jan. 1 as scheduled and Martin said an extension of the excess profits levy "would be very helpful in getting the individual reduction."

Winds Postpone Jets Delivery

TAIPEH, Formosa, June 4 (AP)—High winds from an approaching typhoon forced postponement of the arrival today of the first U. S. jet warplanes for Chiang Kai-shek's air force.

The planes, the number and type a secret, were to have put down at an airbase in Southern Formosa.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff now in Formosa, was to have taken part in a formal ceremony turning them over to the Chinese Nationalists.

Radford conferred with Gen. Cow. Chih-jou, chief of the joint general staff, after several conferences with Chiang. He also met with U. S. officers and officials on the military and economic situation.

Radford's present survey is designed to re-evaluate the potential of Chiang's armed forces.

McKeldin To Give Civil Rights Report

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — A national report on civil rights, which cites Maryland advances in that area, will be presented to Gov. McKeldin next Wednesday by a Baltimore committee of the American Jewish Congress.

The report notes the admission of negroes to several schools in the state, the end of segregation at Ford's Theater in Baltimore and the appointment of Jews and negroes to state jobs.

The report is published by the American Jewish Congress and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Super A-Bomb Shakes Nevada's Yucca Flat

Final Blast Seen 600 Miles Away

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 4 (AP)—In a foretaste of hell on earth, the United States today unleashed a super-atomic bomb of new record power and almost unbelievable fiery fury. The explosion was seen or felt in scores of communities up to 600 miles away.

Bursting high over Yucca Flat before dawn, the super bomb lit the Nevada desert with a baleful white flash for at least five seconds, then produced a churning fireball that lasted a half minute—or twice as long as any previous atomic fireball seen in the continental U. S.

Flames Boil Two Minutes

Flames boiled in the rising cloud for nearly two minutes longer to the amazement of experienced test observers and reporters.

The bomb, dropped from a high-flying B36, was believed to contain a power equivalent to 50,000 tons of TNT, or 2½ times the force of the 20 kiloton bomb that leveled Hiroshima.

Only in tests at the Pacific proving ground in Eniwetok have larger bombs been exploded. Three of the previous 30 tests at Nevada proving grounds are known to have produced a power yield greater than the Hiroshima bomb, but none is believed to have exceeded 30 kilotons.

Dr. Alvin C. Graves, scientific test director, and his aides thus hit the nuclear jackpot in this special bonus test—11th and last of the 1953 spring series. The tremendous experiment was held to test a refinement of a device exploded earlier this spring. The improvements were made at the AEC weapons laboratory at Los Alamos, N. M.

The scientists as usual gave no figures, but there was no mistaking their jubilation over the blast.

It gave AEC men a terrific jolt at the control point, 10 miles away. One man was knocked down, and a window in the control tower was broken.

The AEC also disclosed that a wooden structure near the control center, used as a temporary recording station, was flattened. What happened to instruments, if any were there today, was not stated.

Control point observers were struck by two blasts, "both believed stronger than any other in this series," the AEC said.

Seen 600 Miles Away

Reports to AEC from Albuquerque, N. M., 600 miles eastward, said the flash was seen there.

By 11:30 a.m. (PDT), the atomic cloud had moved about 200 miles southeast of the test site. AEC monitoring teams in a 200-mile radius reported no radioactive fallout or deposit of particles. Radiation safety experts said that any fallout subsequent to that hour would be negligible, only slightly higher than normal background radioactivity from the earth and outer space.

The blast was seen in San Francisco, 400 miles away, and seen and felt in Los Angeles, 250 miles distant. In Las Vegas, 75 miles away, a man read his non-luminous watch by the eerie light.

Medford and Klamath Falls, Ore., 490 and 450 airline miles away, respectively, reported a jolt that rattled dishes and shook houses. Similar reports came from Bishop, Fresno, Marysville, Paso Robles and Yuba City, Calif., and St. George, Utah.

RETURNING HOME — Dr. James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner in Germany, is returning home for a meeting with and report to President Eisenhower and will testify before congressional appropriations committees. He is expected to present his budget to Congress.

National Guard Is Not Affected By Draft Ruling

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—Maryland's adjutant general said today a selective service ruling that national guardsmen can be drafted until they are 35 years of age is "incorrect."

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord said the Maryland guard is not disturbed by the ruling "because there is no provision in the law for such a decision."

Selective service officials have ruled that the draft liability of young national guardsmen does not end when they become 26, but continues until they pass their 35th birthday.

The ruling would affect the guard's chief source of manpower in Maryland. It now offers draft exemption to 18-year-olds who join at that age and serve until they pass their 26th birthday.

Gen. Reckord said 50 per cent of the Maryland National Guard's authorized strength is comprised of youths taking this means to avoid induction by the Army.

Selective Service officials have said draft-eligibles deferred because of guard service are in the same category as elected officials, 4-F's, aviation cadets, reserve officer training corps students and others deferred for dependency, agricultural or essential-occupation reasons.

Registrants in these classifications may be inducted, after their deferments expire, at any time until they are 35.

"We are working to correct the error in the selective service decision," Gen. Reckord added.

"It just does not stand up that a man who serves eight years in the guard, until he is 26, would be called to active duty unless there was a national emergency."

Police, Rioters Clash

NAPLES, June 4 (INS)—Italian extremists clashed with police in Naples today as tension rose over Italy's critical national elections next Sunday and Monday. Rioting between Communists and NEO-Fascists marked the rising fever of the first national election since 1948, when the center parties won.

Newsboy, 14, To Make Solo Bicycle Tour Into Sweden

NEW YORK, June 4 (INS) — Fourteen-year-old newsboy Teodor Lee Berg of Eugene, Ore., was taken on a quick, exciting tour of New York before sailing to Sweden for an 800-mile solo bicycle trip.

Teodor, who saved $850 from his newspaper carrier route, picking beans and raising pigs to finance the trip, was born in Sweden in 1939 while his parents were on tour.

Young Teodor, who will cover the southern third of Sweden on his bicycle trip, also will have an audience with Crown Prince Carl Gustav on the island of Oland.

The audience was arranged when he wrote asking to see the king. A palace secretary replied that the king would be away but the crown prince would be glad to see him.

Upon arrival at Grand Central Station today, Teodor told reporters: "boy, what a big station compared with ours back home." He gave a low whistle when he was taken out to see the Empire State Building.

The youth will give lectures and show slides of the pictures he takes when he returns to Roosevelt Junior High School in Eugene, where he lives with his parents and four brothers and sisters.

Teodor sails this afternoon aboard the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm.

New Pocket-Size Magazine Issued

NEW YORK, June 4 (INS) — A new pocket-sized weekly news magazine—Tempo—went on sale today with the initial June 8 issue containing news and features on science, medicine, sports, entertainment, books, business and religion.

Sources Note Red Proposal Same As UN's

Top Secret Stamp Placed On Matter Of Commies' Reply

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Communist proposals for breaking the prisoner of war deadlock are so close to United Nations terms that early agreement on an armistice in Korea now appears highly probable.

This information from fully qualified informants coincided with reports from Korea itself that Allied authorities there regarded the Red POW solution put forth last night as solving major difficulties blocking final agreement.

Diplomats of United Nations with troops fighting in Korea met at the State Department today with Far Eastern experts and studied the Red plan, which was generally regarded as in the nature of a set of counter-proposals to the "final" concessions offered the Reds by the U. N. Command on orders from Washington 10 days ago.

Stamped Top Secret

Both the U. N. proposal and the Communist reply were stamped top secret by the U. S. Command and the government here, and officials refused to discuss any of the provisions. However, much had been learned previously from South Korean sources about the U. N. terms of May 25 because the South Koreans objected to inducements offered the Reds, and for a time they threatened to carry on the war despite any truce made on such terms.

The Red response was forwarded to the Defense and State Departments and the White House from Panmunjom, reaching the hands of policy-making officials in late morning. Shortly thereafter word spread that prospects for a truce had brightened enormously. In some quarters the Red counter-proposals were considered so close to what the U. N. had offered as to amount to a virtual acceptance, leaving only minor differences still to be negotiated.

Keep Fingers Crossed

However, officials have had much experience in the past with "minor differences" with the Reds and some were keeping their fingers crossed lest technical questions in future negotiations should develop into major issues.

The question of what to do about 48,500 POWs, held by U. N. forces who have declared they would resist going home to Red rule has blocked the truce for more than a year. The conviction of officials here is that if it can now be answered successfully there are no other matters in the way of an actual armistice, except for the negotiation of the detailed location of the present battle line, which would become the truce line.

Optimism about the outlook has caused a sharp revival of interest in other Far Eastern problems with attention being focused on the following points:

1. The State Department has largely completed a study of the position which the United States should take toward Red China. The extreme alternatives are a policy aimed at splitting Red leader Mao Tse Tung from Moscow, and one based upon the conviction that such a break is impossible and some other kind of solution must be sought in the Far East. An announcement reflecting the decision may be made soon, but authorities would not indicate how quickly or in what circumstances.

2. United States policy toward the Chinese Nationalist government on Formosa is to make it a rally-

Taft Says UN Should Decide Final Peace

Believes Conference Necessary; Declares Terms Unsatisfactory

This is a risky presumption, and it may be quite wrong, but from the facts available that is the way things look.

News is scarce and censored. The Communists in their disaster proclamations tend to minimize the damage. But from certain admissions you can say this about the present famine situation:

Almost every province in China has been affected by floods, late frosts or pests. The wheat crop, which makes up about 10 per cent of China's cereal production, was nearly wiped out. Rice crops in the south and west have been badly damaged by floods which still persist.

Premier Chou En-lai himself in a directive May 16 said the main wheat provinces of Anhwei, Kiangsu, Honan, Shantung and Shansi were hit by cold, late frosts, pests and hailstorms. Wheat outlook was bad and such crops as beans and peas were hard hit.

Chou called on farmers to make up "the loss of the wheat crop by greater autumn crops," adding: "We must lead the peasants to conquer famine."

The Premier said Chinese "in famine areas should collect such substitute food as wild herbs for use as food during the period of shortage beyond the autumn harvest."

To meet the crisis, Chou virtully junked the Communist "land reform" program which has been vigorously resisted by peasants in many parts of China.

Martin Fears Income Tax Cut In Peril

Feels Excess Profits Levy Needs Extension To Permit Reductions

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The Republican chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee refused to budge today under mounting administration pressure to continue the excess profits tax through the rest of this year.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) declared after a White House conference with President Eisenhower that the 10 per cent cut in individual income taxes scheduled for next Jan. 1 may be placed in jeopardy if the excess profits levy is allowed to die on July 1.

They Go Together

"If the excess profits tax is not extended, it is very doubtful if financial conditions would be such as to warrant individual tax reductions," Martin said, adding:

"They go along together."

But Rep. Daniel Reed (R-NY), chairman of the tax-writing ways and means committee, promptly issued what he described as "a flat denial" that his group intends to change its stand in opposition to extending the excess profits tax.

This tax affects about 50,000 business firms. The individual income tax cut slated for next year would apply to about 50 million taxpayers.

Eisenhower and his secretary of the Treasury, George M. Humphrey, agree with critics that the profits tax is unjust and inequitable but they say the 800 million dollars it would produce during the last six months of this year is needed to help offset budget deficits.

"It must not be taken off until we can reduce the individual income taxes," Eisenhower told a nation-wide television audience last night.

Unproductive Tax

Martin, emerging from today's White House conference of congressional leaders, said:

"I'm sure an overwhelming number of members of the House want the excess profits tax extended. I also believe the ways and means committee members will give the House that opportunity."

Reed retorted, however, that "the testimony being presented to the committee had strengthened the members' conviction that this unproductive tax which discriminated so unjustly against small companies should die."

The administration has said it "definitely" plans to let the 10 per cent individual income tax reduction go into effect Jan. 1 as scheduled and Martin said an extension of the excess profits levy "would be very helpful in getting the individual reduction."

Winds Postpone Jets Delivery

TAIPEH, Formosa, June 4 (AP)—High winds from an approaching typhoon forced postponement of the arrival today of the first U. S. jet warplanes for Chiang Kai-shek's air force.

The planes, the number and type a secret, were to have put down at an airbase in Southern Formosa.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff now in Formosa, was to have taken part in a formal ceremony turning them over to the Chinese Nationalists.

Radford conferred with Gen. Cow. Chih-jou, chief of the joint general staff, after several conferences with Chiang. He also met with U. S. officers and officials on the military and economic situation.

Radford's present survey is designed to re-evaluate the potential of Chiang's armed forces.

McKeldin To Give Civil Rights Report

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — A national report on civil rights, which cites Maryland advances in that area, will be presented to Gov. McKeldin next Wednesday by a Baltimore committee of the American Jewish Congress.

The report notes the admission of negroes to several schools in the state, the end of segregation at Ford's Theater in Baltimore and the appointment of Jews and negroes to state jobs.

The report is published by the American Jewish Congress and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Super A-Bomb Shakes Nevada's Yucca Flat

Final Blast Seen 600 Miles Away

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 4 (AP)—In a foretaste of hell on earth, the United States today unleashed a super-atomic bomb of new record power and almost unbelievable fiery fury. The explosion was seen or felt in scores of communities up to 600 miles away.

Bursting high over Yucca Flat before dawn, the super bomb lit the Nevada desert with a baleful white flash for at least five seconds, then produced a churning fireball that lasted a half minute—or twice as long as any previous atomic fireball seen in the continental U. S.

Flames Boil Two Minutes

Flames boiled in the rising cloud for nearly two minutes longer to the amazement of experienced test observers and reporters.

The bomb, dropped from a high-flying B36, was believed to contain a power equivalent to 50,000 tons of TNT, or 2½ times the force of the 20 kiloton bomb that leveled Hiroshima.

Only in tests at the Pacific proving ground in Eniwetok have larger bombs been exploded. Three of the previous 30 tests at Nevada proving grounds are known to have produced a power yield greater than the Hiroshima bomb, but none is believed to have exceeded 30 kilotons.

Dr. Alvin C. Graves, scientific test director, and his aides thus hit the nuclear jackpot in this special bonus test—11th and last of the 1953 spring series. The tremendous experiment was held to test a refinement of a device exploded earlier this spring. The improvements were made at the AEC weapons laboratory at Los Alamos, N. M.

The scientists as usual gave no figures, but there was no mistaking their jubilation over the blast.

It gave AEC men a terrific jolt at the control point, 10 miles away. One man was knocked down, and a window in the control tower was broken.

The AEC also disclosed that a wooden structure near the control center, used as a temporary recording station, was flattened. What happened to instruments, if any were there today, was not stated.

Control point observers were struck by two blasts, "both believed stronger than any other in this series," the AEC said.

Seen 600 Miles Away

Reports to AEC from Albuquerque, N. M., 600 miles eastward, said the flash was seen there.

By 11:30 a.m. (PDT), the atomic cloud had moved about 200 miles southeast of the test site. AEC monitoring teams in a 200-mile radius reported no radioactive fallout or deposit of particles. Radiation safety experts said that any fallout subsequent to that hour would be negligible, only slightly higher than normal background radioactivity from the earth and outer space.

The blast was seen in San Francisco, 400 miles away, and seen and felt in Los Angeles, 250 miles distant. In Las Vegas, 75 miles away, a man read his non-luminous watch by the eerie light.

Medford and Klamath Falls, Ore., 490 and 450 airline miles away, respectively, reported a jolt that rattled dishes and shook houses. Similar reports came from Bishop, Fresno, Marysville, Paso Robles and Yuba City, Calif., and St. George, Utah.

RETURNING HOME — Dr. James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner in Germany, is returning home for a meeting with and report to President Eisenhower and will testify before congressional appropriations committees. He is expected to present his budget to Congress.

National Guard Is Not Affected By Draft Ruling

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—Maryland's adjutant general said today a selective service ruling that national guardsmen can be drafted until they are 35 years of age is "incorrect."

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord said the Maryland guard is not disturbed by the ruling "because there is no provision in the law for such a decision."

Selective service officials have ruled that the draft liability of young national guardsmen does not end when they become 26, but continues until they pass their 35th birthday.

The ruling would affect the guard's chief source of manpower in Maryland. It now offers draft exemption to 18-year-olds who join at that age and serve until they pass their 26th birthday.

Gen. Reckord said 50 per cent of the Maryland National Guard's authorized strength is comprised of youths taking this means to avoid induction by the Army.

Selective Service officials have said draft-eligibles deferred because of guard service are in the same category as elected officials, 4-F's, aviation cadets, reserve officer training corps students and others deferred for dependency, agricultural or essential-occupation reasons.

Regristrants in these classifications may be inducted, after their deferments expire, at any time until they are 35.

"We are working to correct the error in the selective service decision," Gen. Reckord added.

"It just does not stand up that a man who serves eight years in the guard, until he is 26, would be called to active duty unless there was a national emergency."

Newsboy, 14, To Make Solo Bicycle Tour Into Sweden

NEW YORK, June 4 (INS) — Fourteen-year-old newsboy Teodor Lee Berg of Eugene, Ore., was taken on a quick, exciting tour of New York before sailing to Sweden for an 800-mile solo bicycle trip.

Teodor, who saved $850 from his newspaper carrier route, picking beans and raising pigs to finance the trip, was born in Sweden in 1939 while his parents were on tour.

Young Teodor, who will cover the southern third of Sweden on his bicycle trip, also will have an audience with Crown Prince Carl Gustav on the island of Oland.

The audience was arranged when he wrote asking to see the king. A palace secretary replied that the king would be away but the crown prince would be glad to see him.

Upon arrival at Grand Central Station today, Teodor told reporters: "boy, what a big station compared with ours back home." He gave a low whistle when he was taken out to see the Empire State Building.

The youth will give lectures and show slides of the pictures he takes when he returns to Roosevelt Junior High School in Eugene, where he lives with his parents and four brothers and sisters.

Teodor sails this afternoon aboard the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm.

Top Secret Stamp Placed On Matter Of Commies' Reply

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Communist proposals for breaking the prisoner of war deadlock are so close to United Nations terms that early agreement on an armistice in Korea now appears highly probable.

This information from fully qualified informants coincided with reports from Korea itself that Allied authorities there regarded the Red POW solution put forth last night as solving major difficulties blocking final agreement.

Diplomats of United Nations with troops fighting in Korea met at the State Department today with Far Eastern experts and studied the Red plan, which was generally regarded as in the nature of a set of counter-proposals to the "final" concessions offered the Reds by the U. N. Command on orders from Washington 10 days ago.

Stamped Top Secret

Both the U. N. proposal and the Communist reply were stamped top secret by the U. S. Command and the government here, and officials refused to discuss any of the provisions. However, much had been learned previously from South Korean sources about the U. N. terms of May 25 because the South Koreans objected to inducements offered the Reds, and for a time they threatened to carry on the war despite any truce made on such terms.

The Red response was forwarded to the Defense and State Departments and the White House from Panmunjom, reaching the hands of policy-making officials in late morning. Shortly thereafter word spread that prospects for a truce had brightened enormously. In some quarters the Red counter-proposals were considered so close to what the U. N. had offered as to amount to a virtual acceptance, leaving only minor differences still to be negotiated.

Keep Fingers Crossed

However, officials have had much experience in the past with "minor differences" with the Reds and some were keeping their fingers crossed lest technical questions in future negotiations should develop into major issues.

The question of what to do about 48,500 POWs, held by U. N. forces who have declared they would resist going home to Red rule has blocked the truce for more than a year. The conviction of officials here is that if it can now be answered successfully there are no other matters in the way of an actual armistice, except for the negotiation of the detailed location of the present battle line, which would become the truce line.

Optimism about the outlook has caused a sharp revival of interest in other Far Eastern problems with attention being focused on the following points:

1. The State Department has largely completed a study of the position which the United States should take toward Red China. The extreme alternatives are a policy aimed at splitting Red leader Mao Tse Tung from Moscow, and one based upon the conviction that such a break is impossible and some other kind of solution must be sought in the Far East. An announcement reflecting the decision may be made soon, but authorities would not indicate how quickly or in what circumstances.

2. United States policy toward the Chinese Nationalist government on Formosa is to make it a rally-

Body Of Former Soldier Found Near Baltimore

Victim Shot In Head, Dumped Into Bushes

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — The body of a young ex-GI with a bullet in his brain was found today in a clump of trees off the new Baltimore-Washington expressway, about one mile south of the city limits.

State Police said he apparently was murdered and dumped there by someone who knew the area.

The victim was identified tonight by a roommate as John Metzger, about 23, of Baltimore. Police said he was recently discharged from the Army after occupation duty in Europe.

The roommate, Richard Battaline, told officers he had last seen Metzger yesterday morning. Police said Battaline contacted them after reading a description of the victim in a newspaper.

Assistant State Medical Examiner William B. Lovett said the bullet recovered from Metzger's brain apparently was fired from a .25 caliber automatic pistol. He estimated he had been dead 12 to 36 hours.

Dr. Lovitt said powder burns on the left side of the face indicated the gun was held close to his head. He said death was instantaneous.

It was Baltimore County's second unsolved slaying within eight days. A week ago yesterday the body of a sailor, Michael Rusin of Mildred, Pa., was found clubbed to death in a suburban Essex woods east of here. Police have not found his slayer.

Two Negro men, Fred Wall, 25 and Harvey Tillman, 34, both of Baltimore found the body. Wall said he and Tillman had been working on his car and took it out on the expressway to test it. He added that they stopped at a parking area on the edge of the highway's northbound lane.

Wall, strolling into the woods while his friend worked over the motor, said he came across the body, lying face up, about 50 feet from the highway.

He and Tillman jumped into the car and drove to Westport to report to police, he added.

King Vidors Settle Divorce

LOS ANGELES, June 4 (AP)—A midnight $300,000 settlement today silenced what promised to be one of the spiciest Hollywood divorce trials in years, that of veteran film director King Vidor and his third wife.

Superior Judge Philip H. Richards put the case off calendar at the request of Vidor's counsel when it came up for trial, only hours after the settlement was reached.

Attorney Monta W. Shirley told the court that Mrs. Vidor, the former writer Betty Hill, had agreed to drop adultery charges involving actress Mary Anderson and other women in return for the huge property settlement.

The 52-year-old wife had sued the 58-year-old director for divorce and he later filed a cross-suit, alleging their 1937 Mexican marriage was illegal. He formerly was married to actress Florence Vdor and Eleanor Boardman.

Mrs. Vidor, in her complaint, charged that Vidor carried on an illicit love affair with the 25-year-old Miss Anderson at the director's Paso Robles ranch. She also made the same charge against screenwriter Elizabeth Bogdanff.

Miss Anderson has since married Leon Samroy, 52, Oscar winning cinematographer. Both she and Vidor had previously denied any impropriety.

"Vidor wants to reconcile with his wife more than anything else," his counsel told the court.

Shirley told the court that Mrs. Vidor will receive nearly $300,000 in stocks, bonds, cash and real estate, with Vidor keeping the family home in nearby Beverly Hills.

Atomic "Breeding" To Aid In Industrial Power Uses

New Milestone In Science History Is Made

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Successful "breeding" of atomic material—a long step towards realizing industrial power from the atom—was announced today by the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is probably the most revolutionary atomic development since the perfection of the A-bomb.

Breeding means the creation of as much or more atomic material—for use in bombs or as a potential power fuel — than is "burned up" in manufacturing such material.

Until now, the AEC has indicated the manufactured atomic material, plutonium, has been produced only at a net loss of another so-called "fissionable" material, precious and scarce uranium-235.

Made From Uranium

Plutonium is actually made from another kind of uranium, called —238, which is 140 times more common in nature than U-235, but which is not an atomic energy material itself. But precious U-235 must be burned in the process of converting this U-238.

"Breeding" gives a new twist to the picture. U-235 still will have to be "burned," but not at a net loss, and therefore the potential exists for getting far more in atomic payoff out of the world's uranium—U-235 and U-238 mixture —than was possible before. This may also hold true for another potential atomic fuel called thorium which is more plentiful than uranium.

ABC Chairman Gordon Dean made the historic announcement —namely, that commission scientists at Arco, Idaho, have perfected an atomic reactor, or furnace, which "is changing non-fissionable uranium into plutonium at a rate that is at least equal to the rate at which the uranium-235 is being consumed."

At the same time he declared that while this and other technical developments held out a promise for economic atom power for industry, achievement of such a goal will require "policy" changes. He meant changes in the Atomic Energy Act to lessen government "monopoly" of the atom and give greater latitude to private industry in the quest for useful atomic power.

Dean hailed the "breeding" achievement as meaning the United States has "now reached still another milestone in the history of atomic energy."

The AEC chief added in a speech prepared for the 21st annual meeting of the Edison Electric Institute at Atlantic City:

"It is a development which holds out the promise of making a civilian atomic power industry even more feasible and attractive in the long range than it has hitherto appeared to be."

Cautions For Care

But Dean cautioned that "we must take care to see that this encouraging development is kept in its proper perspective."

"This news does not mean," he said, "that economic power from atomic fuels is here. It does not mean that overnight we have suddenly obtained all the fissionable material we want or need. It does not mean that uranium can now be regarded as a virtually costless fuel."

However, on the positive side, Dean remarked:

"The real significance of breeding is that it is now possible for mankind ultimately to utilize all of the uranium that can be extracted from the earth's surface for atomic fuel, whether it is fissionable or not in its natural state."

What he meant there was that it should ultimately be possible to utilize all of the earth's stores of uranium-238, which is 150 times more plentiful than its fissionable twin, uranium-235.

Helps Speed Success

Various scientists and engineers have declared that successful achievement of breeding would help speed the day when economic atomic power will be realized. Their reasoning goes this way:

In a "breeder" reactor, it is theoretically possible to produce useful power and at the same time produce as much new atomic fuel as you use in keeping the atomic fires going.

are 'neutral' influencing the truce decisions," he said.

Taft said he recognizes that the U. S. and Britain should have a common policy in the Pacific and elsewhere in the world.

"But if we have to negotiate with the British about that policy, we will be better off doing it as partners within a military alliance than we will carrying on the arguments in the open in the United Nations," he said.

Farmers Group Meets In Rome

ROME, June 4 (AP)—The sixth world meeting of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, representing 20 million farmers in 26 countries, opens here tomorrow.

For eight days the delegates will try their hand again at two tough problems: how to assure the farmer an adequate income for what he produces and how to distribute his produce so the world's hungry may be better fed.

The last previous meeting of this organization of independent national farm organizations, cooperating with the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations, was held in Mexico City in 1951.

Communist countries are out. Their farm organizations are ruled to be tools of governments and thus not independent.

She Saw It All, Although Blind

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, June 4 (AP)—"It was the finest thing I ever saw," the blind girl said today.

She and nine of her friends sat strained, silent and in darkness while the power and glory of Britain passed by.

They were from the National Institute of the Blind. The Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, had turned over a block of back seats to them at the last moment before the coronation.

"They didn't put out the form and order of the service in braille, but I saw it all," the girl said.

"There were lovely, lovely colors and brave handsome men. There was the prince, her husband, like in the story book. There were noblemen and their ladies. Dressed in scarlet. Dressed in gold. They were all dressed up. A joy to behold. And the grand, good music. The choir sounded to me like it was in the clouds. But it couldn't have been. And then the lights, the lights. I wouldn't have missed it for world."

The blind girl must have seen it all.

For that's the way it was.

Look For Agreement

3. The United States hopes that the Associated States of Indochina will work out their differences with the French through friendly conferences and obtain the liberties to which this government considers them entitled. It is believed here that the conduct of the Indochina War has been greatly hampered by anti-colonialism directed against the French.

All these and other problems developed new interest and concern with the possibility that the Korean War may shortly be brought to an end.

Medical School Dean Is Retired

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — Dr. Alan M. Chesney's retirement as dean of the School of Medicine at Johns Hopkins University after 24 year was announced today.

No successor was named by Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the University.

Dr. Chesney will continue after this month in an emeritus capacity with the university with which he has been associated except for seven years ever since 1905.

That year he entered the university as a student. He received his medical degree in 1912 and interned the next five years at Johns Hopkins Hospital and the Rockefeller Institute Hospital in New York.

After two years in the Army medical corps during the first World War, Dr. Chesney was appointed associate in medicine at Washington University in St. Louis. He returned to Johns Hopkins in 1921 as associate professor of medicine and physician on the senior staff of the hospital.

He became assistant dean of the school of medicine in 1927 and moved into the top position two years later.

McKeldin Urges Friendship Airport's Use As Terminal

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—Governor McKeldin appealed directly to Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks today for the use of Friendship Airport as a secondary air terminal for Washington traffic.

He cited the report of a presidential commission to argue against the proposed use of Andrews Air Force Base, near Washington, as an alternative facility for the overcrowded Washington National Airport.

In a letter to Weeks, the governor quoted a passage from the report of a commission headed by retired Gen. James H. Doolittle which said:

"...nor should commercial aircraft operate regularly from busy military airports."

"As I recall," the governor wrote, "the Commission also pointed out that the joint use of congested airports for civil and military aviation is undesirable, particularly when military aeroplanes are armed, carry bombs or droppable fuel tanks and when they are very different in performance from civil craft."

On the other hand, said the governor, Friendship Airport is free of military traffic, is on the Washington Expressway which will provide easy access to Washington when completed, and is now ready, without substantial investment for added facilities, "to handle any amount of traffic the CAA wishes to divert to it."

"In other words," the governor wrote, "Friendship is modern, safe, convenient, adequate and ready. . .I sincerely hope you will find it desirable to relieve the congestion at Washington National Airport by immediately diverting to Friendship International as many flights as discretion dictates."

Marriage-A-Year Man Will Have Hard Time Keeping Up Average

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 4 (AP)—Trolan J. Barr, with a record of six marriages in six years, will have a hard time keeping up his average.

A probation given him last November was revoked this week and Barr, 36, was ordered to serve a year in jail.

The record shows that in November, 1947, Barr married Mrs. Gladys L. Barr, Birmingham, Ala., a few days after getting a divorce from a previous wife, not named.

While still wed to Mrs. Gladys Barr, he allegedly wed in succession: Reba Mae Leverett in Hattiesburg, Miss., in Dec. 1948; Dorothy M. Gault in Elizabeth City, N. C., in Aug. 1949, and Ethel Lane in Hagerstown, Md., in Oct. 1949.

Last July, he was given a suspended one-year jail term here on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses from a woman who claimed Barr promised to marry her. That was the probation revoked yesterday.

Barr's last marriage was on Jan. 17 of this year to Mrs. Anna Owens of Louisville.

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — The Queen of Bermuda, a floating convention hall for the last five days, docked here today with members of the Maryland Bankers Association aboard.

The bankers and other Maryland passengers were met by about 40 customs men to check on bolts of English woolen and bottles of Scotch whisky which are usually picked up in Bermuda where the passengers spent a day and a half.

While in session in their seagoing convention, the bankers elected Thomas E. McConnel, vice president of the Maryland Trust Co., to head the association.

Other officers elected included Hubert P. Burdette, Mt. Airy, first vice president; Joseph N. Shumante, Annapolis, second vice president, and Harper R. Clark, Baltimore, third vice president.

Body Of Former Soldier Found Near Baltimore

Victim Shot In Head, Dumped Into Bushes

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — The body of a young ex-GI with a bullet in his brain was found today in a clump of trees off the new Baltimore-Washington expressway, about one mile south of the city limits.

State Police said he apparently was murdered and dumped there by someone who knew the area.

The victim was identified tonight by a roommate as John Metzger, about 23, of Baltimore. Police said he was recently discharged from the Army after occupation duty in Europe.

The roommate, Richard Battaline, told officers he had last seen Metzger yesterday morning. Police said Battaline contacted them after reading a description of the victim in a newspaper.

Assistant State Medical Examiner William B. Lovett said the bullet recovered from Metzger's brain apparently was fired from a .25 caliber automatic pistol. He estimated he had been dead 12 to 36 hours.

Dr. Lovitt said powder burns on the left side of the face indicated the gun was held close to his head. He said death was instantaneous.

It was Baltimore County's second unsolved slaying within eight days. A week ago yesterday the body of a sailor, Michael Rusin of Mildred, Pa., was found clubbed to death in a suburban Essex woods east of here. Police have not found his slayer.

Two Negro men, Fred Wall, 25 and Harvey Tillman, 34, both of Baltimore found the body. Wall said he and Tillman had been working on his car and took it out on the expressway to test it. He added that they stopped at a parking area on the edge of the highway's northbound lane.

Wall, strolling into the woods while his friend worked over the motor, said he came across the body, lying face up, about 50 feet from the highway.

He and Tillman jumped into the car and drove to Westport to report to police, he added.

King Vidors Settle Divorce

LOS ANGELES, June 4 (AP)—A midnight $300,000 settlement today silenced what promised to be one of the spiciest Hollywood divorce trials in years, that of veteran film director King Vidor and his third wife.

Superior Judge Philip H. Richards put the case off calendar at the request of Vidor's counsel when it came up for trial, only hours after the settlement was reached.

Attorney Monta W. Shirley told the court that Mrs. Vidor, the former writer Betty Hill, had agreed to drop adultery charges involving actress Mary Anderson and other women in return for the huge property settlement.

The 52-year-old wife had sued the 58-year-old director for divorce and he later filed a cross-suit, alleging their 1937 Mexican marriage was illegal. He formerly was married to actress Florence Vdor and Eleanor Boardman.

Mrs. Vidor, in her complaint, charged that Vidor carried on an illicit love affair with the 25-year-old Miss Anderson at the director's Paso Robles ranch. She also made the same charge against screenwriter Elizabeth Bogdanff.

Miss Anderson has since married Leon Samroy, 52, Oscar winning cinematographer. Both she and Vidor had previously denied any impropriety.

"Vidor wants to reconcile with his wife more than anything else," his counsel told the court.

Shirley told the court that Mrs. Vidor will receive nearly $300,000 in stocks, bonds, cash and real estate, with Vidor keeping the family home in nearby Beverly Hills.

Atomic "Breeding" To Aid In Industrial Power Uses

New Milestone In Science History Is Made

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Successful "breeding" of atomic material—a long step towards realizing industrial power from the atom—was announced today by the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is probably the most revolutionary atomic development since the perfection of the A-bomb.

Breeding means the creation of as much or more atomic material—for use in bombs or as a potential power fuel — than is "burned up" in manufacturing such material.

Until now, the AEC has indicated the manufactured atomic material, plutonium, has been produced only at a net loss of another so-called "fissionable" material, precious and scarce uranium-235.

Made From Uranium

Plutonium is actually made from another kind of uranium, called —238, which is 140 times more common in nature than U-235, but which is not an atomic energy material itself. But precious U-235 must be burned in the process of converting this U-238.

"Breeding" gives a new twist to the picture. U-235 still will have to be "burned," but not at a net loss, and therefore the potential exists for getting far more in atomic payoff out of the world's uranium—U-235 and U-238 mixture —than was possible before. This may also hold true for another potential atomic fuel called thorium which is more plentiful than uranium.

ABC Chairman Gordon Dean made the historic announcement —namely, that commission scientists at Arco, Idaho, have perfected an atomic reactor, or furnace, which "is changing non-fissionable uranium into plutonium at a rate that is at least equal to the rate at which the uranium-235 is being consumed."

At the same time he declared that while this and other technical developments held out a promise for economic atom power for industry, achievement of such a goal will require "policy" changes. He meant changes in the Atomic Energy Act to lessen government "monopoly" of the atom and give greater latitude to private industry in the quest for useful atomic power.

Dean hailed the "breeding" achievement as meaning the United States has "now reached still another milestone in the history of atomic energy."

The AEC chief added in a speech prepared for the 21st annual meeting of the Edison Electric Institute at Atlantic City:

"It is a development which holds out the promise of making a civilian atomic power industry even more feasible and attractive in the long range than it has hitherto appeared to be."

Cautions For Care

But Dean cautioned that "we must take care to see that this encouraging development is kept in its proper perspective."

"This news does not mean," he said, "that economic power from atomic fuels is here. It does not mean that overnight we have suddenly obtained all the fissionable material we want or need. It does not mean that uranium can now be regarded as a virtually costless fuel."

However, on the positive side, Dean remarked:

"The real significance of breeding is that it is now possible for mankind ultimately to utilize all of the uranium that can be extracted from the earth's surface for atomic fuel, whether it is fissionable or not in its natural state."

What he meant there was that it should ultimately be possible to utilize all of the earth's stores of uranium-238, which is 150 times more plentiful than its fissionable twin, uranium-235.

Helps Speed Success

Various scientists and engineers have declared that successful achievement of breeding would help speed the day when economic atomic power will be realized. Their reasoning goes this way:

In a "breeder" reactor, it is theoretically possible to produce useful power and at the same time produce as much new atomic fuel as you use in keeping the atomic fires going.

are 'neutral' influencing the truce decisions," he said.

Taft said he recognizes that the U. S. and Britain should have a common policy in the Pacific and elsewhere in the world.

"But if we have to negotiate with the British about that policy, we will be better off doing it as partners within a military alliance than we will carrying on the arguments in the open in the United Nations," he said.

Farmers Group Meets In Rome

ROME, June 4 (AP)—The sixth world meeting of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, representing 20 million farmers in 26 countries, opens here tomorrow.

For eight days the delegates will try their hand again at two tough problems: how to assure the farmer an adequate income for what he produces and how to distribute his produce so the world's hungry may be better fed.

The last previous meeting of this organization of independent national farm organizations, cooperating with the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations, was held in Mexico City in 1951.

Communist countries are out. Their farm organizations are ruled to be tools of governments and thus not independent.

She Saw It All, Although Blind

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, June 4 (AP)—"It was the finest thing I ever saw," the blind girl said today.

She and nine of her friends sat strained, silent and in darkness while the power and glory of Britain passed by.

They were from the National Institute of the Blind. The Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, had turned over a block of back seats to them at the last moment before the coronation.

"They didn't put out the form and order of the service in braille, but I saw it all," the girl said.

"There were lovely, lovely colors and brave handsome men. There was the prince, her husband, like in the story book. There were noblemen and their ladies. Dressed in scarlet. Dressed in gold. They were all dressed up. A joy to behold. And the grand, good music. The choir sounded to me like it was in the clouds. But it couldn't have been. And then the lights, the lights. I wouldn't have missed it for world."

The blind girl must have seen it all.

Look For Agreement

3. The United States hopes that the Associated States of Indochina will work out their differences with the French through friendly conferences and obtain the liberties to which this government considers them entitled. It is believed here that the conduct of the Indochina War has been greatly hampered by anti-colonialism directed against the French.

4. The United States government hopes that agreement may be reached promptly for the evacuation from Burma of 20,000 Chinese Nationalist troops which are a sore point in U. S. relations with the Burmese government.

All these and other problems developed new interest and concern with the possibility that the Korean War may shortly be brought to an end.

Medical School Dean Is Retired

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — Dr. Alan M. Chesney's retirement as dean of the School of Medicine at Johns Hopkins University after 24 year was announced today.

No successor was named by Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the University.

Dr. Chesney will continue after this month in an emeritus capacity with the university with which he has been associated except for seven years ever since 1905.

That year he entered the university as a student. He received his medical degree in 1912 and interned the next five years at Johns Hopkins Hospital and the Rockefeller Institute Hospital in New York.

After two years in the Army medical corps during the first World War, Dr. Chesney was appointed associate in medicine at Washington University in St. Louis. He returned to Johns Hopkins in 1921 as associate professor of medicine and physician on the senior staff of the hospital.

He became assistant dean of the school of medicine in 1927 and moved into the top position two years later.

Research Cancelled

SOLOMONS, Md., June 4 (AP) — A Chesapeake Biological Laboratory research project has been postponed because of a budget bill rider which required that the wharf be opened to the public.

McKeldin Urges Friendship Airport's Use As Terminal

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—Governor McKeldin appealed directly to Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks today for the use of Friendship Airport as a secondary air terminal for Washington traffic.

He cited the report of a presidential commission to argue against the proposed use of Andrews Air Force Base, near Washington, as an alternative facility for the overcrowded Washington National Airport.

In a letter to Weeks, the governor quoted a passage from the report of a commission headed by retired Gen. James H. Doolittle which said:

"...nor should commercial aircraft operate regularly from busy military airports."

"As I recall," the governor wrote, "the Commission also pointed out that the joint use of congested airports for civil and military aviation is undesirable, particularly when military aeroplanes are armed, carry bombs or droppable fuel tanks and when they are very different in performance from civil craft."

On the other hand, said the governor, Friendship Airport is free of military traffic, is on the Washington Expressway which will provide easy access to Washington when completed, and is now ready, without substantial investment for added facilities, "to handle any amount of traffic the CAA wishes to divert to it."

"In other words," the governor wrote, "Friendship is modern, safe, convenient, adequate and ready...I sincerely hope you will find it desirable to relieve the congestion at Washington National Airport by immediately diverting to Friendship International as many flights as discretion dictates."

Marriage-A-Year Man Will Have Hard Time Keeping Up Average

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 4 (AP)—Trolan J. Barr, with a record of six marriages in six years, will have a hard time keeping up his average.

A probation given him last November was revoked this week and Barr, 36, was ordered to serve a year in jail.

The record shows that in November, 1947, Barr married Mrs. Gladys L. Barr, Birmingham, Ala., a few days after getting a divorce from a previous wife, not named.

While still wed to Mrs. Gladys Barr, he allegedly wed in succession: Reba Mae Leverett in Hattiesburg, Miss., in Dec. 1948; Dorothy M. Gault in Elizabeth City, N. C., in Aug. 1949, and Ethel Lane in Hagerstown, Md., in Oct. 1949.

Last July, he was given a suspended one-year jail term here on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses from a woman who claimed Barr promised to marry her. That was the probation revoked yesterday.

Barr's last marriage was on Jan. 17 of this year to Mrs. Anna Owens of Louisville.

Across The Pole

Years ago, when Kipling wrote "The Night Mail," the tale of a transoceanic flight, he was writing what would now be dubbed science fiction. As it turned out, human flight, in either airplane or dirigible, had far greater possibilities than even the imaginative Kipling dreamed. Certainly it never occurred to him to predict commercial flights from Europe to the Far East via the North Pole.

Yet the first such flight has been accomplished. Transpolar flight, as such, is not, of course, new. But enterprising Scandinavian Airlines decided to transport from Oslo to Tokyo, via the North Polar region, 41 workers assigned to the Norwegian field hospital in Korea. The flight, via Thule, Greenland, Anchorage, Alaska and the Aleutians, was on a commercial basis.

Defense authorities have long been concerned with the possibilities of direct flight, in time of war, between the Soviet Union and the North American continent, via the Arctic. Maps drawn on a polar projection make evident, to the least technical-minded civilian, how direct is this route.

Whether the commercial trail that Scandinavian Airlines has blazed across the Polar region will come into wide use remains to be demonstrated. There was a time when commercial flight across the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, now a commonplace, was an experience of which the traveler boasted. Perhaps Polar flights will become no less routine.

Was Grandmother Wrong?

Most of the arguments grandmother formerly used against cigarettes have fallen by the wayside. They probably will not stunt growth, lead to drug addiction and other vices. It is certainly an exaggeration to call them coffin nails.

Nicotine is a deadly poison, just as grandmother said, but who ever heard of a smoker getting enough of it to keel over?

The old arguments, however, have been replaced by others which rest on a more solid foundation. It seems to be established that nicotine absorbed in smoking is an aggravating and possibly a causative factor in thromboangiitis obliterans, a painful affliction of blood vessels in the extremities which may necessitate amputations. It may be a factor in heart trouble.

And evidence is accumulating that cigarette tars—not nicotine this time—are a factor in the increase of lung cancer. Dr. Cornelius P. Rhoads, cancer authority, so testified before a congressional subcommittee. The chemicals responsible, he said, are not present in cigar and pipe smoke.

Research scientists are now working on the cigarette tar chemicals blamed for lung cancer, hoping to eliminate them. It may yet be possible to make cigarettes as harmless as grandmother insisted they weren't.

In And Out Of College

One of the most interesting conclusions reached by the National Manpower Council, a citizens' survey group which President Eisenhower helped organize when he was head of Columbia University, is that not half the young Americans go to college who are intellectually equipped for it.

A natural concern of the Manpower Commission is with the "serious consequences" to the nation's defense program by the shortage of engineers and scientists. They are in great need at present, and likely to be for years to come.

Because manpower is its chief objective, in the sense of developing specialists required in a period of tension, the commission does not devote much consideration to the well-rounded education to which most privately maintained universities and colleges are devoted. It does, however, advocate creation of a special Presidential commission "to review the impact of governmental research and development contracts" upon these institutions.

This the nation ought to know about, if only because of the fear of some leading educators that the effect of federal funds tends, if only by indirection, to restrain freedom of teaching.

Time Is Fleeting

The eighth anniversary of the ending of World War II in Europe passed with scarcely a mention in the press, and the ending of the conflict with the surrender of Japan came four months later. To many persons it seems as if those events could not have occurred that long ago. To others, World War II seems like a far off bad dream.

Certainly few persons in those days in 1945 dreamed that eight years later the United States would be three years at war with the Reds in Korea, with a casualty toll of more than 130,000.

Perhaps it is fortunate that it is not given to man to read the future with any degree of accuracy. If it were possible to foresee events of the next decade, a pall of pessimism might descend upon the land. Or the opposite could be true.

The fact that World War II, which ended in joyous relief eight years ago, brought more problems than solutions in its wake, does not necessarily signify that they are insoluble. Perhaps the world is nearer a solution to its most vexing problems than men dare hope. As the last eight years have been a time of tribulation, perhaps the next decade will bring the glad tidings for which the world yearns.

Tetanus Can Be Licked

Protective "shots" against lockjaw (tetanus) have paid dividends in human lives. In World War II there were only four cases among the 5 million per-personnel of the United States navy. Two died and one of these deaths resulted from tetanus following an infected ingrown toe nail. In the war years there were 2,574 deaths among nonimmunized civilians in the United States. More than 80 cases were reported among nonvaccinated German ground forces who participated in the Normandy invasion, whereas there was none among the mimunized Luftwaffe (air force).

Tetanus, while not common, is serious because it is difficult to treat after taking hold. The disease can be prevented, hence all children, farmers, artisans, soldiers, and sailors should be given the benefit of protection. The same can be said of college students and athletes. The needs here are not as great as in the past when playing fields were cared for by horse drawn mowing machinery. This work is now done by tractors or power lawnmakers.

Dr. T. B. Quigley collected 15 to 20 samples of dirt from playing fields in Boston and found them free of tetanus spores. This is in contrast to a note he saw in Time magazine to the effect that the playing fields at Eton are heavily infested. This means that every time an athlete on the field is taminated with dirt he is a likely candidate for lockjaw.

The tetanus organism is harmless so long as it lives within the intestinal tract of warmblooded animals. When expelled in the excreta, however, the soil becomes contaminated and can do immeasurable harm to humans. The causative agent is able to survive because of a surrounding coating that protects the organism against the elements, enabling it to live for years on the ground and in dust. No wonder a Baltimore survey showed a 17 per cent occurrence of tetanus spores on the pavement. Furthermore, germs have been carried by duststorms to more distant areas. This is why lockjaw has been reported after minor mishaps and unusual wounds. Cases have been traced to bee stings, insect bites, burns, hypodermic injections, embedded splinters, and puncture wounds on the foot from nails. The deeper the injury, the greater the chance because tetanus organisms thrive under the skin where there is no oxygen. This is why compound fractures, bullet wounds, and firecracker injuries are so dangerous.

The germ itself is not as serious as the poison it produces. While the bacilli multiply in the contaminated tissues they manufacture a toxin that passes into the blood and is carried to the nervous system. Five to 10 days later, symptoms appear, usually muscle cramps and spasms of the limbs followed by stiffness of the jaws, restlessness, irritability, and difficulty in swallowing. As the disease progresses, rigidity of the muscles of the neck and back sets in and the jaws become so stiff the victim is unable to open his mouth, especially when attempting to eat or drink (lockjaw). Many display the typical sardonic, or sneering smile that results from spasms of the facial muscles together with involuntary raising of the eyebrows.

Unless treatment is started the patient goes from bad to worse. A slight stimulous such as jarring the bed, noise, or a gust of wind will precipitate a powerful convulsion. The best preventive is tetanus antitoxin or toxoid. Once the disease develops, heroic measures are required to counteract the effect of the deadly toxins. Antitoxin is injected under the skin, into the veins, and directly into the spinal cord. Drugs are administered to relieve spasms and convulsions.

Mrs. Eisenhower Calls Halt On Womens' Club Teas; Unappreciative DAR's Soured Mamie; Pan American Airways Still Reaches Inside White House

WASHINGTON — Here's the untold story behind Mamie Eisenhower's recent "failure" to hold a White House reception honoring delegates to the 62nd annual convention of the General Federation of Womens' Clubs.

Publicly, the White House explained that the Federation's request had arrived "too late" to fit into Mamie's schedule. Inside story, however, is that the First Lady had such an "experience" when she was hostess to the Daughters of the American Revolution that she has ruled out future White House receptions for visiting club women.

Earlier this spring, when delegates to the DAR descended on Washington, Mamie did her best to be hospitable. She invited the 2,000 daughters to the White House and, assisted by Mrs. Richard Nixon and several cabinet wives, endured the grueling routine of receiving her long line of guests with a smile and a handshake.

Occasionally, however, the First Lady left her post on the receiving line to get a few moments' rest. And as a result, some of the DAR delegates missed an introduction to Mrs. Eisenhower.

The following day, to the First Lady's astonishment, several of the daughters were quoted in the press as being "indignant" at not seeing her.

Said one: "I didn't stand in line for two hours just to shake a cabinet wife's hand!" Others complained about the long wait and about the absence of refreshments.

For the exhausted First Lady, these thankless comments were the last straw. She resolved then and there to hold no more White House receptions for large delegations of clubwomen.

Womens' Clubs Arrive

Last week the General Federation of Womens' Clubs arrived in Washington. Many of their members had been vigorous campaigners for Ike; all of them wanted to attend a White House reception.

Some weeks earlier, Mrs. Oscar Ahlgren of Indiana, Federation president, asked Mary Jane McCaffree, Mamie's secretary, if the First Lady would be kind enough to give a tea for the Federation members.

The White House reply was polite, but firm. The answer was "no." Mention was made of the recent "unpleasant experience" with the DAR.

Mrs. Ahlgren was surprised at the turndown but decided to try another approach. She presented the problem to Bertha Adkins, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, asked her to intercede at the White House.

Mrs. Adkins shortly replied with "regret" that she couldn't arrange for the tea, though she'd tried.

Undaunted, the Federation ladies then asked Ivy Baker Priest, new treasurer of the United States, to lend a hand in the problem. She, too, reported failure.

Next, the determined clubwomen made an appeal to cabinet member Oveta Culp Hobby. Again the answer came back, "sorry, did my best, but I couldn't make the arrangements."

The Federation leaders were getting frantic. They appealed to former President Dorothy Houghton for help. Mrs. Houghton, a strong Eisenhower booster, has been named to a top post in the Mutual Security Administration, and the anxious ladies considered her their trump card. Mrs. Houghton tried but failed to arrange the White House tea.

Finally, in desperation, Federation members swarmed up to Capitol Hill and put the heat on Republican Senators. Under a continuing barrage of pressure, the White House made a strategic retreat—but held its lines intact.

Federation officials were informed that it had been arranged for their members to tour through the White House in groups. No tea, no reception, no Mamie—just a typical tourist tour.

To quiet the mounting storm of protest Mrs. Eisenhower consented to put in a brief appearance at one of the Federation's sessions in Constitution Hall. That wasn't exactly like having tea with Mamie in the White House, but the Federation felt it was better than nothing—and they came very close to getting nothing.

Airline Politics

One of the lobbying miracles of the Truman Administration was the way Pan American Airways was able to reach right into the White House and get what it wanted from a Democratic administration—though Pan American officials dumped all sorts of money into Republican campaign chests.

Today, however, Pan American seems equally able to reach into the White House under Eisenhower.

Pan American wire-pullers—who once tapped the wires of TWA competitor Howard Hughes—have just blocked a Civil Aeronautics Board recommendation regarding Latin-American routes which Pan Am didn't like. They have also reached into the White House to block a move by Congress to give the public the true facts on airmail subsidies.

Latest Pan Am victory was when the CAB ruled that Pan American would have to work with National

Behind The Sweatshop Curtain

If all labor were equally paid for the same kind of work in all industrial countries, that is, if there were an economic "One World," there would be no need of any kind of protective tariff anywhere. If all currencies were stabilized so that transfer of goods could not be affected by the exchange of monies, there would be no need for any kind of a protective tariff. And to make one further point, if no governments subsidized their industries, so that goods might be dumped into particular countries for political objectives, there would be no need of a protective tariff in any country on earth.

Unfortunately none of these postulates stands up against the facts, particularly against the fact that, by American standards, all labor in Europe is sweated and in Asia is so cheap as to be almost unpaid. And to that must be added the existence of slave labor. Slave labor probably also is employed in Soviet China, which is now being industrialized.

Those who are advocating low tariffs or even free trade for the United States do not quite tell the truth. They constantly emphasize the importance of foreign trade to stabilize our own economy and to protect Great Britain from collapse or from being forced to trade with Soviet Russia and Soviet China. That is so small a part of the story that it is the least important part.

What is actually happening is that considerable American capital has been exported to European countries under ECA and by other means for the rebuilding of European industries. Also there are a number of American firms which have been establishing branches all over the world, manufacturing various commodities, some of which these Americans hope to export to the United States. Some American banks export capital from the United States to foreign countries with the hope of manufacturing goods for export to the United States.

This really involves a flight of American capital from the United States with the object of manufacturing goods, made by foreign sweated labor, at low wage levels, to compete with American labor, receiving high wages and high fringe benefits. I have not yet studied the relationship of this process of earning profits to taxes. That is a rather involved matter which will take a great deal of study.

A limited number of American firms can build world-wide economic empires. Most American businesses possess neither the capital nor the experience to engage in this type of enterprise.

Therefore, what is called small business in the United States continues to demand a protective tariff, while big business goes so far as to favor free trade. It was never before true in this country that big business favored free trade. Most American industries were built up by the protective tariff, which is also largely responsible for high wages and the high standard of living in this country. The change of attitude has come so suddenly that few understand the real reason until the entire subject is related to export capital and to the flight of some phases of American industry from American Labor.

This needs to be studied in all its phases to find a full explanation of the process and to relate it not only to the tariff, but to wage scale and to the American standard of living. The "flight from American labor" may be justified on economic grounds. Already there are signs that Western Germany and Japan are pushing into markets which, after the war, some Americans had hoped would be developed for American goods.

Sweated labor, producing the same commodities, will always undersell highly paid labor — particularly if the savings of mass production are practiced in both the cheap labor and high-priced labor countries. When American capital is exported, American management is also exported.

This is not a subject for high pressure propaganda. It is one that needs to be investigated fully and honestly. It requires a statistical approach by an impartial body which seeks facts and will make the facts known in the national interest. I hit upon it because of my keen interest in the surprisingly sudden support of free trade by American big industry, which has always labored valiantly for a protective tariff. There must be a reason for the changed attitude.

All The Truce Troubles

WASHINGTON

The State Department and the Pentagon are in one of their recurrent moods of optimism about the Korean truce talks. There are various little indications that the most recent U. N. truce offer is being seriously considered by the enemy. For instance, Gen. Nam Il has asked for clarification of a number of points of detail, which at least means that the offer is being carefully studied.

Meanwhile, there is a good deal more than meets the eye in all the arguments about the way the truce negotiations are being conducted. The differences of view about our Korean truce policy here in Washington are, on the whole, more significant than the differences between Washington and London.

The most serious of these Washington differences have been aired behind closed doors, at the White House and State Department. Only a general rumble of debate, a confused sound of disagreement, has reached the public. So it may be well to set down what the real issues are.

Knowland's Stand Is Firm

The champion of the minority viewpoint is Sen. William F. Knowland of California, a grave and solid man whose outlook has been much misrepresented. Sen. Knowland has repeatedly led deputations of protest, at the White House and the State Department, against the current conduct of the truce negotiations. Knowland has his own truce terms, which are as follows:

First, he would not permit any "whittling away" of our stand against forcible repatriation of prisoners of war.

Second, he would insist on the unification of Korea.

Third, he would insist further on a promise from the Chinese Communists to give no more aid or comfort to the neighboring Communist movement in Indo-China, Burma and elsewhere.

The important thing to note about the Knowland terms is that they represent, not a truce, but a victory. The California Senator does not desire a mere agreement to stop the fighting in the Far East. He wants a permanent Far Eastern settlement—which can only be imposed by force of arms.

Faces Facts Honestly

The difference between the California Senator and many of the other Asia-minded Republicans is that he is quite honest enough to face the real implications of his viewpoint. Unlike most of his colleagues, he does not think that we can get the terms he wants to get by some inexpensive miracle or other. He bitterly opposes the British viewpoint, for instance. But he does not say that if the British just agreed with him, the common blast of Anglo-American trumpets would cause the walls of Peking to fall, like the walls of Jericho.

On the contrary, Knowland is well aware that if we want victory, we have got to fight for it. He is equally aware that fighting for it will be expensive and risky. He simply thinks that victory will be worth the heavy price that it may cost. And this is because he further believes—and with good reason—that a mere cease fire and continuation of the Far Eastern status quo must lead to worse fighting later on.

Against the Knowland view must be weighed the view of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, that victory in the Far East is presently unattainable, for all practical purposes. Since the President and Secretary of State do not believe that the Far Eastern war can be finally won without unacceptable risks and sacrifices, they regard the ending of the fighting in Korea as a worthy goal in itself. And since they really do want a truce instead of a victory, they have resisted laying down truce conditions which the enemy is certain to refuse.

Truce vs. Victory

The spread between those who want a truce and those who want a victory has been the real cause of the repeated rumpuses here. The deputations that Sen. Knowland has led to the State Department; the now withdrawn "U. N. rider" on the State Department's appropriations bill; the protest against admission of Communist China to the U. N.—all these have been maneuvers of the party that wants a victory instead of a truce.

As was shown in the disputes of Gen. James Van Fleet, the outgoing Chiefs of Staff have been among the leaders of the school that hold we should content ourselves with a mere cessation of the fighting. Admiral Arthur Radford, on the other hand, is a strong believer in the viewpoint of Sen. Knowland; and he is likely to carry the new Chiefs of Staff with him. For this and other reasons, it is a fair bet that the present truce negotiations in a sense represent a last chance. If there is another breakdown, another failure to agree, the drive to fight the Far Eastern war to a victorious finish is distinctly likely to over-power the objections of the President and the other Administration leaders who are now insisting on a middle course.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 3—Judging by letters and comments from different parts of the country, including some press and radio interpretations, there are many persons in America who do not know what the constitution of the United States really provides concerning the conduct of foreign affairs. Erroneous concepts seem to prevail that the President is a kind of dictator or absolute monarch in this field and that the Congress has no right to question but must serve only as a rubber stamp to validate any action he may decide to take with reference to foreign nations.

Such mistaken impressions have been given wide currency in connection with the action last week of the Senate appropriations committee, which, by a vote of 20 to 4, added a provision to the State Department's appropriation bill declaring that no funds shall be furnished for the support of the United Nations organization if Red China is admitted to the Security Council.

The Senate committee may have been unwise in this step or its action may have been premature or it may even have been a hasty prejudgment of what the UN may do about Red China, but it is no infringement on the powers of the executive nor is it outside the prerogatives of Congress to refuse to appropriate money for an international purpose if it so desires.

Essentially Correct

In his criticism of the American constitution, Clement Attlee, former prime minister of Great Britain, was essentially right—though it was indiscreet for him to say what he did at the moment—when he declared that, in any meeting with Malenkov, the American President would have no authority to commit this country to such undertakings as might be agreed upon by the British and French premiers. For that is a fundamental difference between America's system of government and the parliamentary system prevailing in Britain and France. Many persons in this country, including this correspondent, have urged that the parliamentary system, which works so well in Canada, be adopted by the United States so that the executive and the legislative would stand or fall together in elections which could be called at any time there was a governmental disagreement. This, of course, would require a change in the constitution, and Mr. Attlee may be forgiven for an academic discussion on the merits of the American system, because he is so well sold on his own system.

But what Mr. Attlee can't be forgiven is his proposal that Red China be admitted to the UN as soon as an armistice is signed in Korea. It was this—to which Prime Minister Churchill had nodded his agreement—that touched off for a brief time a serious cleavage between the President and Congress, now happily reconciled. Something of the same kind happened when President Wilson went to Paris to help establish the League of Nations. In the weeks just after the armistice of November 11, 1918, which ended World War I, a round-robin statement signed by a majority of the Senate—Republicans and Democrats — warned the President that, if he signed the treaty at Paris without certain reservations, the Senate would not ratify. And in the end the Senate did block the ratification of a treaty which the President signed, and the whole course of history was changed. The Senate was wrong in its view of world policy, but it was well within its constitutional rights in what it did.

Procedural Question

There are some on Capitol Hill who think the so-called "rider" which the Senate committee adopted by such an overwhelming vote was unnecessary anyway, because the President could direct our representative at the UN Security Council to exercise a veto against admitting Red China. But back of this is a legal controversy as to whether the acceptance or rejection of credentials to determine which government can take the seat of a country like China, already a member of the UN, is a "procedural question" or subject to veto. Former Secretary of State Acheson took the view it was "procedural" and could be decided by a majority on the council. Though an argument can be made that the charter calls for a seat for "The Republic Of China" and that a Communist-controlled government is not a republic, members of Congress are playing it safe by issuing their warning to both the President and our Allies concerning the American attitude toward the admission of Red China. It is an academic question really because Congress could act later, if and when it became clear that such admission was imminent.

President Eisenhower's statement that he would approve an amendment to the pending appropriation bill by Congress, expressing American opposition to the admission of Red China—eliminating all reference to a reprisal, such as withholding funds if the UN does admit Red China—is a satisfactory solution and notifies the Free World of America's attitude—the Executive and Legislative—against the admission of Red China to the UN at least as long as the Communist regime in Peiping is allied with Moscow.

Across The Pole

Years ago, when Kipling wrote "The Night Mail," the tale of a transoceanic flight, he was writing what would now be dubbed science fiction. As it turned out, human flight, in either airplane or dirigible, had far greater possibilities than even the imaginative Kipling dreamed. Certainly it never occurred to him to predict commercial flights from Europe to the Far East via the North Pole.

Yet the first such flight has been accomplished. Transpolar flight, as such, is not, of course, new. But enterprising Scandinavian Airlines decided to transport from Oslo to Tokyo, via the North Polar region, 41 workers assigned to the Norwegian field hospital in Korea. The flight, via Thule, Greenland, Anchorage, Alaska and the Aleutians, was on a commercial basis.

Defense authorities have long been concerned with the possibilities of direct flight, in time of war, between the Soviet Union and the North American continent, via the Arctic. Maps drawn on a polar projection make evident, to the least technical-minded civilian, how direct is this route.

Whether the commercial trail that Scandinavian Airlines has blazed across the Polar region will come into wide use remains to be demonstrated. There was a time when commercial flight across the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, now a commonplace, was an experience of which the traveler boasted. Perhaps Polar flights will become no less routine.

Was Grandmother Wrong?

Most of the arguments grandmother formerly used against cigarettes have fallen by the wayside. They probably will not stunt growth, lead to drug addiction and other vices. It is certainly an exaggeration to call them coffin nails.

Nicotine is a deadly poison, just as grandmother said, but who ever heard of a smoker getting enough of it to keel over?

The old arguments, however, have been replaced by others which rest on a more solid foundation. It seems to be established that nicotine absorbed in smoking is an aggravating and possibly a causative factor in thromboangiitis obliterans, a painful affliction of blood vessels in the extremities which may necessitate amputations. It may be a factor in heart trouble.

And evidence is accumulating that cigarette tars—not nicotine this time—are a factor in the increase of lung cancer. Dr. Cornelius P. Rhoads, cancer authority, so testified before a congressional subcommittee. The chemicals responsible, he said, are not present in cigar and pipe smoke.

Research scientists are now working on the cigarette tar chemicals blamed for lung cancer, hoping to eliminate them. It may yet be possible to make cigarettes as harmless as grandmother insisted they weren't.

In And Out Of College

One of the most interesting conclusions reached by the National Manpower Council, a citizens' survey group which President Eisenhower helped organize when he was head of Columbia University, is that not half the young Americans go to college who are intellectually equipped for it.

A natural concern of the Manpower Commission is with the "serious consequences" to the nation's defense program by the shortage of engineers and scientists. They are in great need at present, and likely to be for years to come.

Because manpower is its chief objective, in the sense of developing specialists required in a period of tension, the commission does not devote much consideration to the well-rounded education to which most privately maintained universities and colleges are devoted. It does, however, advocate creation of a special Presidential commission "to review the impact of governmental research and development contracts" upon these institutions.

This the nation ought to know about, if only because of the fear of some leading educators that the effect of federal funds tends, if only by indirection, to restrain freedom of teaching.

Time Is Fleeting

The eighth anniversary of the ending of World War II in Europe passed with scarcely a mention in the press, and the ending of the conflict with the surrender of Japan came four months later. To many persons it seems as if those events could not have occurred that long ago. To others, World War II seems like a far off bad dream.

Certainly few persons in those days in 1945 dreamed that eight years later the United States would be three years at war with the Reds in Korea, with a casualty toll of more than 130,000.

Perhaps it is fortunate that it is not given to man to read the future with any degree of accuracy. If it were possible to foresee events of the next decade, a pall of pessimism might descend upon the land. Or the opposite could be true.

The fact that World War II, which ended in joyous relief eight years ago, brought more problems than solutions in its wake, does not necessarily signify that they are insoluble. Perhaps the world is nearer a solution to its most vexing problems than men dare hope. As the last eight years have been a time of tribulation, perhaps the next decade will bring the glad tidings for which the world yearns.

Occasionally, however, the First Lady left her post on the receiving line to get a few moments' rest. And as a result, some of the DAR delegates missed an introduction to Mrs. Eisenhower.

The following day, to the First Lady's astonishment, several of the daughters were quoted in the press as being "indignant" at not seeing her.

Said one: "I didn't stand in line for two hours just to shake a cabinet wife's hand!" Others complained about the long wait and about the absence of refreshments.

For the exhausted First Lady, these thankless comments were the last straw. She resolved then and there to hold no more White House receptions for large delegations of clubwomen.

Womens' Clubs Arrive

Last week the General Federation of Womens' Clubs arrived in Washington. Many of their members had been vigorous campaigners for Ike; all of them wanted to attend a White House reception.

Some weeks earlier, Mrs. Oscar Ahlgren of Indiana, Federation president, asked Mary Jane McCaffree, Mamie's secretary, if the First Lady would be kind enough to give a tea for the Federation members.

The White House reply was polite, but firm. The answer was "no." Mention was made of the recent "unpleasant experience" with the DAR.

Mrs. Ahlgren was surprised at the turndown but decided to try another approach. She presented the problem to Bertha Adkins, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, asked her to intercede at the White House.

Mrs. Adkins shortly replied with "regret" that she couldn't arrange for the tea, though she'd tried.

Undaunted, the Federation ladies then asked Ivy Baker Priest, new treasurer of the United States, to lend a hand in the problem. She, too, reported failure.

Next, the determined clubwomen made an appeal to cabinet member Oveta Culp Hobby. Again the answer came back, "sorry, did my best, but I couldn't make the arrangements."

The Federation leaders were getting frantic. They appealed to former President Dorothy Houghton for help. Mrs. Houghton, a strong Eisenhower booster, has been named to a top post in the Mutual Security Administration, and the anxious ladies considered her their trump card. Mrs. Houghton tried but failed to arrange the White House tea.

Finally, in desperation, Federation members swarmed up to Capitol Hill and put the heat on Republican Senators. Under a continuing barrage of pressure, the White House made a strategic retreat—but held its lines intact.

Federation officials were informed that it had been arranged for their members to tour through the White House in groups. No tea, no reception, no Mamie—just a typical tourist tour.

To quiet the mounting storm of protest Mrs. Eisenhower consented to put in a brief appearance at one of the Federation's sessions in Constitution Hall. That wasn't exactly like having tea with Mamie in the White House, but the Federation felt it was better than nothing—and they came very close to getting nothing.

Airline Politics

One of the lobbying miracles of the Truman Administration was the way Pan American Airways was able to reach right into the White House and get what it wanted from a Democratic administration—though Pan American officials dumped all sorts of money into Republican campaign chests.

Today, however, Pan American seems equally able to reach into the White House under Eisenhower.

Pan American wire-pullers—who once tapped the wires of TWA competitor Howard Hughes—have just blocked a Civil Aeronautics Board recommendation regarding Latin-American routes which Pan Am didn't like. They have also reached into the White House to block a move by Congress to give the public the true facts on airmail subsidies.

Latest Pan Am victory was when the CAB ruled that Pan American would have to work with National

Behind The Sweatshop Curtain

If all labor were equally paid for the same kind of work in all industrial countries, that is, if there were an economic "One World," there would be no need of any kind of protective tariff anywhere. If all currencies were stabilized so that transfer of goods could not be affected by the exchange of monies, there would be no need for any kind of a protective tariff. And to make one further point, if no governments subsidized their industries, so that goods might be dumped into particular countries for political objectives, there would be no need of a protective tariff in any country on earth.

Unfortunately none of these postulates stands up against the facts, particularly against the fact that, by American standards, all labor in Europe is sweated and in Asia is so cheap as to be almost unpaid. And to that must be added the existence of slave labor. Slave labor probably also is employed in Soviet China, which is now being industrialized.

Those who are advocating low tariffs or even free trade for the United States do not quite tell the truth. They constantly emphasize the importance of foreign trade to stabilize our own economy and to protect Great Britain from collapse or from being forced to trade with Soviet Russia and Soviet China. That is so small a part of the story that it is the least important part.

What is actually happening is that considerable American capital has been exported to European countries under ECA and by other means for the rebuilding of European industries. Also there are a number of American firms which have been establishing branches all over the world, manufacturing various commodities, some of which these Americans hope to export to the United States. Some American banks export capital from the United States to foreign countries with the hope of manufacturing goods for export to the United States.

This really involves a flight of American capital from the United States with the object of manufacturing goods, made by foreign sweated labor, at low wage levels, to compete with American labor, receiving high wages and high fringe benefits. I have not yet studied the relationship of this process of earning profits to taxes. That is a rather involved matter which will take a great deal of study.

A limited number of American firms can build world-wide economic empires. Most American businesses possess neither the capital nor the experience to engage in this type of enterprise.

Therefore, what is called small business in the United States continues to demand a protective tariff, while big business goes so far as to favor free trade. It was never before true in this country that big business favored free trade. Most American industries were built up by the protective tariff, which is also largely responsible for high wages and the high standard of living in this country. The change of attitude has come so suddenly that few understand the real reason until the entire subject is related to export capital and to the flight of some phases of American industry from American Labor.

This needs to be studied in all its phases to find a full explanation of the process and to relate it not only to the tariff, but to wage scale and to the American standard of living. The "flight from American labor" may be justified on economic grounds. Already there are signs that Western Germany and Japan are pushing into markets which, after the war, some Americans had hoped would be developed for American goods.

Sweated labor, producing the same commodities, will always undersell highly paid labor — particularly if the savings of mass production are practiced in both the cheap labor and high-priced labor countries. When American capital is exported, American management is also exported.

This is not a subject for high pressure propaganda. It is one that needs to be investigated fully and honestly. It requires a statistical approach by an impartial body which seeks facts and will make the facts known in the national interest. I hit upon it because of my keen interest in the surprisingly sudden support of free trade by American big industry, which has always labored valiantly for a protective tariff. There must be a reason for the changed attitude.

All The Truce Troubles

WASHINGTON

The State Department and the Pentagon are in one of their recurrent moods of optimism about the Korean truce talks. There are various little indications that the most recent U. N. truce offer is being seriously considered by the enemy. For instance, Gen. Nam II has asked for clarification of a number of points of detail, which at least means that the offer is being carefully studied.

Meanwhile, there is a good deal more than meets the eye in all the arguments about the way the truce negotiations are being conducted. The differences of view about our Korean truce policy here in Washington are, on the whole, more significant than the differences between Washington and London.

The most serious of these Washington differences have been aired behind closed doors, at the White House and State Department. Only a general rumble of debate, a confused sound of disagreement, has reached the public. So it may be well to set down what the real issues are.

Knowland's Stand Is Firm

The champion of the minority viewpoint is Sen. William F. Knowland of California, a grave and solid man whose outlook has been much misrepresented. Sen. Knowland has repeatedly led deputations of protest, at the White House and the State Department, against the current conduct of the truce negotiations. Knowland has his own truce terms, which are as follows:

First, he would not permit any "whittling away" of our stand against forcible repatriation of prisoners of war.

Second, he would insist on the unification of Korea.

Third, he would insist further on a promise from the Chinese Communists to give no more aid or comfort to the neighboring Communist movement in Indo-China, Burma and elsewhere.

The important thing to note about the Knowland terms is that they represent, not a truce, but a victory. The California Senator does not desire a mere agreement to stop the fighting in the Far East. He wants a permanent Far Eastern settlement—which can only be imposed by force of arms.

Faces Facts Honestly

The difference between the California Senator and many of the other Asia-minded Republicans is that he is quite honest enough to face the real implications of his viewpoint. Unlike most of his colleagues, he does not think that we can get the terms he wants to get by some inexpensive miracle or other. He bitterly opposes the British viewpoint, for instance. But he does not say that if the British just agreed with him, the common blast of Anglo-American trumpets would cause the walls of Peking to fall, like the walls of Jericho.

On the contrary, Knowland is well aware that if we want victory, we have got to fight for it. He is equally aware that fighting for it will be expensive and risky. He simply thinks that victory will be worth the heavy price that it may cost. And this is because he further believes—and with good reason—that a mere cease fire and continuation of the Far Eastern status quo must lead to worse fighting later on.

Against the Knowland view must be weighed the view of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, that victory in the Far East is presently unattainable, for all practical purposes. Since the President and Secretary of State do not believe that the Far Eastern war can be finally won without unacceptable risks and sacrifices, they regard the ending of the fighting in Korea as a worthy goal in itself. And since they really do want a truce instead of a victory, they have resisted laying down truce conditions which the enemy is certain to refuse.

Truce vs. Victory

The spread between those who want a truce and those who want a victory has been the real cause of the repeated rumpuses here. The deputations that Sen. Knowland has led to the State Department; the now withdrawn "U. N. rider" on the State Department's appropriations bill; the protest against admission of Communist China to the U. N.—all these have been maneuvers of the party that wants a victory instead of a truce.

As was shown in the disputes of Gen. James Van Fleet, the outgoing Chiefs of Staff have been among the leaders of the school that hold we should content ourselves with a mere cessation of the fighting. Admiral Arthur Radford, on the other hand, is a strong believer in the viewpoint of Sen. Knowland; and he is likely to carry the new Chiefs of Staff with him. For this and other reasons, it is a fair bet that the present truce negotiations in a sense represent a last chance. If there is another breakdown, another failure to agree, the drive to fight the Far Eastern war to a victorious finish is distinctly likely to over-power the objections of the President and the other Administration leaders who are now insisting on a middle course.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 3—Judging by letters and comments from different parts of the country, including some press and radio interpretations, there are many persons in America who do not know what the constitution of the United States really provides concerning the conduct of foreign affairs. Erroneous concepts seem to prevail that the President is a kind of dictator or absolute monarch in this field and that the Congress has no right to question but must serve only as a rubber stamp to validate any action he may decide to take with reference to foreign nations.

Such mistaken impressions have been given wide currency in connection with the action last week of the Senate appropriations committee, which, by a vote of 20 to 4, added a provision to the State Department's appropriation bill declaring that no funds shall be furnished for the support of the United Nations organization if Red China is admitted to the Security Council.

The Senate committee may have been unwise in this step or its action may have been premature or it may even have been a hasty prejudgment of what the UN may do about Red China, but it is no infringement on the powers of the executive nor is it outside the prerogatives of Congress to refuse to appropriate money for an international purpose if it so desires.

Essentially Correct

In his criticism of the American constitution, Clement Attlee, former prime minister of Great Britain, was essentially right—though it was indiscreet for him to say what he did at the moment—when he declared that, in any meeting with Malenkov, the American President would have no authority to commit this country to such undertakings as might be agreed upon by the British and French premiers. For that is a fundamental difference between America's system of government and the parliamentary system prevailing in Britain and France. Many persons in this country, including this correspondent, have urged that the parliamentary system, which works so well in Canada, be adopted by the United States so that the executive and the legislative would stand or fall together in elections which could be called at any time there was a governmental disagreement. This, of course, would require a change in the constitution, and Mr. Attlee may be forgiven for an academic discussion on the merits of the American system, because he is so well sold on his own system.

But what Mr. Attlee can't be forgiven is his proposal that Red China be admitted to the UN as soon as an armistice is signed in Korea. It was this—to which Prime Minister Churchill had nodded his agreement—that touched off for a brief time a serious cleavage between the President and Congress, now happily reconciled. Something of the same kind happened when President Wilson went to Paris to help establish the League of Nations. In the weeks just after the armistice of November 11, 1918, which ended World War I, a round-robin statement signed by a majority of the Senate—Republicans and Democrats — warned the President that, if he signed the treaty at Paris without certain reservations, the Senate would not ratify. And in the end the Senate did block the ratification of a treaty which the President signed, and the whole course of history was changed. The Senate was wrong in its view of world policy, but it was well within its constitutional rights in what it did.

Procedural Question

There are some on Capitol Hill who think the so-called "rider" which the Senate committee adopted by such an overwhelming vote was unnecessary anyway, because the President could direct our representative at the UN Security Council to exercise a veto against admitting Red China. But back of this is a legal controversy as to whether the acceptance or rejection of credentials to determine which government can take the seat of a country like China, already a member of the UN, is a "procedural question" or subject to veto. Former Secretary of State Acheson took the view it was "procedural" and could be decided by a majority on the council. Though an argument can be made that the charter calls for a seat for "The Republic Of China" and that a Communist-controlled government is not a republic, members of Congress are playing it safe by issuing their warning to both the President and our Allies concerning the American attitude toward the admission of Red China. It is an academic question really because Congress could act later, if and when it became clear that such admission was imminent.

President Eisenhower's statement that he would approve an amendment to the pending appropriation bill by Congress, expressing American opposition to the admission of Red China—eliminating all reference to a reprisal, such as withholding funds if the UN does admit Red China—is a satisfactory solution and notifies the Free World of America's attitude—the Executive and Legislative—against the admission of Red China to the UN at least as long as the Communist regime in Peiping is allied with Moscow.

Small Locusts Make Big Noise

These are a couple of the thousands of 17-year locusts that have been making a big noise in various parts of Allegany County and surrounding area. These locusts, or periodical cicadas, began emerging about the middle of May and are expected to disappear about the end of June. The egg slits of the locusts may prove very disastrous to newly-planted orchards or may reduce the crop in bearing orchards materially next year. The male locusts are the only ones that sing.

YMCA Swim Program Slated June 12 To 29

The Central YMCA's eighth annual learn-to-swim program will be conducted in the Y Pool June 12 to June 29, John M. Robb, chairman of the YMCA Physical Education Committee, announced yesterday.

Robb said boys and girls from nine to 11 years of age will be eligible for the course which is free to members and non-members of the Y.

Registration cards are available at the YMCA. Prospective participants are urged to pick up their registration card as soon as possible, Robb said. The cards must be returned to the Y, Robb said, not later than June 11, properly signed by parents. No late starters, he continued, will be permitted to take the course.

The regular YMCA swimming instructors, James E. Kelley Jr., aquatic director, and Lance Statler, swimming assistant, will be in charge of instruction for the program. They will be assisted by Mrs. Helen McGuire.

Robb pointed out that all those desiring to take part in the learn-to-swim program must attend the first meeting on Friday, June 12, at 3 p. m. for instruction and assignment in classes.

Starting Monday, June 15, swimming classes will be held from 5:30 p. m. to 7:15 p. m. in the Y pool. The pool contains 65,000 gallons of city water that is filtered three times daily. Participants will be divided into three classes according to geographical location in the community.

Class 1 will meet from 5:30 to 6 p. m.; Class 2 from 6:05 to 6:35, and Class 3 from 6:40 to 7:10. An additional class will be formed after the program begins for those participants who rapidly advance, Robb said.

At the conclusion of the program, a "Parents Night" will be held on Monday, June 29, during which a demonstration of teaching methods used during the program will be given as well as an exhibition by participants who learned to swim. "Learn-to-Swim" buttons will be awarded those who pass the course.

Methodists Plan World Peace Seminar

The Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church will hold one of its five world peace seminars next fall in Cumberland, it was reported at the annual session of the conference being held in Westminster.

The conference's Committee on World Peace has announced seminars will be sponsored here and in Hagerstown, Frederick, Baltimore and Washington.

The committee urges ministers and laymen to keep informed about various peace movements- "Union Now, Atlantic Union, United World Federalists, and others," but said this did not constitute an endorsement of any of them.

Recommends Groups

The committee recommended there should be world peace committees in each of the six districts of the Baltimore conference—three in Baltimore, two in Washington and one in Western Maryland.

The conference opened yesterday with a communion service and a memorial service for ministers and lay members who died since last June.

The group was then organized by its presiding officer, Bishop G. Bromly Oxnam, resident bishop of Washington. The Baltimore Conference includes parishes in Washington, Maryland west of Chesapeake Bay and nearby points in West Virginia.

Report Scheduled

The Social Projects Commission of the conference has prepared a report to be submitted today which urges the churchmen to "do something about" problems of race relations, Communism, marriage and divorce, crime and morals. It adds:

"(The church ought to be speaking out on them and formulating programs and policies designed to interpret them from a Christian viewpoint and to guide our people in their attitudes."

Another group, the conference Committee on World Peace, said the church should exert its influence against "atheism, communism, fascism, and all ideologies dangerous to the common good."

On the subject of segregation the churchmen said:

"The Christian church cannot speak to the secular world on the evils of racial segregation and discrimination so long as it remains among the chief sinners. The presence of these evils within the church places the church in the unenviable position of proving ammunition for communism's ideological guns."

The four-day session will conclude Sunday with announcement of ministerial changes.

A Story of the Old South... and Old Discovery

And it came to pass that two distillers, a Marylander and a Kentucky Colonel, fell out over the merits of their whiskies. Small Locusts Make Big Noise

These are a couple of the thousands of 17-year locusts that have been making a big noise in various parts of Allegany County and surrounding area. These locusts, or periodical cicadas, began emerging about the middle of May and are expected to disappear about the end of June. The egg slits of the locusts may prove very disastrous to newly-planted orchards or may reduce the crop in bearing orchards materially next year. The male locusts are the only ones that sing.

YMCA Swim Program Slated June 12 To 29

The Central YMCA's eighth annual learn-to-swim program will be conducted in the Y Pool June 12 to June 29, John M. Robb, chairman of the YMCA Physical Education Committee, announced yesterday.

Robb said boys and girls from nine to 11 years of age will be eligible for the course which is free to members and non-members of the Y.

Registration cards are available at the YMCA. Prospective participants are urged to pick up their registration card as soon as possible, Robb said. The cards must be returned to the Y, Robb said, not later than June 11, properly signed by parents. No late starters, he continued, will be permitted to take the course.

The regular YMCA swimming instructors, James E. Kelley Jr., aquatic director, and Lance Statler, swimming assistant, will be in charge of instruction for the program. They will be assisted by Mrs. Helen McGuire.

Robb pointed out that all those desiring to take part in the learn-to-swim program must attend the first meeting on Friday, June 12, at 3 p. m. for instruction and assignment in classes.

Starting Monday, June 15, swimming classes will be held from 5:30 p. m. to 7:15 p. m. in the Y pool. The pool contains 65,000 gallons of city water that is filtered three times daily. Participants will be divided into three classes according to geographical location in the community.

Class 1 will meet from 5:30 to 6 p. m.; Class 2 from 6:05 to 6:35, and Class 3 from 6:40 to 7:10. An additional class will be formed after the program begins for those participants who rapidly advance, Robb said.

At the conclusion of the program, a "Parents Night" will be held on Monday, June 29, during which a demonstration of teaching methods used during the program will be given as well as an exhibition by participants who learned to swim. "Learn-to-Swim" buttons will be awarded those who pass the course.

Methodists Plan World Peace Seminar

The Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church will hold one of its five world peace seminars next fall in Cumberland, it was reported at the annual session of the conference being held in Westminster.

The conference's Committee on World Peace has announced seminars will be sponsored here and in Hagerstown, Frederick, Baltimore and Washington.

The committee urges ministers and laymen to keep informed about various peace movements- "Union Now, Atlantic Union, United World Federalists, and others," but said this did not constitute an endorsement of any of them.

Recommends Groups

The committee recommended there should be world peace committees in each of the six districts of the Baltimore conference—three in Baltimore, two in Washington and one in Western Maryland.

The conference opened yesterday with a communion service and a memorial service for ministers and lay members who died since last June.

The group was then organized by its presiding officer, Bishop G. Bromly Oxnam, resident bishop of Washington. The Baltimore Conference includes parishes in Washington, Maryland west of Chesapeake Bay and nearby points in West Virginia.

Report Scheduled

The Social Projects Commission of the conference has prepared a report to be submitted today which urges the churchmen to "do something about" problems of race relations, Communism, marriage and divorce, crime and morals. It adds:

"(The church ought to be speaking out on them and formulating programs and policies designed to interpret them from a Christian viewpoint and to guide our people in their attitudes."

Another group, the conference Committee on World Peace, said the church should exert its influence against "atheism, communism, fascism, and all ideologies dangerous to the common good."

On the subject of segregation the churchmen said:

"The Christian church cannot speak to the secular world on the evils of racial segregation and discrimination so long as it remains among the chief sinners. The presence of these evils within the church places the church in the unenviable position of proving ammunition for communism's ideological guns."

The four-day session will conclude Sunday with announcement of ministerial changes.

A Blend of the Choicest Straight Whiskies from the Three World-Famous Whiskey States

A Story of the Old South... and Old Discovery

And it came to pass that two distillers, a Marylander and a Kentucky Colonel, fell out over the merits of their whiskies. A duel was averted only when a mutual friend from Pennsylvania appeared with a blend of the two whiskies, plus some from his own stock. Today, this blending of the finest whiskies from these 3 states achieves a smoother, more delightful drink. Molasses And Yogurt

Yogurt, a pasteurized, homogenized, cultured milk food, may be deliciously flavored with a topping of unsulphured molasses. Spoon two tablespoons of this molasses over the 8-ounce portion. Besides the taffy touch of flavor, the unsulphured molasses adds mineral iron value to this food.

"Angel Pie" Has A Strawberry Rice Filling

Here is one of the best rice desserts you will eat in a long, long time. It is almost too heavenly to be real, but it is—and really, really marvelous. Even more marvelous is the fact that such a sensationally tasty dessert is quick and simple to make.

The can't fail crust is a hard meringue which is as easy to fix as an egg white is to beat. The creamery strawberry rice is as good as those luscious red berries can make a dessert. So it is no wonder that everyone who has the privilege of eating this Rice and Strawberry Angel Pie will rave and rave about a truly memorable dessert.

INGREDIENTS

3 egg whites
¾ cup extra fine beet or cane sugar
Pinch of salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 cups cold cooked rice
½ cup beet or cane sugar
½ cup milk
2 cups sliced strawberries (or sweetened cherries may be used)
1 cup whipping cream, chilled
¼ cup beet or cane sugar

Preparing the fluffy white rice: To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover the saucepan with a lid. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. Leave saucepan over this low heat for 14 minutes. After the rice has cooked, remove saucepan from heat.

Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

For extra convenience and economy of time and effort, cook 2 cups of rice, 4 cups of water and 2 teaspoons of salt — keeping the extra cups of unused ready-cooked rice in the refrigerator in a covered container. Use this rice as needed in quick, delicious and inexpensive soups, salads, casserole dishes, hot breads and desserts.

Method: Beat the egg writes until foamy. Add ¼ of the ¾ cup sugar, the salt, cream of tartar and vanilla. Continue beating and gradually add the rest of the sugar. Beat until the egg whites are smooth, shiny and hold their shape. Grease a 10 inch pie plate. Use one with sloping sides. Spread the egg whites over the bottom and up the sides of the pie plate. Make swirls around the edge, if desired. Bake in a preheated 250° F. oven for 1½ hours.

Cook the cooked rice, the ½ cup of sugar, milk and strawberries together until most of the milk has been absorbed. The mixture should be creamy and not dry. Tint with red food coloring if desired. Cover and chill. Whip the cream. Fold in the ¼ cup of sugar. Slightly stir the chilled rice mixture to make it somewhat creamy. Fold it into the whipped cream. Pour the rice-strawberry-cream mixture into the meringue pie shell. Chill until firm. Garnish with whole or sliced strawberries, if desired. To serve, cut into wedges.

This recipe makes 8 servings.

Sparking Moments Cherry-Ginger Dessert

Warm weather desserts should be light and tempting and among the favorites, welcome at any meal, are gelatin desserts. Have you tried making these dishes with pale dry ginger ale as the liquid in which to dissolve the gelatin? The ginger ale imparts that "something different" to the dessert, without in any way disguising the fruit flavor of the gelatin.

These desserts, made in a few minutes and set in the refrigerator until serving time, have particular summer appeal when made with fruits.

Here is one with a delicious combination of pineapple and cherries.

Cherry-Ginger Sparkle

2 cups pale dry ginger ale
1 pkg. cherry gelatin
1 cup Bing cherries (canned or frozen)
1 cup pineapple tid-bits

Heat ginger ale to boiling point. Remove from heat, add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white; fold in fruit, pour into molds or dessert glasses. Place in refrigerator to set. Top with whipped cream and a cherry before serving.

Punch is said to be so called because of the Hindu word punch, meaning five, the number of ingredients used.

Molasses, Milk—"Shake"

Glasses brimming with Taffy Floats invite family and guests to frosted milk refreshment. Looking like soda fountain treats, these drinks blend milk, unsulphured molasses for its taffy flavor, and ice cream. For double taffy goodness, serve soft molasses cookies with the floats. The bonbon dish holds a summertime molasses candy that requires no cooking.

Milk, the almost perfect food, is low in iron. This deficiency can be compensated simply by adding a tablespoon or two of unsulphured molasses right from the jar to a glass of milk. The combination is a logical one because the two foods are so flavor-congenial.

Unsulphured molasses, an energy food, contains 73 per cent natural sugars. The non-sugar part has the color-bearing properties that give molasses its reddish brown tint, its distinctive flavor, and iron.

Cooling, reviving pep quickly, and scoring high on a nutrition count, are Taffy Floats. The ice cream can be blended into the milk, or set afloat on top. If you just want a Taffy Milk Shake, add the molasses to a glass of milk, stir well and serve.

TAFFY FLOAT

2 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
Milk
1 scoop (¼ pint) pre-packaged vanilla, coffee, or chocolate ice cream

Put molasses in 12-ounce glass; fill ½ full with milk. Add ice cream; stir vigorously. Fill glass to top with milk. YIELD: 1 serving.

Sparking Moments Cherry-Ginger Dessert

Warm weather desserts should be light and tempting and among the favorites, welcome at any meal, are gelatin desserts. Have you tried making these dishes with pale dry ginger ale as the liquid in which to dissolve the gelatin? The ginger ale imparts that "something different" to the dessert, without in any way disguising the fruit flavor of the gelatin.

These desserts, made in a few minutes and set in the refrigerator until serving time, have particular summer appeal when made with fruits.

Here is one with a delicious combination of pineapple and cherries.

Cherry-Ginger Sparkle

- 2 cups pale dry ginger ale
- 1 pkg. cherry gelatin
- 1 cup Bing cherries (canned or frozen)
- 1 cup pineapple tid-bits

Heat ginger ale to boiling point. Remove from heat, add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white; fold in fruit, pour into molds or dessert glasses. Place in refrigerator to set. Top with whipped cream and a cherry before serving.

Punch is said to be so called because of the Hindu word punch, meaning five, the number of ingredients used.

Molasses, Milk—"Shake"

Glasses brimming with Taffy Floats invite family and guests to frosted milk refreshment. Looking like soda fountain treats, these drinks blend milk, unsulphured molasses for its taffy flavor, and ice cream. For double taffy goodness, serve soft molasses cookies with the floats. The bonbon dish holds a summertime molasses candy that requires no cooking.

Milk, the almost perfect food, is low in iron. This deficiency can be compensated simply by adding a tablespoon or two of unsulphured molasses right from the jar to a glass of milk. The combination is a logical one because the two foods are so flavor-congenial.

Unsulphured molasses, an energy food, contains 73 per cent natural sugars. The non-sugar part has the color-bearing properties that give molasses its reddish brown tint, its distinctive flavor, and iron.

Cooling, reviving pep quickly, and scoring high on a nutrition count, are Taffy Floats. The ice cream can be blended into the milk, or set afloat on top. If you just want a Taffy Milk Shake, add the molasses to a glass of milk, stir well and serve.

TAFFY FLOAT

2 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
Milk
1 scoop (¼ pint) pre-packaged vanilla, coffee, or chocolate ice cream

Put molasses in 12-ounce glass; fill ½ full with milk. Add ice cream; stir vigorously. Fill glass to top with milk. YIELD: 1 serving.

Fruit Canning Time Begins With Northwest Sweet Cherries

Sweet Cherry Festival in the Pacific Northwest comes early this year. Because of the mild winter sweet cherries will the coming to market about the 9th of June. It's truly a cherry year. The crop is abundant and the quality of cherries excellent. Bing and Lambert cherry orchards flourish in this section of the country.

Even though the season is early, sweet cherries are with us only a few weeks so be sure to schedule some cherry canning time. It's wonderful to have home-canned sweet cherries on the table when the snow is piled high. Sweet cherries may be canned pitted or unpitted. If pitted, it will require from 4 to 4 pounds to make 1 quart; if unpitted, it will take from 1¼ to 1½ pounds to make 1 quart.

In canning unpitted cherries by cold pack method, pack the fresh cherries into clean hot jars. Shake down in jar. Pour boiling syrup over fruit to within ½ inch of top Wipe rims of jars with clean damp paper towel; adjust lids. Process in boiling water bath 20 minutes. A medium syrup is usually preferred for sweet ripe cherries—1 cup sugar to 2 cups water.

Sweet cherries are nutritious as well as delicious. They supply good quantities of vitamins A, B, and C in addition to iron, copper and manganese, imprtant blood building minerals. Alkaline in reaction, cherries help maintain the body's acid-base balance. Also their roughage content is low, so they are often listed for "soft" and "semi-soft" diets.

Sweet Cherry Jam

4 cups prepared dark sweet cherries, 4½ cups sugar, 1 2½-oz. box powdered fruit pectin.

Stem and pit about 3 pounds fully ripe dark sweet cherries. Chop fine or grind. Add a few crushed cherry pits during cooking. Measure 4 cups into large saucepan. Measure sugar and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ⅛ inch hot parrifin. Yield: About 8 medium glasses.

The amount of energy fixed annually in the sugar manufactured by plants is equivalent to 300 billion tons of coal.

Pineapple In Wine

Peel and core a large pineapple as though it were an apple, leaving the bottom of the core-hole intact. Stand in a bowl, fill the core-hole with sauterne. Cover and chill in the icebox, up-right for 24 hours. When ready to serve, slice crosswise, add a little more wine to the piled slices and pass the powdered sugar.

This, with hot rolls and a tossed salad—and lots of coffee — will make you the most popular chef in town! Should you want to serve liquid refreshments, it's a wise idea to set up a separate service area and perhaps let the man of the house take over. A few refreshing beverages are:

HORSE'S NECK: To a highball glass add ginger ale, dash of lemon juice, lots of ice, lemon spiral.

TROPICAL MIST: To a tall glass, add lots of ice, quinac, lemon juice, and a slice of lemon or lime.

FRUIT HIGHBALL: Combine lemon juice, orange juice and grapefruit juice in 1-2-3 proportion, a`` sugar to taste and serve iced with a slice of lemon or lime.

SEABREEZE: In a tall glass filled with ice, add quinine or tonic water and 1½ ounces ancient bottle golden gin. Garnish with a slice of lemon or lime.

Fruit Canning Time Begins With Northwest Sweet Cherries

Sweet Cherry Festival in the Pacific Northwest comes early this year. Because of the mild winter sweet cherries will the coming to market about the 9th of June. It's truly a cherry year. The crop is abundant and the quality of cherries excellent. Bing and Lambert cherry orchards flourish in this section of the country.

Even though the season is early, sweet cherries are with us only a few weeks so be sure to schedule some cherry canning time. It's wonderful to have home-canned sweet cherries on the table when the snow is piled high. Sweet cherries may be canned pitted or unpitted. If pitted, it will require from 4 to 4 pounds to make 1 quart; if unpitted, it will take from 1¼ to 1½ pounds to make 1 quart.

In canning unpitted cherries by cold pack method, pack the fresh cherries into clean hot jars. Shake down in jar. Pour boiling syrup over fruit to within ½ inch of top Wipe rims of jars with clean damp paper towel; adjust lids. Process in boiling water bath 20 minutes. A medium syrup is usually preferred for sweet ripe cherries—1 cup sugar to 2 cups water.

Sweet cherries are nutritious as well as delicious. They supply good quantities of vitamins A, B, and C in addition to iron, copper and manganese, imprtant blood building minerals. Alkaline in reaction, cherries help maintain the body's acid-base balance. Also their roughage content is low, so they are often listed for "soft" and "semi-soft" diets.

Sweet Cherry Jam

4 cups prepared dark sweet cherries, 4½ cups sugar, 1 2½-oz. box powdered fruit pectin.

Stem and pit about 3 pounds fully ripe dark sweet cherries. Chop fine or grind. Add a few crushed cherry pits during cooking. Measure 4 cups into large saucepan. Measure sugar and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ⅛ inch hot parrifin. Yield: About 8 medium glasses.

The amount of energy fixed annually in the sugar manufactured by plants is equivalent to 300 billion tons of coal.

Pineapple In Wine

Peel and core a large pineapple as though it were an apple, leaving the bottom of the core-hole intact. Stand in a bowl, fill the core-hole with sauterne. Cover and chill in the icebox, up-right for 24 hours. When ready to serve, slice crosswise, add a little more wine to the piled slices and pass the powdered sugar.

This, with hot rolls and a tossed salad—and lots of coffee — will make you the most popular chef in town! Should you want to serve liquid refreshments, it's a wise idea to set up a separate service area and perhaps let the man of the house take over. A few refreshing beverages are:

HORSE'S NECK: To a highball glass add ginger ale, dash of lemon juice, lots of ice, lemon spiral.

TROPICAL MIST: To a tall glass, add lots of ice, quinac, lemon juice, and a slice of lemon or lime.

FRUIT HIGHBALL: Combine lemon juice, orange juice and grapefruit juice in 1-2-3 proportion, a'' sugar to taste and serve iced with a slice of lemon or lime.

SEABREEZE: In a tall glass filled with ice, add quinine or tonic water and 1½ ounces ancient bottle golden gin. Garnish with a slice of lemon or lime.

2 lbs shrimp — cooked and cleaned
2 cups cream

4 tablespoons flour
salt and white pepper to taste
3 egg yolks.
pinch of dry mustard
pinch of clove
juice of ½ lemon
1 tablespoon brandy (optional)
4 tbsp. sherry

Stir in lemon juice and place mixture over boiling water. Beat egg yolks, adding a little of the hot sauce to the beaten yolks. Then stir egg mixture into sauce. Stir constantly until mixture thickens (do not allow to boil or it will curdle.) slowly add sherry and brandy (optional). Stir in shrimp. Heat—and serve—piping hot!

Rice, Vegetable Souffle Salad Is A Menu Must

Here is a new fashioned way to serve that old fashioned favorite—the molded vegetable salad. In this salad is an exciting bevy of vegetables—tender white rice, succulent cucumbers, crispy carrots and cabbage and the salad's pal—the onion.

The new salad idea—souffle—was naver better than in this just right rice and vegetable combination. Every seasoning is perfect; every flavor supreme, and only those who have actually tasted and licked their lips can adequately describe the magical eating satisfaction which goes with every bite of a matchless masterpiece—this Rice and Vegetable Souffle Salad.

INGREDIENTS

1 package lime flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
½ cup cold water
1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise
2 cups cooked cooled rice
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped cucumber
½ cup finely shredded cabbage
½ cup grated carrots
Salad Greens

Preparing The Fluffy White Rice

To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover the saucepan with a lid. Do not remove lid or stir rice while it is cooking. Leave saucepan over this low heat for 14 minutes. After the rice has cooked, remove saucepan from heat.

Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

For extra convenience and economy of time and effort, cook 2 cups of rice, 4 cups of water and 2 teaspoons of salt—keeping the extra cups of unused, ready-cooked rice in the refrigerator in a covered container. Use this rice as needed in quick, delicious and inexpensive soups, salads, casserole dishes, hot breads and desserts.

Method: Dissolve gelatin in the hot water. Add the cold water, vinegar or lemon juice and mayonnaise. Blend well with a rotary beater. Pour into refrigerator freezing tray. Place in freezing unit and leave until firm about 1 inch from edge but soft in the center. Pour into a bowl and whip with beater until fluffy. Fold in the rice, onion, cucumber, shredded cabbage, and carrots. Pour into a well greased or oiled ring mold, or other mold. Chill until firm. Serve on salad greens. This recipe makes 9 servings.

Airlines in carrying passengers from Latin America north from Miami, and that Braniff International Airways should work with Eastern. Pan Am didn't like this. It had proposed teaming up with Eastern Air Lines but the CAB ruled that a combination of these two big companies against two little companies would be an obvious violation of the principle of free competition.

Instead CAB ruled in favor of "balanced competition"—in other words, joining big Pan American with smaller National, against Eastern, a big line, and smaller Braniff.

Twice this recommendation of "balanced competition" was submitted to the White House during the Truman Administration; each time was sent back to the CAB. Pan Am's influence—usually exerted through Matt Connelly—was too strong.

However, after Eisenhower entered the White House, CAB once again came back with the same recommendation. It was unanimous. Even Pan Am's sometime friend Oswald Ryan voted against the combination of the two big airlines, Eastern and Pan American.

At first, Bernard Shanley, White House counsel, privately confided that the President would approve the CAB's proposal that Braniff and Eastern team up together.

Then something happened. The CAB proposal was sent back to the CAB on May 14 for the third time.

NOTHING prettier than Pinwheels to perk up a platter of plain cookies. Serve them to simplify summer entertaining. Simplify? That's the story with these Pinwheels because they are made with basic cookie mix. For the recipe see elsewhere on this page.

Pinwheels Are Pertinent For Summer Parties

Once considered complicated and time-taking cookies, Pinwheels are now quickies, made with the basic cookie mix that is at everybody's grocery store. Just empty the cookie mix into a bowl, add water, mix well. That takes about 2 minutes, and the basic dough is ready to use.

After the Pinwheels are rolled, it is necessary to chill them only 10 minutes before slicing, in contrast to the several hours chilling required by home recipes. This mix is blended more completely by machine than a home cook could achieve, so the dough made with it can be rolled between two sheets of waxed paper and be perfect for Pinwheels.

If you're going to have a graduation party or a garden party, or if you're just keeping open house this summer, Pinwheels are perfect to serve with ice cream, sherbet, fruit or fizzy drinks, milk shakes, or fruit. And if you've lots of kids home for vacation, they'll be in the junior social whirl with Pinwheels at their parties. Or let your teeners make Pinwheels themselves for everyday snacks and picnic fare.

Pinwheel Cookies

½ package semi-sweet chocolate morsels
1 14-ounce package cookie mix
2 tablespoons water

Melt semi-sweet chocolate morsels over hot, not boiling water. While morsels are melting, empty cookie mix into mixing bowl; add water. Mix with fork; knead well with hands. Divide dough in half. Combine melted morsels and one-half of the dough; knead well. Roll out each half between 2 sheets of waxed paper into a 10-inch square. While rolling, push up sides with ruler to make straight edges. Remove top sheets of waxed paper. Invert plain dough on top of chocolate; remove waxed paper. Cut dough in half; roll each half as for jelly roll. Chill 10 minutes. Slice rolls about ¼-inch thick; place on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven, (375°F.) 8 minutes.

YIELD: 5 dozen cookies.

Old Fashioned Molasses Cookies

1 cup shortening
1½ cups unsulphured molasses
¼ cup sugar
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1½ teaspoons ginger
½ teaspoon cloves
1 egg

Melt shortening in saucepan large enough for mixing cookies. Stir in molasses and sugar; cool. Sift together flour, salt, soda, cinnamon, ginger, and cloves. Mix in small amount of flour mixture; beat in egg. Add remaining flour, blending until smooth. Chill dough about 2 hours. Shape into 1¼-inch balls. Place on cookie sheets about 1 inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 15 minutes. If desired, spread half of the cookies while warm with a confectioners' sugar-an-water glaze. Store in closely covered container. Yield: 5 dozen cookies.

Senate Hearing On Reducing Vote Age Lasts Less Than 10 Minutes

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—It was an unusual Senate hearing.

Often these congressional hearings drag on for weeks, taking thousands of words of testimony. This one, on a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to permit 18-year-olds to vote, lasted less than 10 minutes.

Witnesses, many of them with an ax to grind, usually beg to be heard. Here there were so few—one, to be exact—that the chairman, Sen. Langer (R-ND), asked for volunteers. And, by golly, he got one!

Langer and Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) introduced resolutions calling for the amendment to give the vote to 18-year-olds. Getting the Constitution amended is a long process, and in the past similar resolutions have got nowhere.

But the first step is a hearing. So, a Senate judiciary subcommittee took the first step.

Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa), who is 60 years old, said he's for the bill, and always has been. He said he is familiar with all the arguments, and that since he had other work to do, could he be excused?

Sen. Langer, who is 66, said, yes, he could.

Sen. Humphrey, who is 42, sent word he had other business, but would write out why he favors the amendment.

It turned out veterans' organizations and the national Republican and Democratic headquarters had been asked if they wanted to say a word or two.

Only one veterans' organization, Amvets, said yes.

Its legislative director, Rufus H. Wilson, was there as the only official witness. Appropriately, he appeared to be the youngest man in the room. He is 26.

Wilson said the natural argument is, "If a man is old enough to fight, he's old enough to vote." But Wilson said the argument is far broader than that. The kids are smart, he said, and—

"In the thinking of these youths could well lie the preservation of our national ideals."

"Anyone else have anything to say on this?" Langer asked.

Whereupon a young man with a pipe bounced out of a chair and said he had just dropped in to listen, but he wouldn't mind saying a few words.

So he said a few words.

He said he was Philip Wilder, an associate professor at Wabash College in Indiana, and that there has been considerable agitation for a lower voting age out his way. The Indiana Legislature, he said, has favored giving the vote to 19-year-olds, but the decision isn't final.

Wilder, who is 28, is all for lowering the age bar. "It will help the general conduct of the nation's political life," he said.

It seemed to me it might be a good idea to ask a couple of the 6,700,000 18, 19 and 20-year-olds if they wanted to vote. But there weren't any in the committee room, so the meeting broke up.

Thief Tosses Bricks Through Display Glass

Rings, Watches Among Loot Taken

A daring thief tossed two bricks through a Cumberland jewelry store display window early yesterday, scooped up articles valued at $3,000 and fled.

Police said the window of Jewelry Store, 234 North Centre Street, was discovered at 5:30 a. m. by a man enroute to work. The loss was not covered by insurance.

Detective Leo E. P. Law, who investigated, said the loot included nine sets of diamond wedding rings, a 21-jewel man's Bulova Ambassador wrist watch valued at $57.50, one 21-jewel Bulova President wrist watch worth $49.50 and costume jewelry.

Mrs. Helen G. Marple and her husband, Lee Marple, owner of the store, who reside in an apartment above the establishment, said they heard no noise prior to the theft and were awakened by a "Mr. Brotemarkle."

According to Mrs. Marple, the culprit threw a whole brick and a half brick through the window. No arrests had been made by late last night.

A display window at the store was broken "two or three years ago" by a thief who escaped with only a watch, Mrs. Marple recalled.

In another theft case here yesterday, two 18-year-old youths were given suspended jail terms and paroled in Trial Magistrates Court for stealing auto parts and accessories valued at $93.25 from Orville E. Jeffreys, 532 Cumberland Street. The larceny occurred May 17.

The defendants, one from Cresaptown and the other from West Side, drew 60 and 30-day sentences, respectively, and were ordered to make restitution and be of good behavior. Magistrate Donald W. Mason presided.

The European brown bear has be known since the days of the Roman empire. Nearly every zoo in the world contains such a bear.

More than 42 per cent of the total sales from farms are made during the months of September, October and November.

According to Mrs. Marple, the culprit threw a whole brick and a half brick through the window. No arrests had been made by late last night.

A display window at the store was broken "two or three years ago" by a thief who escaped with only a watch, Mrs. Marple recalled.

In another theft case here yesterday, two 18-year-old youths were given suspended jail terms and paroled in Trial Magistrates Court for stealing auto parts and accessories valued at $93.25 from Orville E. Jeffreys, 532 Cumberland Street. The larceny occurred May 17.

The defendants, one from Cresaptown and the other from West Side, drew 60 and 30-day sentences, respectively, and were ordered to make restitution and be of good behavior. Magistrate Donald W. Mason presided.

State Says Nine Md. Counties Must Check Almshouses

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — H. G. Fritz, chief of the State Health Department's division of hospital services, said today that Maryland's nine remaining county almshouses will be subject to licensing as chronic disease hospitals by the State Board of Health.

Fritz said the board has decided on the move because many of those living in the almshouses have ailments requiring medical attention.

He pointed out that when the state hospital licensing law was passed in 1945, almshouses were decreasing in number and were not brought into the program.

However, a survey shows that many of those in almshouses are chronically ill, Fritz said.

County Commissioners in Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Carroll, Frederick, Harford, Prince George's, St. Mary's and Washington Counties have been notified that inspections will be made of the institutions in the near future, Fritz said.

In Brazil, the Portuguese language is spoken by four times as many people as in Portugal itself.

Dr. Bridger Speaks To Dental Society

Dr. Roy H. Bridger, Hyattsville, public health dentist for Montgomery County, addressed the Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society at Ali Ghan Shrine Club Wednesday night.

The lack of personnel, he said, makes it difficult to carry out an adequate public health dental program in most Maryland counties.

B&O Will Open Transportation Museum July 2

The new Baltimore and Ohio Transportation Museum will be formally opened at Baltimore on July 2. Presiding at the opening ceremony will be Colonel Roy B. White, B&O's chief executive.

The site of the new museum will be the beautiful passenger car roundhouse of the Baltimore and Ohio located in its Mt. Clare shops area in Baltimore. It was at this point that American commercial railroading began.

Here was erected the B&O's Mt. Clare Station, where the first tickets were sold to rail passengers in America in the year 1830. It is now the oldest railroad station in the world.

Besides original locomotives, the roundhouse will also house the famous collection of wooden models of experimental locomotives, and a collection of road and trail vehicles.

In a building adjoining the roundhouse will be housed the smaller exhibits of the B&O's famous collection.

The concluding event of the opening ceremony of July 2 will be the reenactment of the Laying of the First Stone of the B&O. This originally took place on July 4, 1828, at a spot just one and a quarter miles west of the railroad's museum site.

Participating in the ceremony will be the Grand Lodge of Masons of Maryland, whose members actually laid the First Stone, and J. B. Randol Carroll, great-great-great-grandson of Charles Carroll of Carrollton who lifted the sod for the laying of the First Stone.

The Honorable Theodore R. McKeldin, governor of Maryland, has accepted an invitation to be present and to speak briefly.

Police Escort Duty Criticized

A motorist yesterday criticized Police Department policy of assigning officers to escort duty for business firms transferring money to and from banks.

The defendant, appearing in Police Court to answer parking violation charges, pointed out that criuser cars park on red lines and are not tagged while on "special" duty.

On two occasions, he said, cruisers parked on a red line in front of a bank for 18 and 22 minutes, respectively, while the driver was inside. During that time the desk sergeant at headquarters had no radio contact with the officer.

Claiming that the escort duty is wasteful of police-duty hours, the alleged violator protested charges of parking on a yellow line. He was given suspended fines on four counts.

Observers in court suggested that business establishments employ their own "special police officers" or a bonded detective agency to replace city police escorts.

To date, the practice has been to detail beat patrolmen and radio car men to accompany merchants with large sums of money to banks and the postoffice on requests.

In Baltimore, Police Commissioner Beverly Ober ordered that the practice of transporting money for merchants cease July 1. He suggested that employers designate their own employe to such duties and apply to police for special officer commissions.

Gunman Holds Up Bartender In Parsons Club

Steward Robbed While Closing Moose Home

Over $300 Is Taken From Wallet, Register

A smooth-talking gunman held up a partially paralyzed bartender at the Parsons, W. Va., Moose Home and made away with more than $300 in cash late Wednesday night.

Harry "Husky" Phillips, 43-year-old steward at the home of Parsons Lodge 804, L.O.O. Moose, said the holdup took place at about 11:25 p. m. (EST) as he was closing the bar for the night.

State, county and town police immediately launched an all-night manhunt, but no arrests had been made by last night.

Phillips said a member of the lodge had just left the clubrooms when the holdup took place. As Phillips was turning out lights in the building the doorbell rang.

Asks For Receipt

Thinking one of the members had returned, Phillips went to the front door. A neatly-dressed stranger was standing in the doorway. Phillips asked for his dues receipt, without which members may not enter the club.

"I have one in my pocket here somewhere," said the man.

"Step inside so I can see it," Phillips told him.

The steward led the stranger through a small, unlighted hallway to the bar room.

"Where is everybody?" the stranger asked.

"Everyone's gone home. I'm closing," said Phillips. "Now let me see your receipt."

The stranger reached into his hip pocket and came out with a gun.

"This is my receipt," he said. "Open the cash register."

Then the gunman took Phillips' wallet, opened it while holding the pistol on the steward, and removed two $10 bills and two ones.

"Now open the register," he ordered.

Rejects Silver

Phillips opened the register and the gunman scooped out $289 in bills, leaving the silver untouched.

He stuffed the bills into his side coat pocket and backed toward the door, still pointing his gun at the steward.

When Phillips heard the door close, he ran to the front window, where he had a full view of Front Street, but saw no one. He said he heard no cars start.

The steward went to the telephone and told the operator he'd been robbed and that he wanted the police. The operator called State Police Trooper James Rightmire, Sheriff Ronald Hockman and Parsons City Policeman Bill Howell. The three officers and Deputy Sheriff A. Smith Hockman spent most of the night looking for the gunman, but said no traces of him had been found by yesterday.

Rests After Ordeal

Phillips said the holdup man was about 30 years old, stood about five feet, 10 inches tall, had a very fair complexion and was clean-shaven. He wore a blue suit and a grey hat. Phillips said he spoke with a calm, firm manner, but was not "mean." He got away with a total of $311.

Phillips, who is partially disabled because of a spine injury, was resting at his home yesterday because of the shock from his ordeal.

Parsons residents said the holdup was the first in the town in at least 13 years.

Damage Suit Asks $50,000

A damage suit for $50,000 was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by William Fuller, of Corriganville, against Glenn Isner, Valley Road, as a result of injuries allegedly received by Fuller when struck by a car operated by Isner.

The declaration, filed by William L. Wilson Jr., attorney for Fuller, states that the plaintiff was walking along the Mt. Savage Road near Corriganville about 12:45 a. m. on April 12 when he was hit.

Fuller states he was walking about six feet off the highway and on the left side of the road, as provided by law for pedestrians, when Isner's machine struck him. He suffered a fractured skull and left leg and various other injuries.

It is stated in the declaration that Fuller, 52, is an employe of the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company at a pay rate of $1.95 per hour.

It is alleged that Fuller has been injured to such an extent that he has been unable to resume his employment.

Rent Control Office Closed Here, New Procedure Listed

Residents of Cumberland who wish to transact matters concerning rent control should contact the area rent control office in Baltimore, the Cumberland Area Rent Control Committee reported today.

The rent office in the Cumberland Post Office was closed Sunday by federal orders, according to David Kauffman, chairman of the local committee.

Kauffman said while the local office is closed federal rent controls here continue until July 31.

Any inquiries until that time should be directed to John A. Dewicki, area rent director-attorney, Baltimore Area Rent Office, Veterans Administration Building, St. Paul and Fayette streets, Baltimore, 2, Md., Kauffman pointed out.

Law Here Noted

The local rent committee informed the federal director of rent stabilization prior to the closing of the local office that municipalities in Allegany County are provided rent controls in an enabling act passed in the last session of the General Assembly.

The federal director, Glenwood J. Sherrard, in Washington, replied to Kauffman and the committee that since all federal controls will be lifted July 31 the offices where the work loads are lightest are closed first.

Sherrard did say that if the city of Cumberland decides to open a rent office the federal files will be turned over to the city for use.

In a communication to the Mayor and Council this week, the Cumberland Area Committee took no stand on advising the city on the continuance of rent controls.

The board stated the rent survey made here and presented to the Mayor and Council on September 6, 1952, should be of some help in making the decision.

However, from an economic point of view, the rent board said only one worker would be necessary as in the federal office here one secretary has been able to handle the affairs.

The board also noted that Baltimore Mayor and Council under the enabling act passed in Annapolis this year voted to extend controls.

There is a question of constitutionality between the rent control bill, which was amended in the last minutes of the General Assembly.

Governor Theodore McKeldin signed the bill declaring that the question was so technical that he would leave the matter to the courts to decide.

Gunman Holds Up Bartender In Parsons Club

Steward Robbed While Closing Moose Home

Over $300 Is Taken From Wallet, Register

A smooth-talking gunman held up a partially paralyzed bartender at the Parsons, W. Va., Moose Home and made away with more than $300 in cash late Wednesday night.

Harry "Husky" Phillips, 43-year-old steward at the home of Parsons Lodge 804, L.O.O. Moose, said the holdup took place at about 11:25 p. m. (EST) as he was closing the bar for the night.

State, county and town police immediately launched an all-night manhunt, but no arrests had been made by last night.

Phillips said a member of the lodge had just left the clubrooms when the holdup took place. As Phillips was turning out lights in the building the doorbell rang.

Asks For Receipt

Thinking one of the members had returned, Phillips went to the front door. A neatly-dressed stranger was standing in the doorway. Phillips asked for his dues receipt, without which members may not enter the club.

"I have one in my pocket here somewhere," said the man.

"Step inside so I can see it," Phillips told him.

The steward led the stranger through a small, unlighted hallway to the bar room.

"Where is everybody?" the stranger asked.

"Everyone's gone home. I'm closing," said Phillips. "Now let me see your receipt."

The stranger reached into his hip pocket and came out with a gun.

"This is my receipt," he said. "Open the cash register."

Then the gunman took Phillips' wallet, opened it while holding the pistol on the steward, and removed two $10 bills and two ones.

"Now open the register," he ordered.

Rejects Silver

Phillips opened the register and the gunman scooped out $289 in bills, leaving the silver untouched.

He stuffed the bills into his side coat pocket and backed toward the door, still pointing his gun at the steward.

When Phillips heard the door close, he ran to the front window, where he had a full view of Front Street, but saw no one. He said he heard no cars start.

The steward went to the telephone and told the operator he'd been robbed and that he wanted the police. The operator called State Police Trooper James Rightmire, Sheriff Ronald Hockman and Parsons City Policeman Bill Howell. The three officers and Deputy Sheriff A. Smith Hockman spent most of the night looking for the gunman, but said no traces of him had been found by yesterday.

Rests After Ordeal

Phillips said the holdup man was about 30 years old, stood about five feet, 10 inches tall, had a very fair complexion and was clean-shaven. He wore a blue suit and a grey hat. Phillips said he spoke with a calm, firm manner, but was not "mean." He got away with a total of $311.

Phillips, who is partially disabled because of a spine injury, was resting at his home yesterday because of the shock from his ordeal.

Parsons residents said the holdup was the first in the town in at least 13 years.

Rent Control Office Closed Here, New Procedure Listed

Residents of Cumberland who wish to transact matters concerning rent control should contact the area rent control office in Baltimore, the Cumberland Area Rent Control Committee reported today.

The rent office in the Cumberland Post Office was closed Sunday by federal orders, according to David Kauffman, chairman of the local committee.

Kauffman said while the local office is closed federal rent controls here continue until July 31.

Any inquiries until that time should be directed to John A. Dewicki, area rent director-attorney, Baltimore Area Rent Office, Veterans Administration Building, St. Paul and Fayette streets, Baltimore, 2, Md., Kauffman pointed out.

Law Here Noted

The local rent committee informed the federal director of rent stabilization prior to the closing of the local office that municipalities in Allegany County are provided rent controls in an enabling act passed in the last session of the General Assembly.

The federal director, Glenwood J. Sherrard, in Washington, replied to Kauffman and the committee that since all federal controls will be lifted July 31 the offices where the work loads are lightest are closed first.

Sherrard did say that if the city of Cumberland decides to open a rent office the federal files will be turned over to the city for use.

In a communication to the Mayor and Council this week, the Cumberland Area Committee took no stand on advising the city on the continuance of rent controls.

The board stated the rent survey made here and presented to the Mayor and Council on September 6, 1952, should be of some help in making the decision.

However, from an economic point of view, the rent board said only one worker would be necessary as in the federal office here one secretary has been able to handle the affairs.

The board also noted that Baltimore Mayor and Council under the enabling act passed in Annapolis this year voted to extend controls.

There is a question of constitutionality between the rent control bill, which was amended in the last minutes of the General Assembly.

Governor Theodore McKeldin signed the bill declaring that the question was so technical that he would leave the matter to the courts to decide.

Two Local Men To Graduate From Naval Academy Today

JOHN W. SWAN

THOMAS L. SHUCK

Two Cumberland men will graduate from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis today.

They are Thomas L. Shuck, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Shuck, 601 Woodlawn Terrace, and John W. (Jerry) Swan, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Wellington, 303 Washington Street.

Upon graduation, Shuck will receive a Bachelor of Science degree and a commission as ensign in the Navy.

A 1949 graduate of Allegany High School in Cumberland, Shuck was appointed to the academy after taking a competitive Naval Reserve examination.

He enlisted in the Naval Reserve in 1947, receiving training at the Naval Reserve Training Center in Cumberland. He formerly was a Cumberland News carrier.

At the academy, he received numerals in plebe and varsity cross country and track.

He held the offices of trustee, secretary and president of the Radio Club during the four terms.

Swan is scheduled to graduate in the top ten per cent of the 1953 class.

He will receive a Bachelor of Science degree and a commission as second lieutenant in the Air Force upon graduation.

Swan, 23, received a congressional appointment to the academy in June, 1949, after graduating from Allegany High School in 1948. He studied at Potomac State College, Keyser, for a year.

He rose to the rank of chief petty officer at the academy during his First Class (senior) year.

A member of the indoor and outdoor mile relay team, he received a varsity letter in track. He earned class numerals in plebe (first year) cross country and track and intermural cross country.

He was a member of the Drum and Bugle Corps, the Electrical Engineering Club, the Radio Club, the "N" Club and a local hillbilly band, "The Severn River Playboys."

Damage Suit Asks $50,000

A damage suit for $50,000 was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by William Fuller, of Corriganville, against Glenn Isner, Valley Road, as a result of injuries allegedly received by Fuller when struck by a car operated by Isner.

The declaration, filed by William L. Wilson Jr., attorney for Fuller, states that the plaintiff was walking along the Mt. Savage Road near Corriganville about 12:45 a. m. on April 12 when he was hit.

Fuller states he was walking about six feet off the highway and on the left side of the road, as provided by law for pedestrians, when Isner's machine struck him. He suffered a fractured skull and left leg and various other injuries.

It is stated in the declaration that Fuller, 52, is an employe of the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company at a pay rate of $1.95 per hour.

It is alleged that Fuller has been injured to such an extent that he has been unable to resume his employment.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

All men admire and other women envy any woman who has an attractive walk. A limber, light and alive walk gives the greatest possible boost to your grace, poise and ability to carry off clothes.

The key to acquiring this tremendous feminine assest is maximum coordination and muscular control—both characteristics which nature endowed you with and intended that you should retain. While all normal girls are born with the flexibility of muscles and joints that provides coordination and control, few pass the age of twenty-five without some stiffening up. Why? Because they cut down on sports, skip exercise, ride instead of walk. And this sort of laziness just naturally results in the dwindling to nothingness of the powers with which they were endowed.

Try This Today

Almost any type of exercise has some limbering qualities, including house work. But for reliable shoulder-to-ankle results, nothing can equal a well-designed exercise such as the one that follows. Want to try it?

For top effectiveness, perform the routine with the aid of a leather strap or belt. This "exercise partner" will increase the range and force of your movements, speeding up and increasing the limbering process.

Here goes: 1. Stand erect, feet together. 2. With arms fully extended downward and touching the sides, hold the strap in both hands and pull it taut. Keep it so throughout. 3. Bend your right knee straight upward until your thigh is parallel to the floor. At the same time, swing the strap upward and backward behind your hips.

Back Flip-Kick

4. Kick your right leg directly forward and then back behind your head. 5. Return your knee and strap to starting position. 6. Alternating legs, repeat from ten to twenty-five times daily.

Hard? As hard as they come! Good? When you can perform without wavering, your every moment will take on lissome grace—and you'll be the one whose walk is both envied and admired!

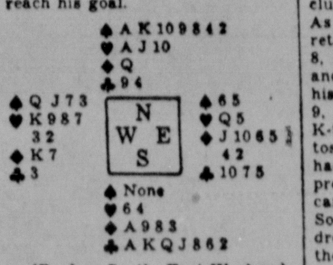
GAME FISH SWIMS UP

AS "ONLY the game fish swims upstream," so the plucky declarer gives a figurative illustration of what that idea implies. Sometimes in a tournament a number of players will reach the same high contract, and all but one of them will receive an opening lead which makes the project easy to fulfill. The remaining declarer may receive the most damaging of all leads, putting it up to him to find a difficult way to reach his goal.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	7 ♣

A number of other pairs reached that same contract by entirely different bidding. The North and South who bid as shown were using an artificial convention through which 1-Club shows either an ace-king and an ace or three aces, and any response except 1-Diamond shows real strength; 1-No Trump indicates two aces and any other suit bid proclaims the ace-king of the suit. So South knew from one round about his partner's aces.

At all other tables, against the 7-Clubs, West led a side suit. That made the contract easy, as two diamonds could be ruffed. At this table, however, West led his trump, which limited diamond ruffing to one trick. South therefore had to build a fancy double squeeze.

After the club A won, the diamond A was scored, diamond 3 ruffed, spade A and K used for a diamond and heart discard, spade 10 ruffed and over-ruffed by the club 10 and J, then the clubs run. As the last was led, South also retained the heart 6 and diamond 8, and dummy held the spade 9 and heart A-J. West had to keep his spade Q to guard against the 9, so discarded from his heart K-9, whereupon the spade was tossed from dummy. Now East had to keep the diamond J as protection against the 8, so discarded from the heart Q-5. Then South led the heart 6 to the A, dropping the K and Q, and got the final trick with the heart J.

Hustle And You'll Get Ahead

DENVER, Colo.—John Siddall, who edited the American Magazine and built its circulation up from about 300,000 to more than 2,000,000, did it on a success formula. Like the Horatio Alger stories, the poor boy made good and became a millionaire.

"The three most interesting subjects in the world from a reader's viewpoint," he used to say, "are romance, money, and health."

He once asked Rube Goldberg, the cartoonist, to write a piece, and he began it:

"I wasn't born in the gutter."

The old master threw it right back at him. He insisted on success stories from standing starts.

Nowadays, we have many cynics who say there are not the opportunities for your which used to exist. But hustle and ingenuity will tell. Therefore, I am glad to report a tale of enterprise I came across here the other day. It seems the guy ran an idea into a big business. He began with less than a shoe string. He borrowed $100 from his brother-in-law, who was going to use the money to go to college, to rent and furnish a house. Naturally he had to stretch the nest egg pretty far.

Then he went into the second-hand furniture business, advertising in the Denver Post. When a customer came around, he would show him or her his home and offer the contents at bargain prices. Once he sold a sofa with his family sitting on it, and, as far as I know, they had to stand up until he got another one. He would buy the Sunday paper as early as he could on Saturday evening, I look over the used furniture ads, and hustle out that night to get ahead of his competitors to restock his house.

However, the road up wasn't always easy going. There was the time he found a demand for pot-bellied stoves and announced he would purchase all he could get at $1 and $2 each. Naturally he picked up quite a few, and every day about noon a man would come around and sell him one. There was a good market so he was surprised when one of his assistants told him they were running short.

"But we must be overstocked," he insisted.

He found out later one of his employees had been taking a stove out the back door every day and selling it to him at the front entrance. He didn't fire him.

"It taught me a lesson," he explained. "I ought to have been smart enough to recognize the same piece of goods I had bought before."

In the early days, he would purchase anything that he saw. After unloading a stack of furniture one afternoon at his store, which he had by this time acquired, he spotted a Mexican kid with a chair, and he offered him $2 for it. The youngster promptly closed the deal for cash and disappeared before the merchant discovered he had stolen it from him while the truck was backed up and the movers were looking the other way.

As the business grew, he decided he should put in a bookkeeping system instead of trying to remember the accounts due, since he extended credit to all sorts of dubious customers. He got a desk, filing cabinet, and other paraphernalia necessary to open up the department. Then somebody came along who wanted to buy the whole works. He couldn't resist the temptation to make a sale, and the plan went into the discard for another six months.

The man's name is Emil P. Berkowitz of Denver, and I believe he is now the proprietor of three or four flourishing stores with bookkeeping systems, too. He deals in all kinds of furniture including antiques, although he once lost a small fortune by selling some of these he didn't recognize. He found out his mistake later when they brought a fabulous figure at an auction.

This is meant to be a timely piece to encourage the boys and girls, who are now graduating from college and starting out in life, to realize there are still opportunities if they will think and hustle.

Because they cut down on sports, skip exercise, ride instead of walk. And this sort of laziness just naturally results in the dwindling to nothingness of the powers with which they were endowed.

Try This Today

Almost any type of exercise has some limbering qualities, including house work. But for reliable shoulder-to-ankle results, nothing can equal a well-designed exercise such as the one that follows. Want to try it?

For top effectiveness, perform the routine with the aid of a leather strap or belt. This "exercise partner" will increase the range and force of your movements, speeding up and increasing the limbering process.

Here goes: 1. Stand erect, feet together. 2. With arms fully extended downward and touching the sides, hold the strap in both hands and pull it taut. Keep it so throughout. 3. Bend your right knee straight upward until your thigh is parallel to the floor. At the same time, swing the strap upward and backward behind your hips.

Back Flip-Kick

4. Kick your right leg directly forward and then back behind your head. 5. Return your knee and strap to starting position. 6. Alternating legs, repeat from ten to twenty-five times daily.

Hard? As hard as they come! Good? When you can perform without wavering, your every moment will take on lissome grace—and you'll be the one whose walk is both envied and admired!

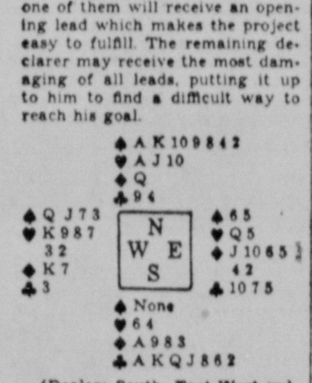
GAME FISH SWIMS UP

AS "ONLY the game fish swims upstream," so the plucky declarer gives a figurative illustration of what that idea implies. Sometimes in a tournament a number of players will reach the same high contract, and all but one of them will receive an opening lead which makes the project easy to fulfill. The remaining declarer may receive the most damaging of all leads, putting it up to him to find a difficult way to reach his goal.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	7 ♣

A number of other pairs reached that same contract by entirely different bidding. The North and South who bid as shown were using an artificial convention through which 1-Club shows either an ace-king and an ace or three aces, and any response except 1-Diamond shows real strength; 1-No Trump indicates two aces and any other suit bid proclaims the ace-king of the suit. So South knew from one round about his partner's aces.

At all other tables, against the 7-Clubs, West led a side suit. That made the contract easy, as two diamonds could be ruffed. At this table, however, West led his trump, which limited diamond ruffing to one trick. South therefore had to build a fancy double squeeze.

After the club A won, the diamond A was scored, diamond 3 ruffed, spade A and K used for a diamond and heart discard, spade 10 ruffed and over-ruffed by the club 10 and J, then the clubs run. As the last was led, South also retained the heart 6 and diamond 8, and dummy held the spade 9 and heart A-J. West had to keep his spade Q to guard against the 9, so discarded from his heart K-9, whereupon the spade was tossed from dummy. Now East had to keep the diamond J as protection against the 8, so discarded from the heart Q-5. Then South led the heart 6 to the A, dropping the K and Q, and got the final trick with the heart J.

Hustle And You'll Get Ahead

DENVER, Colo.—John Siddall, who edited the American Magazine and built its circulation up from about 300,000 to more than 2,000,000, did it on a success formula. Like the Horatio Alger stories, the poor boy made good and became a millionaire.

"The three most interesting subjects in the world from a reader's viewpoint," he used to say, "are romance, money, and health."

He once asked Rube Goldberg, the cartoonist, to write a piece, and he began it:

"I wasn't born in the gutter."

The old master threw it right back at him. He insisted on success stories from standing starts.

Nowadays, we have many cynics who say there are not the opportunities for your which used to exist. But hustle and ingenuity will tell. Therefore, I am glad to report a tale of enterprise I came across here the other day. It seems the guy ran an idea into a big business. He began with less than a shoe string. He borrowed $100 from his brother-in-law, who was going to use the money to go to college, to rent and furnish a house. Naturally he had to stretch the nest egg pretty far.

Then he went into the second-hand furniture business, advertising in the Denver Post. When a customer came around, he would show him or her his home and offer the contents at bargain prices. Once he sold a sofa with his family sitting on it, and, as far as I know, they had to stand up until he got another one. He would buy the Sunday paper as early as he could on Saturday evening, I look over the used furniture ads, and hustle out that night to get ahead of his competitors to restock his house.

However, the road up wasn't always easy going. There was the time he found a demand for pot-bellied stoves and announced he would purchase all he could get at $1 and $2 each. Naturally he picked up quite a few, and every day about noon a man would come around and sell him one. There was a good market so he was surprised when one of his assistants told him they were running short.

"But we must be overstocked," he insisted.

He found out later one of his employees had been taking a stove out the back door every day and selling it to him at the front entrance. He didn't fire him.

"It taught me a lesson," he explained. "I ought to have been smart enough to recognize the same piece of goods I had bought before."

In the early days, he would purchase anything that he saw. After unloading a stack of furniture one afternoon at his store, which he had by this time acquired, he spotted a Mexican kid with a chair, and he offered him $2 for it. The youngster promptly closed the deal for cash and disappeared before the merchant discovered he had stolen it from him while the truck was backed up and the movers were looking the other way.

As the business grew, he decided he should put in a bookkeeping system instead of trying to remember the accounts due, since he extended credit to all sorts of dubious customers. He got a desk, filing cabinet, and other paraphernalia necessary to open up the department. Then somebody came along who wanted to buy the whole works. He couldn't resist the temptation to make a sale, and the plan went into the discard for another six months.

The man's name is Emil P. Berkowitz of Denver, and I believe he is now the proprietor of three or four flourishing stores with bookkeeping systems, too. He deals in all kinds of furniture including antiques, although he once lost a small fortune by selling some of these he didn't recognize. He found out his mistake later when they brought a fabulous figure at an auction.

This is meant to be a timely piece to encourage the boys and girls, who are now graduating from college and starting out in life, to realize there are still opportunities if they will think and hustle.

Coal-Fueled Electricity Expected To Take Over Many Energy Jobs

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—Coal-fueled electricity will take over many of the energy jobs now done by gas and oil within the next 10 years or perhaps as early as 1958, the 46th annual convention of the Air Pollution Control Association was told recently.

The speaker was George A. Lamb, manager of business surveys of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co.

Lamb said that if the growth trend of energy use is merely extended at its present rate, electricity may surge forward to its greatest outburst in growth in the decade ahead.

He said that during the period 1946 to 1952, marketed production of gas doubled; demands for light oils increased 75 per cent, and the use of electricity grew 72 per cent.

He said the same tempo of growth would require by 1958 a supply of 16 trillion cubic feet of gas; four and a half billion barrels of crude oil and 800 billion kilowatt-hours of electric energy.

Lamb declared that such a demand would cause "radical changes in the pattern of energy use due to the difficulties and costs of obtaining the basic fuel sources."

He said it would be "virtually impossible" for gas and oil to sustain another growth of that scope, while electricity, "which can be generated from plentiful coal reserves, will have no such fundamental difficulties of supply."

He estimated that shifts in end-use energy would involve supplementing or replacing residential gas and oil applications with electricity which would require more than 50 million tons of coal to generate.

He predicted that for industrial uses, gas and oil would be supplemented or replaced by more than 150 million tons of coal, partly through direct use and partly through coal-fueled electric power.

He predicted that electric power, "already competitive with gas in a wider area than many realize," would see wide use for hot water heating, cooking and various industrial processes.

"Combinations of heating and air conditioning will increasingly take over segments of the heating market, particularly for new homes and in areas where temporary shortages of gas, as well as forthcoming price increases, provide an entry wedge," Lamb said.

"Meanwhile, as oil demand mounts toward the projected 4.5 billion barrel point, the pinch on supply and higher replacement costs will force changes in oil refining and marketing. Use of distillates for space heating will start to fall by the wayside and electricity will compete for this home heating market. The production of residual fuel oil will be held to the technological minimum and industrial steam boilers now fueled by residual oil will again turn to coal," he added.

Tuck-Away Tie

Team tries built-in tie.

FASHION: When you wear a two-way collar, all you usually have to do is put on or take off a tie. Now there's a new shirt that makes the change-over even simpler. It has a built-in bow tie attached to the collar. When you want to convert from tie to tielessness, you just open the collar and tuck the tie through slits in the collar band. This practical idea comes in styles for men and women, as the dance team of Darvas & Julia (at right) demonstrates.

Puzzlers: I am bothered by barbers who give you a paper or magazine—then talk so much you can't read it! . . . It always rains when you wear a new suit or hat. But when you dress for bad weather, it turns beautiful and you look like a bum! . . . You carry a heavy suitcase all the way to the door of a railroad station—then pay a quarter to have it carried the last fifty yards.

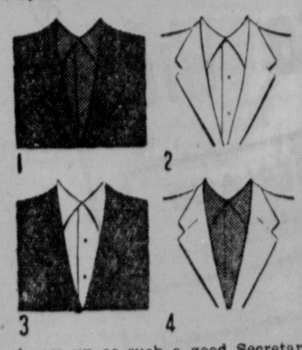
Dress Tips: When you select your new straw hat, buy a couple extra interchangeable bands. Gives the effect of owning a whole hat wardrobe. . . . Tasseled moccasins, while designed for sportswear, are being widely worn with business clothes. For office wear, however, one should wear only dark-stained leathers.

New Ideas: A bedside night light, shaped like a candle, which turns on when you pick it up. . . . Now there are scissors and shears for the 9 per cent of our population that's left-handed.

Clothes Care: If golf slacks are grass-stained, most spots can be removed by rubbing well with soap or detergent before washing. . . . Avoid the danger of rust stains by giving the metal parts of coat hangers a good cleaning before you hang up your light-colored summer clothes. . . . Store fine wool socks for the summer in a cookie or pretzel tin. To be safe, seal with cellulose tape.

Gift for Gals: Marchal, a New York jeweler who made up the now-famous "life story" charm bracelet for Mrs. Eisenhower, is doing the same for other females. A donor merely jots down the highlights of a person's life to suggest the charms that tell the story.

Odd Items: Piano wizard Jan August saw this sign outside a barber shop—"We Service Your Puss 'N Boots." . . . World's record for long strikes must be the one in Dun Laoghaire, Eire, where three bartenders have been picketing a pub for more than fifteen years—and it's still on! . . . This week is the anniversary of the first baseball game played at night. It happened in Fort Wayne, Indiana—in 1883!



Contrasts Again: Thought it might be a good idea to bring up the matter of proper combinations in sport shirts and jackets. May we remind you to stay away from dark-colored shirts when wearing a dark jacket (see drawing, 1)—you look too sombre; and from light shirts with light jackets (2)—you may look washed-out. Stick to dark jacket with light shirt (3) and vice versa (4).

Pass the Cigars: This week to—Missourian John Snyder, who in retrospect shapes up as such a good Secretary of the Treasury that even his successor, the GOP's George M. Humphrey, has had kind things to say about his conduct of the office!

Season, Family Tickets Planned For Park Pool

The City Recreation Department will offer season tickets to the Constitution Park swimming pool, according to Robert E. Pence director.

Family tickets will also be issued at reduced rates in order to encourage the daily use of the pool and to ease the financial burden for larger families.

Cost of the season tickets will be $5.50 for adults and $3.50 for children. Present admission is 15 cents for children up to and including 12 years, and 30 cents for those 13 or over.

The season or family tickets cannot, however, be used on Sundays or holidays, when the pool is crowded.

Since there are 83 swimming days, excluding Sundays and holidays in the current season, Pence said, the cost of a $3.50 ticket would be about 23 swims

The family tickets will be issued at the rate of $3.50 for the first child, $6 for two or $8 for three children from the same family.

Pence said the department has received a number of calls from parents who have large families, urging that some system be adopted to ease the financial burden and to make it possible to send all of the children to the pool at the same time.

The pool is open daily, from noon until 9 p.m.

Vets Entering School Given Pointers By VA

For the benefit of Korean veterans, the Veterans Administration offers three important pointers for those planning to take education under provisions of the Korean GI Bill.

The first point is that the veteran should give careful thought to the program on which he will enter and the vocational or professional goal he aims for. Under the law, he will be permitted only one change of course. A counseling service is provided by the Veterans Administration.

As a second point, veterans are cautioned to provide themselves with sufficient cash funds to tide them over the first two months of schooling. Under provisions of the present law, veterans in training cannot expect to receive checks from the Veterans Administration till around the end of the second month in training.

The third pointer for Korean veterans is to make sure that the school they plan to attend has been approved for GI training by the State concerned.

Eligible for the Korean GI training program are veterans who have served anywhere in the world in the U. S. armed forces since June 27, 1950.

Self-Supporting Photographic Squadron Gives American Navy Eyes Of Winged Cat

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent

SANFORD, Fla. — "Join the Navy and See the World"—that slogan really fits one outfit here. Photographic Squadron 62 has given the United States Navy the eyes of a winged cat.

Its nine teams, equipped to support themselves independently, are ready today for global photography—and, catlike, it can stalk its quarry day or night by means of radar cameras.

Sanford, a resort town on Lake Monroe (a wide place in the St. John river) in the heart of the alligator country, is its home. Here it spends its time improving its technique.

Keen and energetic Cmdr. "Jeff" Kennedy Jr., who has been around in military circles for 15 years sparks the photo recon unit. A former fighter pilot, Kennedy knows how necessary it is to have exact information and instructions in the hands of combat men.

From years of carrier duty, he's learned the hard way that the effectiveness of bombing crews is only as good as the intelligence supplied by reconnaissance groups.

In a sentence, the mission of VJ-62 is "to provide aerial photographic intelligence for naval operations." And the cat-like eyes of the AJ-2P plane give the Navy a whole new dimension in photographic reconnaissance.

"Task forces" of about 35 men are the heart of the operation. To distinguish one from the other, Kennedy uses color. His own is red; his executive, Lt. Cmdr. D. C. McNeill, white, the next blue, and so on down the line through black, green, yellow, red and black, green and white and blue and yellow.

These colors begin on the propeller spinners, and end on the handles of the wrenches and hammers of the technicians responsible for servicing the airplanes.

Each "task force," or photographic reconnaissance team consists of three parts; The first part is the flight crew. It consists of two pilots, a photo technician, two mechanics and a radioman.

Supporting them is a ground crew of maintenance men. Their job is to keep the airplane to which they are assigned constantly ready to fly.

The third section of the team is the photo crew — a photo interpreter, a camera repairman and two technicians. Their concern is to maintain the quality of the end product, films of targets assigned and photographed by the crew.

With a team, or "task force," trained, organized and functioning properly, it can be detached from the base headquarters, and support itself anywhere in the world.

Three types of missions are flown to fulfill the assigned mission of conducting aerial reconnaissance. They include pin-point missions, when crews must navigate to an exact position and return with a single photograph of a target area.

These are considered to be comparatively easy, although they may become involved if a crew is assigned three or four such targets on a single mission, as is often the case.

Strip mapping on film is slightly more difficult, particularly when a strip or series of strips must be flown, with only a filling station road map as the initial guide.

In addition, the squadron must be able to operate all of the assigned photographic and interpretation facilities provided by the Navy. It is also responsible for making cartographic surveys. For many years this was the primary duty of naval heavy recon outfits.

Reaching for the procedure manual, Kennedy reads a brief quote: "To accomplish this mission, the squadron personnel will be formed into operational teams. Each team shall be capable of deploying and carrying out assigned photographic tasks.

"The number of these operational teams will be determined by the aircraft assigned to the squadron. The formation and deployment of such teams shall be accomplished in such a manner as to cause a minimum of disruption of the squadron administrative organization."

To Kennedy, that meant that virtually all of his aircraft commanders had to wear two hats. He sets the pace, flying ship No. 1, sometimes as much as five hours a day.

One really effective plan that Kennedy works to the limit, is to try to get as many flying hours as possible for his men. They never know when he or one of the other aircraft commanders is going to invite them to go along on a mission. This keeps every man doing his best.

LONDON (INS) — We seldom go in for scoops, for a somewhat naive reason. We have a bad habit of calling up a key figure involved in an embryo scoop and checking with him or her whether it's true.

Most of the time he or she says "it's ridiculous" or "it's right but please don't print it, it would kill Granny."

However, here is a scoop that will cause consternation. Maybe not in Nashville but certainly in Nagasaki. Maybe not in Osawatomie but unquestionably in Osaka. Maybe not in Takoma but indubitably in Tokyo. We don't know the key figure. Couldn't get him on the phone. I know nobody who knows him well enough. Akihito danced.

Not only that, he danced twice, during his trip to London for the coronation. The imperial crown prince of Japan danced to recorded music at parties given by his host, Lord Armstrong, British shipbuilding tycoon, at Cragside, Rothbury, Northumberland.

You don't think that is much of a scoop compared to who was seen with whom at the Club Marijuana last night? Well, hear this: For millions of Japanese that's as astohishing as an announcement from the White House that Ike has taken up tennis or eloped with Mrs. Benjamin Harrison.

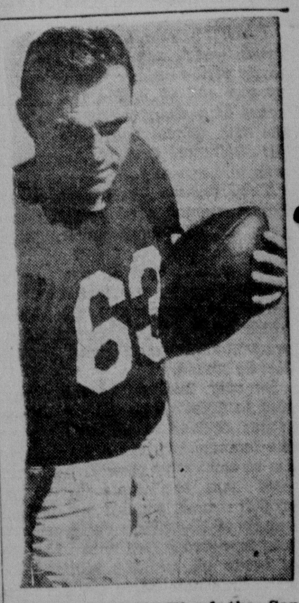
We get this startling news from British sources who were present when the most shielded visitor to the coronation broke loose from a couple thousand years of tradition and tripped over the light fantastic.

Others say they saw it coming. On the good ships President Wilson and Queen Mary en route across the Pacific and Atlantic the young prince looked longingly at happy dancing couples.

He had learned a few rudimentary steps at Peers School College in Tokyo, which he attends three nights a week, with hand-picked companions. But it took a brave young man to "break" dance-conscious British society girls. Akihito was sufficiently brave. It took a brave young man to snap the ancient prejudice against what most westerners consider good clean fun. Akihito was again sufficiently brave.

Prewar Japanese authorities looked with such jaundiced eye at dancing, regarding it immoral, that they saddled it with extreme restrictions. Even in prewar public dance halls a would-be dancer had to sign a register giving his name, address, age and occupation before being allowed on the floor. Police took the register to the nearest station every night and made copies of it.

What Akihito did to improve British-Japanese relations while in England he did in spite of those who wished to keep him remote.



ACE QUARTERBACK of the San Francisco 49ers for several years, Frankie Albert, former Stanford All-American, said he expects to play in the Canadian football league this fall, having received "an overwhelming offer." Albert's reported top pay with the Frisco team was $22,500. (International)

People who met him at Lord Armstrong's found him as pleasant, good-natured young man who is shy about his English and French, who is a good sport, with commendable weakness for new neckties.

He slipped away from a bobbie on guard at the Japanese Embassy the other day, as well as from a Scotland Yard bodyguard, and took a long ride around London in a cab, eating sandwiches and sucking on a soft drink.

He wanted to see the city's bizarre decorations and it was the only way he could find to do it. The ride cost him two pounds. He gave the driver, who did not recognize him, a half crown tip.

For all Akihito's efforts to get away and meet people, it is still regrettably true that the next ruler of Japan must inevitably leave Britain — as he must leave every other place he is scheduled to go during his world trip — dependent on embassy-type crowds to familiarize him with the peoples of those lands. His American instructress gave him a good start, and he has shown he'd like to descend a bit out of his ivory tower, and he is doing so. That he has emerged as much as he has portends eventual good for the free world and democratic ideals in the Far East. It's hoped he can make other successful escapes, even to buy a tie.

Magistrate Gets No Town Funds

No provisions were provided for paying for services of Trial Magistrate Carl W. Shaffer in the budget adopted Wednesday night at a meeting of the Westernport Mayor and City Council.

Shaffer last year was paid $25 per month by the town and provided heat and lights for his office. Mayor Okey Michael stated that since the bill passed in the General Assembly this year provided payment for such services, it was not included in the budget effective July 1.

The bill passed by the Assembly provides office facilities for trial magistrates.

A budget of $86,491 was approved by the council and the city tax rate was set at 80 cents per $100 of assessed real estate. The tax rate is the same as last year.

An appropriation of $1,520 was provided in the budget for the Potomac Fire Company. William Mayles, chief, has requested such an amount to match that donated by the state.

The council also approved a donation of $10 per month to the Westernport Health Center. John E. Grindle, chairman of the certer, stated that the same amount was donated last year.

Benjamin Franklin was the first postmaster general of the United States.

Magistrate Gets No Town Funds

No provisions were provided for paying for services of Trial Magistrate Carl W. Shaffer in the budget adopted Wednesday night at a meeting of the Westernport Mayor and City Council.

Shaffer last year was paid $25 per month by the town and provided heat and lights for his office. Mayor Okey Michael stated that since the bill passed in the General Assembly this year provided payment for such services, it was not included in the budget effective July 1.

The bill passed by the Assembly provides office facilities for trial magistrates.

A budget of $86,491 was approved by the council and the city tax rate was set at 80 cents per $100 of assessed real estate. The tax rate is the same as last year.

An appropriation of $1,520 was provided in the budget for the Potomac Fire Company. William Mayles, chief, has requested such an amount to match that donated by the state.

The council also approved a donation of $10 per month to the Westernport Health Center. John E. Grindle, chairman of the center, stated that the same amount was donated last year.

Benjamin Franklin was the first postmaster general of the United States.

Bishop Oxnam Receives Support As Maryland Methodists Convene

WESTMINSTER, Md., June 4 (AP)—Representatives of 176,000 Methodists in the Maryland-Washington area stood up for their bishop today in his fuss with members of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Applauding Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, they demanded a public apology from Rep. Jackson (R-Calif) for "disrespectful remarks to our distinguished bishop and the affront given to the Methodist Church."

Bishop Oxnam, resident bishop of Washington and sometimes called the national voice of Methodism, has criticized the committee's staff as "incompetent" and declared its files are "90 per cent false, irrelevant or at least unverified."

Jackson shot back that the bishop "works for the Lord on Sunday and the Communist fronts the rest of the week."

Bishop Oxnam charged the committee's files connect him with organizations to which he never belonged and others he left before their loyalty was questioned.

The action on his behalf today came at the opening of the Baltimore Annual Conference, one of the three over which he presides. It is made up of about 475 pastors and lay delegates from 324 churches in Washington and the Maryland counties west of Chesapeake Bay.

The six district superintendents suggested the demand for the apology from Jackson in their annual report.

The superintendents said in their report:

"We rejoice in Bishop Oxnam's leadership. We regret that he has been misunderstood, vilified and persecuted for taking a position on an issue vital to the continuance of freedom in the land.

"Our people are beginning to understand the necessity for his action.

"We call our Methodist people to stand by our bishop in his heroic fight for the sanctity of the individual."

The superintendents decried what they called "some who use 'a cause for alarm' to gain political prestige."

The report of the superintendents—three from Baltimore, two from Washington, and one representing the Hagerstown district in Western Maryland—was the first business at the four-day annual session of the conference.

Alumni Hall at Western Maryland College was packed with ministers, lay delegates and church officials as the conference opened with a communion service and a memorial to conference members who have died since last year.

Tonight's session was set aside to launch a $800,000 church extension crusade in the conference.

The crusade is to start Sept. 1 and continue into November. About $600,000 of the money will be used to help build new churches or enlarge present ones in new and growing communities.

The need for this was outlined in the report of the superintendents.

"We cannot sustain ourselves at the present level of achievement without a vital extension," the

"We must [illegible] out where the people are. Our timing has been bad. We had better get on with this business of building new churches in new fields against the day when the old must die."

The Rev. Norman L. Trott, superintendent of the Baltimore South District and secretary of the superintendents' cabinet, estimated $2½ million already has been committed in the conference for new buildings or expansions.

He presented a report showing membership of the 324 churches or charges has grown to 176,567 in the past year—a gain of about 2,400 or 1.4 per cent. This does not include the youngsters among 129,567 enrolled in Sunday Schools.

"We cannot be content year by year to report slight net gains in membership when such gains are less than the population growth of the area," the report said.

Figures showed church membership lagging about 2 per cent behind population growth and Sunday School enrollments almost 20 per cent behind the population increases among the younger generation.

Financial matters touched on in the report painted a brighter picture of record giving.

The churches contributed almost a million dollars during the year to regional, national and international work of the church—not counting the money given to support local churches.

This was a gain of 10 per cent and extended, the superintendents said, "into almost every area of the church's life."

Friday's program includes reports by various boards, committees, and commissions, a special hour set aside for a message from Bishop Oxnam, a separate session for the Women's Society of Christian Service.

A report Friday night by the Social Projects Commission may touch off lively discussion. It includes another endorsement of Bishop Oxnam, a statement of the Christian attitude toward communism, suggestions for combatting crime, pronouncements on marriage and divorce problems and gambling.

More than two dozen new ministers are to be received into conference membership on Saturday and ordained on Sunday. Bishop Oxnam will address a youth rally Saturday night. The conference closes Sunday with a worship service, Bishop Oxnam preaching, and the announcement of ministerial assignments for the coming year.

Worm Confused About Seasons

The worm has turned!

During his investigation into the cause of the defoliation of oak trees in one section of Garrett County recently Dr. Ernest Cory, state entomologist at the University of Maryland, came up with an unusual answer.

Despite the fact that trees usually are at the heighth of their beauty this time of the year the oak trees in an area from Oakland to the upper end of Deep Creek Lake resembled ones caught in the annual Fall dropping of foliage.

Dr. Cory's probing of samples of the leaves and trees revealed that the Fall canker worm was causing the leaves of the oak trees to drop. It is not known why the worm has turned—Summer into Fall.

"STRONG" POSTAL BUSINESS—The ramp is an allegedly edible mountain plant with a strong odor, compared to which the smells of onion and garlic are as mild as a spring breeze. Nicholas Countians, who take pride in the quality of their ramps, have undertaken to acquaint the remainder of West Virginia with them by mailing boxes of the plants to civic groups and officials throughout the state. Handling the mailing job is the Richwood Lions Club. At the head of this post office line of Lions waiting to mail their pungent parcels is Ed Judy, club president. (AP Photo)

Jackson shot back that the bishop "works for the Lord on Sunday and the Communist fronts the rest of the week."

Bishop Oxnam charged the committee's files connect him with organizations to which he never belonged and others he left before their loyalty was questioned.

The action on his behalf today came at the opening of the Baltimore Annual Conference, one of the three over which he presides. It is made up of about 475 pastors and lay delegates from 324 churches in Washington and the Maryland counties west of Chesapeake Bay.

The six district superintendents suggested the demand for the apology from Jackson in their annual report.

The superintendents said in their report:

"We rejoice in Bishop Oxnam's leadership. We regret that he has been misunderstood, vilified and persecuted for taking a position on an issue vital to the continuance of freedom in the land.

"Our people are beginning to understand the necessity for his action.

"We call our Methodist people to stand by our bishop in his heroic fight for the sanctity of the individual."

The superintendents decried what they called "some who use 'a cause for alarm' to gain political prestige."

The report of the superintendents—three from Baltimore, two from Washington, and one representing the Hagerstown district in Western Maryland—was the first business at the four-day annual session of the conference.

Alumni Hall at Western Maryland College was packed with ministers, lay delegates and church officials as the conference opened with a communion service and a memorial to conference members who have died since last year.

Tonight's session was set aside to launch a $800,000 church extension crusade in the conference.

The crusade is to start Sept. 1 and continue into November. About $600,000 of the money will be used to help build new churches or enlarge present ones in new and growing communities.

The need for this was outlined in the report of the superintendents.

"We cannot sustain ourselves at the present level of achievement without a vital extension," the report said.

"We must go out where the people are. Our timing has been bad. We had better get on with this business of building new churches in new fields against the day when the old must die."

The Rev. Norman L. Trott, superintendent of the Baltimore South District and secretary of the superintendents' cabinet, estimated $2½ million already has been committed in the conference for new buildings or expansions.

He presented a report showing membership of the 324 churches or charges has grown to 176,567 in the past year—a gain of about 2,400 or 1.4 per cent. This does not include the youngsters among 129,567 enrolled in Sunday Schools.

"We cannot be content year by year to report slight net gains in membership when such gains are less than the population growth of the area," the report said.

Figures showed church membership lagging about 2 per cent behind population growth and Sunday School enrollments almost 20 per cent behind the population increases among the younger generation.

Financial matters touched on in the report painted a brighter picture of record giving.

The churches contributed almost a million dollars during the year to regional, national and international work of the church—not counting the money given to support local churches.

This was a gain of 10 per cent and extended, the superintendents said, "into almost every area of the church's life."

Friday's program includes reports by various boards, committees, and commissions, a special hour set aside for a message from Bishop Oxnam, a separate session for the Women's Society of Christian Service.

A report Friday night by the Social Projects Commission may touch off lively discussion. It includes another endorsement of Bishop Oxnam, a statement of the Christian attitude toward communism, suggestions for combatting crime, pronouncements on marriage and divorce problems and gambling.

More than two dozen new ministers are to be received into conference membership on Saturday and ordained on Sunday. Bishop Oxnam will address a youth rally Saturday night. The conference closes Sunday with a worship service, Bishop Oxnam preaching, and the announcement of ministerial assignments for the coming year.

Worm Confused About Seasons

The worm has turned!

During his investigation into the cause of the defoliation of oak trees in one section of Garrett County recently Dr. Ernest Cory, state entomologist at the University of Maryland, came up with an unusual answer.

Despite the fact that trees usually are at the heighth of their beauty this time of the year the oak trees in an area from Oakland to the upper end of Deep Creek Lake resembled ones caught in the annual Fall dropping of foliage.

Dr. Cory's probing of samples of the leaves and trees revealed that the Fall canker worm was causing the leaves of the oak trees to drop. It is not known why the worm has turned—Summer into Fall.

"STRONG" POSTAL BUSINESS—The ramp is an allegedly edible mountain plant with a strong odor, compared to which the smells of onion and garlic are as mild as a spring breeze. Nicholas Countians, who take pride in the quality of their ramps, have undertaken to acquaint the remainder of West Virginia with them by mailing boxes of the plants to civic groups and officials throughout the state. Handling the mailing job is the Richwood Lions Club. At the head of this post office line of Lions waiting to mail their pungent parcels is Ed Judy, club president. (AP Photo)

Keyser Church Will Be Led By Seminarian

KEYSER — Arthur M. Lindsay, senior student at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., will be student pastor at the Keyser Presbyterian Church during the summer months, and until he returns to Virginia.

The vacancy in the church pastorate has been filled, by the appointment and acceptance of the position by Rev. John Daniel MacLeod, Jr., Th. D., of Sweet Hall, Va.

Dr. MacLeod will come to Keyser to begin his pastorate of the local Presbyterian Church in the fall, having asked for time to permit his pastorate at Sweet Hall, time to obtain a new pastor for that church, and to give Rev. MacLeod the opportunity to enjoy a summer vacation.

Keyser's new pastor is a native of North Carolina, but since he was ordained to the ministry following his graduation from Union Theological Seminary in Richmnod in 1949, he has served churches in North Carolina and Richmond, and has been a teacher in the seminary. Tree Removal At Kolberg's Hill Requested

WESTERNPORT — Mrs. Cecil Crowe asked at Westernport's Wednesday night Council meeting that a tree be removed and that a bank be cut back in the vicinity of Kolberg's Hill to improve traffic conditions.

City officials promised an inspection before making a decision. A letter of thanks was received from the Westernport and Luke Lions Club for cooperation in the recent spring clean-up campaign.

The communication of John E. Grindle, chairman of the Westernport Health Center, thanking the town for its support this year and asked it be continued again next year. It will be continued at the rate of $10 monthly.

It was ordered that two lights on Riordan Road be relocated to conform with the general light planning of the town.

A letter from H. A. Cohen, engineer in charge of the Federal Communication Commission in replies from Town of Westernport and Upper Potomac Television Company, do not furnish sufficient information upon which to base recommendations for alleviations of the interference in the Westernport area.

Consequently an investigation to determine the source of interference will be scheduled as soon as authorization is received from the commission.

Ray L. Wilt, Police and Fire Commissioner, reported that $333.20 had been received in fines and collections from parking meters during May.

PSS Schedules Summer School Registration

First Session To Begin On June 8

KEYSER—Monday will be registration day for summer school at Potomac State School. There will be two sessions.

The first session, June 8 through July 17, will have sessions five days each week. The second session, July 20 through August 22, will present sessions six days weekly.

It is possible for a student to complete on semester's work in a subject by attending that class for one of the six week's sessions. He will receive three credits for a lecture course and four for a laboratory course.

A student may carry two subjects during either session or both sessions, but only one of the two subjects may be a laboratory class.

Thus a student may earn a total of 6-7 credits by attending either session, and may accumulate 12-14 credits by attending the full 12 weeks.

Requirements for admission to Summer School include high school graduation. Certain exceptions are made for veterans.

Members of the regular teaching staff will instruct the classes in arts and science, music, pre-law, education, physical education, home economics, engineering, pre-medical, pre-dental, medical technology, business administration and agriculture.

Students planning to enroll should contact Dean K. S. McKee as soon as possible, so they may obtain forms for transcripts of high school credits and applications for admission.

The entire first floor of the picturesque home is being remodeled with attractive hand-worked paneling, drapes, new ceiling and flooring. New fixtures, furniture and an entirely new club-type bar are also being installed in the social quarters.

Herman Golumbeck, Frostburg contractor and decorator, started the remodeling project shortly after the first of the year and will have it completed about June 10. It is also planned to have the lodge room and remainder of the upper floor redecorated for the occasion.

The work is being done under the supervision of the board of trustees of the lodge, Richard C. Holben, Roy Kirby and Carmel Pinto.

The general committee in charge of the reopening celebration and district meeting includes Kirby, a former State Association officer as chairman, Richard Green and William Davis.

Benny Gerson, chairman of the committee on entertainment of delegates, is being assisted by Jack Dillon and Joe Montana.

John Keller, a past exalted ruler of Frostburg Lodge, will be in charge of luncheons during the two-day program, assisted by Walter Youngerman, Elmer Rupp, Willard Harvey, Charles Shultz and William Brode.

The regional meeting program includes registration at noon Saturday, followed by open house during the afternoon and a dance at night. Committee meetings will be held Sunday at 11 a. m., the general regional meeting at 2 p. m. and a buffet dinner from 4 to 6 p. m.

Tree Removal At Kolberg's Hill Requested

WESTERNPORT — Mrs. Cecil Crowe asked at Westernport's Wednesday night Council meeting that a tree be removed and that a bank be cut back in the vicinity of Kolberg's Hill to improve traffic conditions.

City officials promised an inspection before making a decision. A letter of thanks was received from the Westernport and Luke Lions Club for cooperation in the recent spring clean-up campaign.

The communication of John E. Grindle, chairman of the Westernport Health Center, thanking the town for its support this year and asked it be continued again next year. It will be continued at the rate of $10 monthly.

It was ordered that two lights on Riordan Road be relocated to conform with the general light planning of the town.

A letter from H. A. Cohen, engineer in charge of the Federal Communication Commission in replies from Town of Westernport and Upper Potomac Television Company, do not furnish sufficient information upon which to base recommendations for alleviations of the interference in the Westernport area.

Consequently an investigation to determine the source of interference will be scheduled as soon as authorization is received from the commission.

Ray L. Wilt, Police and Fire Commissioner, reported that $333.20 had been received in fines and collections from parking meters during May.

White House Architect Supposed To Retire This Week - But Doesn't

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The architect who had one of history's toughest architectural jobs, the renovation of the White House, officially began his retirement this week.

Actually, Lorenzo S. Winslow did no such thing.

When a reporter traced him down today, he and his sculptress daughter, Vaughan Bradford, were busily measuring the old Georgetown Presbyterian Church. It's his next renovating job, and Winslow didn't waste a minute getting at it.

"Depressing, isn't it?" said Winslow cheerfully, for he's one of those persons whose expressions don't always match their words. "Dismal."

The old, barnlike church, with its bare, dull walls, was pretty dismal at that. But Winslow said the White House was worse when he first saw it.

Speaking of the White House, Winslow said:

"Some of the rooms were dirty, and badly in need of paint. And the kitchen—you've never seen anything like that. A really gloomy place, with rat holes in the woodwork."

Winslow said the White House, like any old, wooden building, always had a rat problem. He said the rats used to hide behind a dumbwaiter—"We found mummified turkey bones there."

Winslow remembered that the White House wash used to be hung to dry outside the room where the Cabinet met.

A little embarrassing, wasn't it?

"It depends on what was hung out," Winslow, a realist, said.

Now 61, Winslow spent three years with the Army Corps of Engineers and 10 more as an architect in Greensboro, N. C., before coming to Washington in 1931.

He did a few jobs for Hoover, and became White House architect under Roosevelt. That's what he has been ever since.

His job has involved some unusual chores:

Designing the White House swimming pool, fixing up that balcony on the south portico—Harry's Balcony, the scoffers called it in the Truman administration—and building a steam bath for Roosevelt so he could be pushed in, chair and all.

The climax came with the renovation of the White House, a five million dollar job complicated by the fact that the innards were rebuilt while the outside shell was left standing.

The hardest part in redesigning the old place turned out to be the placing of the air conditioning ducts so they wouldn't be obvious. "We never did hide all of them completely," Winslow said.

The work, after four and a half years, finally was finished. As far as Winslow knows, everyone is happy except possibly rats who yearn for presidential turkey bones. Concrete and steel, he said, should keep them out.

How did he feel when the job was done at last?

"Relieved," Winslow said.

And the man who had just retired went back to work.

White House Architect Supposed To Retire This Week - But Doesn't

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The architect who had one of history's toughest architectural jobs, the renovation of the White House, officially began his retirement this week.

Actually, Lorenzo S. Winslow did no such thing.

When a reporter traced him down today, he and his sculptress daughter, Vaughan Bradford, were busily measuring the old Georgetown Presbyterian Church. It's his next renovating job, and Winslow didn't waste a minute getting at it.

"Depressing, isn't it?" said Winslow cheerfully, for he's one of those persons whose expressions don't always match their words. "Dismal."

The old, barnlike church, with its bare, dull walls, was pretty dismal at that. But Winslow said the White House was worse when he first saw it.

Speaking of the White House, Winslow said:

"Some of the rooms were dirty, and badly in need of paint. And the kitchen—you've never seen anything like that. A really gloomy place, with rat holes in the woodwork."

Winslow said the White House, like any old, wooden building, always had a rat problem. He said the rats used to hide behind a dumbwaiter—"We found mummified turkey bones there."

Winslow remembered that the White House wash used to be hung to dry outside the room where the Cabinet met.

A little embarrassing, wasn't it?

"It depends on what was hung out," Winslow, a realist, said.

Now 61, Winslow spent three years with the Army Corps of Engineers and 10 more as an architect in Greensboro, N. C., before coming to Washington in 1931.

He did a few jobs for Hoover, and became White House architect under Roosevelt. That's what he has been ever since.

His job has involved some unusual chores:

Designing the White House swimming pool, fixing up that balcony on the south portico—Harry's Balcony, the scoffers called it in the Truman administration—and building a steam bath for Roosevelt so he could be pushed in, chair and all.

The climax came with the renovation of the White House, a five million dollar job complicated by the fact that the innards were rebuilt while the outside shell was left standing.

The hardest part in redesigning the old place turned out to be the placing of the air conditioning ducts so they wouldn't be obvious. "We never did hide all of them completely," Winslow said.

The work, after four and a half years, finally was finished. As far as Winslow knows, everyone is happy except possibly rats who yearn for presidential turkey bones. Concrete and steel, he said, should keep them out.

How did he feel when the job was done at last?

"Relieved," Winslow said.

And the man who had just retired went back to work.

Fort Hill Beats AHS, 7-3, To Share City Title With LaSalle

Six Extra Base Blows Feature Sentinel Win

Ed Dickel Tosses 4-Hitter To Give Victors 8-8 Record

Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill High School tossers tied LaSalle High's Explorers for 1953 city scholastic baseball honors yesterday by taking the final game of their series from Allegany High School at Fort Hill Field by the score of 7-3.

The victory was the third in four starts for the Sentinels in the city championship race. LaSalle closed with a similar record while Allegany drew a blank in four starts against city foes.

Fort Hill swept its series with AHS, 2-0 and 7-3, and split even with LaSalle, winning 10-4 and losing 3-0.

Ed Dickel went the route in Fort Hill's final game of the 1953 campaign and limited the Campers to four hits, including a two-run homer by Harry Iser and a triple by Rickey Schramm. He struck out six and closed out the campaign with a 4-3 record.

By winning Fort Hill concluded its Bi-State Conference schedule with a .500 record—eight victories and eight losses.

The Hilltoppers solved the offerings of Bobby Dawson and Harry Iser for 10 safeties, including five triples and a two-bagger. Leamon, McGregor and Kline paced the assault with two blows each. Dawson was charged with the loss.

Schramm accounted for two of Allegany's four safeties. Box:

Pirates Annex Third Straight From Cubs, 6-1

Bob Hall Racks Up Initial Major Win

PITTSBURGH, June 4 (AP) — Bob Hall scattered seven hits after a shaky first inning to whip Chicago 6-1 today for his first major league victory and the third straight for the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Cubs.

Ralph Kiner, traded by the Pirates to the Cubs in a 10-player swap before the game, collected a double in the sixth inning for one of the Cubs' two extra base knocks. Ed Miksis trippled in the first and scored the lone Cub run.

Three other players involved in the deal also saw action. Preston Ward, who moved over to the Pirates, singled in four trips. George Metkovich and Joe Garagiola appeared in pinch hitting roles for the Cubs. Both flied out.

Hall gave up three hits in the first frame then coasted the rest of the way. Paul Minner, the Cubs starter, lost his fifth game.

Hogan Assured Bed, To Play In Tourney

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 4 (AP)—The way is clear for Ben Hogan to come to Carnoustie and play the British Open golf tournament. Ben now has a bed.

J. A. Walker, manager of the carnoustie Bruce Hotel, will give Hogan his own room and bed if nothing else can be found for the Texas star.

Just before sending his entry for his first tournament in Britain, Hogan said, "I want to play in the Open. But, there is only one hotel in the vicinity of the course and I understand it is full.

"If I can't get in, I can't play."

Governor Must Make Athletic Appointments

Racing And Boxing Vacancies Exist

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin has those interested in athletic appointments wondering today when he is going to fill two vacancies.

One on the Maryland Racing Commission has been vacant for six months. The other on the State Athletic Commission expired Sunday and involves the chairmanship.

The delay in naming a racing commissioner is one of the longest in the memory of veteran horsemen. The vacancy has existed since Frank Small Jr. resigned at the start of the year to go to Congress.

The governor reportedly finally has made up his mind on his choice, but the nominee has to clear up some details before being named.

It's speculated that one of the details might be the governor's intention to wait until July 1. That's when the term of one of the two present commissioners, H. Courtenay Jenifer, expires.

The governor could then name the new commissioner to Jenifer's full six-year-term and appoint Jenifer to Small's unexpired term which has until 1955 to run. The law requires that at least one of the three commissioners represent the minority party and Jenifer fulfills that qualification for the Democrats.

The chairman of the commission is D. Eldred Rinehart, state chairman of the Republican party. The new member undoubtedly will be a Republican.

Insiders claim politics is working in strange ways around the appointment of chairman of the athletic commission.

The expired term is that of Jim Holmes, a Democrat. On the commission is Marshall Boone, a Republican stalwart. Yet it's believed that Holmes will be reappointed with the backing of Jack Pollack, the Democratic leader in Baltimore's fourth district.

The governor is a Republican.

A Democrat also is mentioned as an outsider if Holmes is to be replaced. Friends of Dr. George Earl Wilkerson are booming him to the governor. Wilkerson and McKeldin have been lifelong friends.

The athletic commission is in charge of boxing and wrestling bouts.

New Baseball Loop May Be Organized

FREDERICK, Md., June 4 (AP)—baseball promoters from eight cities in Maryland and Pennsylvania will meet here Sunday to discuss the prospect of organizing a Class C or Class B professional baseball league.

Thomas S. Glass, chairman of the McCurdy Field Commission here, said today "Frederick will be an observant rather than a keynote host" for the meeting.

He said he and Mayor Donald B. Rice would "sit in" on discussions with representatives from Hagerstown, Cambridge, Salisbury and Easton, Md. and Sunbury, Lancaster and Chambersburg, Pa., and see what developed before taking action.

Added Glass: "I would rather let the meeting speak for itself. Frederick has previously had three false alarms on bringing organized baseball back here. Twice we have had major league backing and were voted a franchise into organizing circuits only to have the leagues blow up."

This city's last professional team was in the Old Blue Ridge League nearly a quarter-century ago.

The estate of George Washington totaled 8,000 acres.

As You Were

When Vic Ricker was promoting professional boxing shows here regularly in the 1930s, this featherweight appeared in at least a dozen of his shows.

A native of Mount Pleasant, Pa., this chubby little fellow started fighting in Jersey City, N.J., when he was 16 years old and figured in 26 amateur matches in the Skeeter State.

Three years later he returned to Mount Pleasant, joined the National Guard and won the 28th Division Featherweight championship at Mount Gretna, now Indiantown Gap, Pa.

In 1925 he returned to Jersey City, turned pro and appeared in 26 matches in New York and New Jersey rings. He appeared in three shows at Madison Square Garden and was in a six-round prelim on the same card with "Bud" Gorman and Jack Delaney and James J. Braddock and Paul Cavalier in Jersey City. That was before Braddock became world's heavyweight champion.

He has appeared in shows in Uniontown, Connellsville, Youngstown, Cleveland and Detroit under the management of Jim Jennings and in most of these matches he was handled by Tony Zill, former lightweight star of Youngstown, Ohio.

When he boxed such boxers as Joey Farrie, Young Altis and Tony Marino here he was managed by the late Frank Doolan of Lonaconing.

Altogether he had appeared in approximately 100 matches when he retired from the ring in 1937. He still makes his home here. Can you name him?

The round little fellow is Matthew Sabbatiese, better known as "Mushy" Saber. He's been a barber at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad YMCA here for nine years. Willie Burns, Jersey City flyweight star of bygone days, tagged him with the nickname "Mushy."

John McVicker Is Hazelwood Award Winner

Fort Hill Athlete Is 13th To Receive Gold Wrist Watch

John McVicker, three sports star, was the recipient of the 13th annual Hazelwood Award, at the commencement exercises held last night at Fort Hill High School.

McVicker, who starred in track, football and basketball, is a son of John R. McVicker, physics and general science teacher at Fort Hill High School.

The award, a gold wrist watch donated by George F. Hazelwood, well known local contractor, goes annually to the Fort Hill male student who is considered the best all-around athlete at the school. The student is judged by the members of the three upper grades of the school and approved by the faculty on the basis of athletic ability, scholastic standing, leadership, loyalty and sportsmanship.

After starring as halfback on the Sentinels' grid team last fall, McVicker was named the Knights of Columbus' annual Football Player of the Year. During the 1953 track season he headed the Fort Hill point getters with 88 in eight meets.

The Hazelwood Award was instituted in 1941.

Kiwanis, Times-News Teams Are Defeated

The Jaycees nosed out the Kiwanis Club in eight innings, 8-7, and the Rotary Club turned back the Times-News, 4-1, in Hot Stove Baseball League games played last night at Penn Avenue Field.

A two-run rally in the top of the 8th enabled the Jaycees to pull the extra inning decision out of the fire.

Dunbar and Parsons, Jaycee pitchers, struck out 15 batsmen while Merkle of Kiwanis whiffed nine and gave up nine passes.

Stinson of the Jaycees and Weatherholt of the Kiwanis had two hits each. Kiwanis had five extra base hits — a homer by Weatherholt, triples by Saylor and Berkenbaugh and a two-bagger by Turley.

Jesse Markley tossed a three-hitter and struck out 19 in pitching the Rotarians to victory over the Times-News.

The winners collected 10 hits off Arthur Washington who struck out 13. Ronnie Mayo and Billy Smith headed the Rotary attack with two hits each. The scores:

Nee has returned from Texas where he last pitched for the Pampa Oilers of the West Texas and New Mexico League. Mt. Savage occupies fourth place in the six-club circuit with a record of three wins and four losses.

Beall Stays In Bi-State Race, Defeats LaSalle In Tenth, 8-7

Wild Pitch Decides; Hyndman Could Win Championship Today

A wild pitch by Reliefer Jerry Loibel in the tenth inning enabled Beall High School to score the run that defeated LaSalle High's Explorers yesterday at Frostburg by the score of 8-7 and kept the Mountaineers in the race with Hyndman High School's pacesetters for the championship of the Bi-State Baseball Conference.

LaSalle tied up the game at 6-6 in the fifth and broke the deadlock in the top of the tenth when Hudson walked, pilfered second, advanced to third on Christ's single and scored on Thompson's error in centerfield.

Beall, however, came back with two tallies in the bottom of the tenth to put the game on ice.

Wild Pitch Decides

Kenny Johnson started the 10th by working Ronnie Connolly for a free ticket. Poland hit over second base and when Christ bobbled the ball, Johnson raced home with the tying run and Poland pulled up at third. With Summers at the plate and Loibel pitching, the latter uncorked a wild pitch and Poland crossed the platter with the deciding run.

The victory gave Beall an 11-4 record and put Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's outfit one full game back of Hyndman which leads with 12 wins and three losses.

Hyndman could sew up the championship if victorious over Mt. Savage today in a game scheduled at Mt. Savage. If Mt. Savage wins, however, Beall will be given an opportunity to tie up the race by playing Central on Saturday at Barton. The Saturday game will be cancelled if Hyndman wins today.

In another contest set for today, Bruce meets Central in Barton at 1:45 o'clock.

Richards Posts 10th Win

Tommy Richards notched his tenth victory of the season yesterday in turning back LaSalle. He was more generous than usual with passes, issuing a total of seven but he fired the third strike past 13 batsmen. Richards has lost only two games this season.

Lennox, Conroy, Connolly and Loibel toiled on the rubber for LaSalle and Connolly was tagged with the loss.

The game's only extra base hits were three-base wallops by LaPorta of Beall and Conroy of LaSalle.

Fort Hill Beats AHS, 7-3, To Share City Title With LaSalle

Ed Dickel Tosses 4-Hitter To Give Victors 8-8 Record

Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill High School tossers tied LaSalle High's Explorers for 1953 city scholastic baseball honors yesterday by taking the final game of their series from Allegany High School at Fort Hill Field by the score of 7-3.

The victory was the third in four starts for the Sentinels in the city championship race. LaSalle closed with a similar record while Allegany drew a blank in four starts against city foes.

Fort Hill swept its series with AHS, 2-0 and 7-3, and split even with LaSalle, winning 10-4 and losing 3-0.

Ed Dickel went the route in Fort Hill's final game of the 1953 campaign and limited the Campers to four hits, including a two-run homer by Harry Iser and a triple by Rickey Schramm. He struck out six and closed out the campaign with a 4-3 record.

By winning Fort Hill concluded its Bi-State Conference schedule with a .500 record—eight victories and eight losses.

The Hilltoppers solved the offerings of Bobby Dawson and Harry Iser for 10 safeties, including five triples and a two-bagger. Leamon, McGregor and Kline paced the assault with two blows each. Dawson was charged with the loss.

Schramm accounted for two of Allegany's four safeties. Box:

John McVicker Is Hazelwood Award Winner

Fort Hill Athlete Is 13th To Receive Gold Wrist Watch

John McVicker, three sports star, was the recipient of the 13th annual Hazelwood Award, at the commencement exercises held last night at Fort Hill High School.

McVicker, who starred in track, football and basketball, is a son of John R. McVicker, physics and general science teacher at Fort Hill High School.

The award, a gold wrist watch donated by George F. Hazelwood, well known local contractor, goes annually to the Fort Hill male student who is considered the best all-around athlete at the school. The student is judged by the members of the three upper grades of the school and approved by the faculty on the basis of athletic ability, scholastic standing, leadership, loyalty and sportsmanship.

After starring as halfback on the Sentinels' grid team last fall, McVicker was named the Knights of Columbus' annual Football Player of the Year. During the 1953 track season he headed the Fort Hill point getters with 88 in eight meets.

The Hazelwood Award was instituted in 1941.

JOINS BRAVES—Melvin 'Mel Nee, Bedford Valley (Pa.) righthander, who has pitched in several minor leagues in recent years, has joined the Mt. Savage Braves of the Bi-State League and is slated to pitch against the Westvaco Club Saturday when the teams tangle at 3 p. m. in Mt. Savage, Manager Charley Doyle announced last night. Nee has returned from Texas where he last pitched for the Pampa Oilers of the West Texas and New Mexico League. Mt. Savage occupies fourth place in the six-club circuit with a record of three wins and four losses.

Beall Stays In Bi-State Race, Defeats LaSalle In Tenth, 8-7

Wild Pitch Decides; Hyndman Could Win Championship Today

A wild pitch by Reliefer Jerry Loibel in the tenth inning enabled Beall High School to score the run that defeated LaSalle High's Explorers yesterday at Frostburg by the score of 8-7 and kept the Mountaineers in the race with Hyndman High School's pacesetters for the championship of the Bi-State Baseball Conference.

LaSalle tied up the game at 6-6 in the fifth and broke the deadlock in the top of the tenth when Hudson walked, pilfered second, advanced to third on Christ's single and scored on Thompson's error in centerfield.

Beall, however, came back with two tallies in the bottom of the tenth to put the game on ice.

Wild Pitch Decides

Kenny Johnson started the 10th by working Ronnie Connolly for a free ticket. Poland hit over second base and when Christ bobbled the ball, Johnson raced home with the tying run and Poland pulled up at third. With Summers at the plate and Loibel pitching, the latter uncorked a wild pitch and Poland crossed the platter with the deciding run.

The victory gave Beall an 11-4 record and put Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's outfit one full game back of Hyndman which leads with 12 wins and three losses.

Hyndman could sew up the championship if victorious over Mt. Savage today in a game scheduled at Mt. Savage. If Mt. Savage wins, however, Beall will be given an opportunity to tie up the race by playing Central on Saturday at Barton. The Saturday game will be cancelled if Hyndman wins today.

In another contest set for today, Bruce meets Central in Barton at 1:45 o'clock.

Richards Posts 10th Win

Tommy Richards notched his tenth victory of the season yesterday in turning back LaSalle. He was more generous than usual with passes, issuing a total of seven but he fired the third strike past 13 batsmen. Richards has lost only two games this season.

Lennox, Conroy, Connolly and Loibel toiled on the rubber for LaSalle and Connolly was tagged with the loss.

The game's only extra base hits were three-base wallops by LaPorta of Beall and Conroy of LaSalle.

Governor Must Make Athletic Appointments

Racing And Boxing Vacancies Exist

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin has those interested in athletic appointments wondering today when he is going to fill two vacancies.

One on the Maryland Racing Commission has been vacant for six months. The other on the State Athletic Commission expired Sunday and involves the chairmanship.

The delay in naming a racing commissioner is one of the longest in the memory of veteran horsemen. The vacancy has existed since Frank Small Jr. resigned at the start of the year to go to Congress.

The governor reportedly finally has made up his mind on his choice, but the nominee has to clear up some details before being named.

It's speculated that one of the details might be the governor's intention to wait until July 1. That's when the term of one of the two present commissioners, H. Courtenay Jenifer, expires.

The governor could then name the new commissioner to Jenifer's full six-year-term and appoint Jenifer to Small's unexpired term which has until 1955 to run. The law requires that at least one of the three commissioners represent the minority party and Jenifer fulfills that qualification for the Democrats.

The chairman of the commission is D. Eldred Rinehart, state chairman of the Republican party. The new member undoubtedly will be a Republican.

Insiders claim politics is working in strange ways around the appointment of chairman of the athletic commission.

The expired term is that of Jim Holmes, a Democrat. On the commission is Marshall Boone, a Republican stalwart. Yet it's believed that Holmes will be reappointed with the backing of Jack Pollack, the Democratic leader in Baltimore's fourth district.

The governor is a Republican. A Democrat also is mentioned as an outsider if Holmes is to be replaced. Friends of Dr. George Earl Wilkerson are booming him to the governor. Wilkerson and McKeldin have been lifelong friends.

The athletic commission is in charge of boxing and wrestling bouts.

As You Were

When Vic Ricker was promoting professional boxing shows here regularly in the 1930s, this featherweight appeared in at least a dozen of his shows.

A native of Mount Pleasant, Pa., this chubby little fellow started fighting in Jersey City, N.J., when he was 16 years old and figured in 26 amateur matches in the Skeeter State.

Three years later he returned to Mount Pleasant, joined the National Guard and won the 28th Division Featherweight championship at Mount Gretna, now Indiantown Gap, Pa.

In 1925 he returned to Jersey City, turned pro and appeared in 26 matches in New York and New Jersey rings. He appeared in three shows at Madison Square Garden and was in a six-round prelim on the same card with "Bud" Gorman and Jack Delaney and James J. Braddock and Paul Cavalier in Jersey City. That was before Braddock became world's heavyweight champion.

He has appeared in shows in Uniontown, Connellsville, Youngstown, Cleveland and Detroit under the management of Jim Jennings and in most of these matches he was handled by Tony Zill, former lightweight star of Youngstown, Ohio.

When he boxed such boxers as Joey Farrie, Young Altis and Tony Marino here he was managed by the late Frank Doolan of Lonaconing.

Altogether he had appeared in approximately 100 matches when he retired from the ring in 1937. He still makes his home here. Can you name him?

The round little fellow is Matthew Sabbatese, better known as "Musky." Saber. He's been a barber at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad YMCA here for nine years. Willie Burns, Jersey City flyweight star of bygone days, tagged him with the nickname "Musky."

Kiwanis, Times-News Teams Are Defeated

The Jaycees nosed out the Kiwanis Club in eight innings, 8-7, and the Rotary Club turned back the Times-News, 4-1, in Hot Stove Baseball League games played last night at Penn Avenue Field.

A two-run rally in the top of the 8th enabled the Jaycees to pull the extra inning decision out of the fire.

Dunbar and Parsons, Jaycee pitchers, struck out 15 batsmen while Merkle of Kiwanis whiffed nine and gave up nine passes.

Stinson of the Jaycees and Weatherholt of the Kiwanis had two hits each. Kiwanis had five extra base hits — a homer by Weatherholt, triples by Saylor and Berkenbaugh and a two-bagger by Turley.

Jesse Markley tossed a three-hitter and struck out 19 in pitching the Rotarians to victory over the Times-News.

The winners collected 10 hits off Arthur Washington who struck out 13. Ronnie Mayo and Billy Smith headed the Rotary attack with two hits each. The scores:

Pirates Annex Third Straight From Cubs, 6-1

Bob Hall Racks Up Initial Major Win

PITTSBURGH, June 4 (AP) — Bob Hall scattered seven hits after a shaky first inning to whip Chicago 6-1 today for his first major league victory and the third straight for the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Cubs.

Ralph Kiner, traded by the Pirates to the Cubs in a 10-player swap before the game, collected a double in the sixth inning for one of the Cubs' two extra base knocks. Ed Miksis trippled in the first and scored the lone Cub run.

Three other players involved in the deal also saw action. Preston Ward, who moved over to the Pirates, singled in four trips. George Metkovich and Joe Garagiola appeared in pinch hitting roles for the Cubs. Both flied out.

Hall gave up three hits in the first frame then coasted the rest of the way. Paul Minner, the Cubs starter, lost his fifth game.

Hogan Assured Bed, To Play In Tourney

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 4 (AP)—The way is clear for Ben Hogan to come to Carnoustie and play the British Open golf tournament. Ben now has a bed.

J. A. Walker, manager of the carnoustie Bruce Hotel, will give Hogan his own room and bed if nothing else can be found for the Texas star.

Just before sending his entry for his first tournament in Britain, Hogan said, "I want to play in the Open. But, there is only one hotel in the vicinity of the course and I understand it is full.

"If I can't get in, I can't play."

New Baseball Loop May Be Organized

FREDERICK, Md., June 4 (AP)—baseball promoters from eight cities in Maryland and Pennsylvania will meet here Sunday to discuss the prospect of organizing a Class C or Class B professional baseball league.

Thomas S. Glass, chairman of the McCurdy Field Commission here, said today "Frederick will be an observant rather than a keynote host" for the meeting.

He said he and Mayor Donald B. Rice would "sit in" on discussions with representatives from Hagerstown, Cambridge, Salisbury and Easton, Md. and Sunbury, Lancaster and Chambersburg, Pa., and see what developed before taking action.

Added Glass: "I would rather let the meeting speak for itself. Frederick has previously had three false alarms on bringing organized baseball back here. Twice we have had major league backing and were voted a franchise into organizing circuits only to have the leagues blow up."

This city's last professional team was in the Old Blue Ridge League nearly a quarter-century ago.

The estate of George Washington totaled 8,000 acres.

Chicago Cubs Get Kiner In Deal Involving Ten Players

Pirates Obtain Ward, Atwell, Addis, Schultz And Hermanski

Garagiola, Metkovich And Pollet Accompany Kiner To Windy City

By WICK TEMPLE

PITTSBURGH, June 4 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs happily grabbed Home Run King Ralph Kiner from the Pittsburgh Pirates today in one of baseball history's most spectacular deals involving 10 players.

Master Trader Branch Rickey gave up Kiner and three others for six players and a bundle of cash. He wouldn't give the money figure but it is reported in the neighborhood of $100,000.

It's one of the few trades in which a big league club has let go its star player while he was still at the peak of his career. Last was Hank Borowy whom the Yankees turned loose in 1945 to the same Cubs.

But Rickey has a long record of trading players he thinks are past their prime. He ushered Dizzy Dean to the Cubs and Dixie Walker to the Pirates in yesteryears while operating other teams.

Kiner, whose salary of $75,000 is second only to Stan Musial of the Cards, recently became the 12th player in history to hit 300 home runs. He has seven this season.

Kiner Not Surprised

"It didn't come as a surprise," the big outfielder said. "I'm sorry to leave Pittsburgh because it was my home."

Manager Phil Caverratta was elated.

"I'm sure glad to get Kiner," he beamed. "This will give us a good 1-2 punch with Hank Sauer"

Going to the Cubs along with Kiner are Catcher Joe Garagiola, Pitcher Howie Pollet and Outfielder-Infielder George Metkovich.

Changing to Pirate uniforms are Pitcher Bob Schultz, Catcher Toby Atwell and Outfielders Gene Hermanski, Preston Ward and Bob Addis.

Rickey Sought Strength

Trade winds had been blowing hot for some time with the 30-year-old Kiner apparently on the block since his holdout fight with Rickey last spring when Ralph finally took a pay cut from $90,000 after an off-season last year.

"We both feel we have strengthened our clubs," said Rickey. "That was the main objective of the deal."

His only disclosure on the maneuvers involved was that it all hinged on Ward, The 25-year-old outfielder, who went to first base in a Pirate uniform, currently is hitting .230. He was in the armed forces last year.

"Wid Mathews, director of player personnel for the Cubs, obviously was pleased but showed the signs of wear and tear from the conference room grind. His only comment:

Hated To Lose Ward

"I'm bleeding at every pore. I did not want to part with Ward."

Kiner has been a fixture in left field for the Pirates since 1946, leading or tying his league in the homer department every year since. Not even Babe Ruth could claim such an accomplishment.

Max Surkont Loses First To Dodgers

Score Over Milwaukee In Series Finale, 10-5

BROOKLYN, June 4 (AP)—Brooklyn salvaged the finale of its three-game series with Milwaukee today, blasting four home runs to whip the Braves, 10-5, and inflict the season's first defeat on Max Surkont.

The victory moved the runner-up Dodgers to within a half game of the league-leading Braves.

Billy Loes received credit for his seventh triumph against two defeats although he needed help from Jim Hughes when the Braves ganged up on him for three runs in the eighth inning. It was Loes' fifth success in five starts at Ebbets Field and his third in succession over the Braves.

Surkont, who set a modern major league mark recently striking out eight straight Cincinnati batters, had not lost since Sept. 19, 1952 when he bowed to the Dodgers in Boston. He had won six games this year.

Surkont, who was batted out in the Dodgers' three-run fourth, yielded only one of the Dodgers' quartet of homers, a fourth inning blast by Bobby Morgan. Ernie Johnson was on the mound when Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo lined four-baggers back-to-back in the seventh. Duke Snider hammered his ninth off Dave Cole, in the eighth.

The Dodgers collected 11 hits, seven of them for extra bases, and 10 bases on balls from the four Milwaukee hurlers.

Larry Doby Wallops Grand Slam Homer

CLEVELAND, June 4 (AP)—Larry Doby, shaking a batting slump, hit a grand slam home run today as the Cleveland Indians whipped the Boston Red Sox, 8-1.

The Indians got another run in the fifth inning besides the four provided by Doby and from there Bob Lemon coasted to register his sixth pitching victory of the season. He held the Red Sox to seven hits. The only Sox run was in the first inning.

The Indians pinned the defeat on Mel Parnell, who left the game in the second inning after allowing three runs. It was his seventh straight loss to Cleveland in a string dating back to the start of the 1950 campaign.

Bill Kennedy relieved Parnell, retired three straight with the bases loaded and then held the Indians in check until the fifth when three walks, a safe bunt by Jim Hegan and Doby's eighth homer netted the five runs.

McDougald's Homer Highlights Rally

CHICAGO, June 4 (AP)—Gil McDougald's two-run homer ignited a four-tally 10th inning which handed the pace-setting New York Yankees a 9-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox for their seventh successive triumph today.

The steam-rolling Yankees, keeping 5½ games ahead of second-place Cleveland, also needed a three-run homer by Mickey Mantle in the third to register their three-game sweep over the Sox.

New York's 17th decision in its last 21 games provided a hard-earned relief victory for Allie Reynolds, who succeeded starter Vic Raschi at the start of the eighth.

Reynolds, last scored upon in relief Aug. 26, 1951, yielded two eighth-inning runs for a 5-5 deadlock and had to hang on for the 10th inning heroics of his mates.

The loser was the fourth Sox pitcher, Gene Bearden, who singled across Chicago's tying run in the eighth as a pinch-hitter. Billy Pierce started for the Sox and trailed 5-0 after five innings.

Chicago Cubs Get Kiner In Deal Involving Ten Players

Pirates Obtain Ward, Atwell, Addis, Schultz And Hermanski

Garagiola, Metkovich And Pollet Accompany Kiner To Windy City

By WICK TEMPLE

PITTSBURGH, June 4 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs happily grabbed Home Run King Ralph Kiner from the Pittsburgh Pirates today in one of baseball history's most spectacular deals involving 10 players.

Master Trader Branch Rickey gave up Kiner and three others for six players and a bundle of cash. He wouldn't give the money figure but it is reported in the neighborhood of $100,000.

It's one of the few trades in which a big league club has let go its star player while he was still at the peak of his career. Last was Hank Borowy whom the Yankees turned loose in 1945 to the same Cubs.

But Rickey has a long record of trading players he thinks are past their prime. He ushered Dizzy Dean to the Cubs and Dixie Walker to the Pirates in yesteryears while operating other teams.

Kiner, whose salary of $75,000 is second only to Stan Musial of the Cards, recently became the 12th player in history to hit 300 home runs. He has seven this season.

Kiner Not Surprised

"It didn't come as a surprise," the big outfielder said. "I'm sorry to leave Pittsburgh because it was my home."

Manager Phil Caverratta was elated.

"I'm sure glad to get Kiner," he beamed. "This will give us a good 1-2 punch with Hank Sauer"

Going to the Cubs along with Kiner are Catcher Joe Garagiola, Pitcher Howie Pollet and Outfielder-Infielder George Metkovich.

Changing to Pirate uniforms are Pitcher Bob Schultz, Catcher Toby Atwell and Outfielders Gene Hermanski, Preston Ward and Bob Addis.

Rickey Sought Strength

Trade winds had been blowing hot for some time with the 30-year-old Kiner apparently on the block since his holdout fight with Rickey last spring when Ralph finally took a pay cut from $90,000 after an off-season last year.

"We both feel we have strengthened our clubs," said Rickey. "That was the main objective of the deal."

His only disclosure on the maneuvers involved was that it all hinged on Ward. The 25-year-old outfielder, who went to first base in a Pirate uniform, currently is hitting .230. He was in the armed forces last year.

"Wid Mathews, director of player personnel for the Cubs, obviously was pleased but showed the signs of wear and tear from the conference room grind. His only comment:

Hated To Lose Ward

"I'm bleeding at every pore. I did not want to part with Ward."

Kiner has been a fixture in left field for the Pirates since 1946, leading or tying his league in the homer department every year since. Not even Babe Ruth could claim such an accomplishment.

Max Surkont Loses First To Dodgers

Score Over Milwaukee In Series Finale, 10-5

BROOKLYN, June 4 (AP)—Brooklyn salvaged the finale of its three-game series with Milwaukee today, blasting four home runs to whip the Braves, 10-5, and inflict the season's first defeat on Max Surkont.

The victory moved the runner-up Dodgers to within a half game of the league-leading Braves.

Billy Loes received credit for his seventh triumph against two defeats although he needed help from Jim Hughes when the Braves ganged up on him for three runs in the eighth inning. It was Loes' fifth success in five starts at Ebbets Field and his third in succession over the Braves.

Surkont, who set a modern major league mark recently striking out eight straight Cincinnati batters, had not lost since Sept. 19, 1952 when he bowed to the Dodgers in Boston. He had won six games this year.

Surkont, who was batted out in the Dodgers' three-run fourth, yielded only one of the Dodgers' quartet of homers, a fourth inning blast by Bobby Morgan. Ernie Johnson was on the mound when Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo lined four-baggers back-to-back in the seventh. Duke Snider hammered his ninth off Dave Cole, in the eighth.

The Dodgers collected 11 hits, seven of them for extra bases, and 10 bases on balls from the four Milwaukee hurlers.

Milwaukee tagged Loes for 10 hits, including a home run by Johnny Logan.

County Loop To Meet

President Earl Nonnenmann has called a meeting of the County Softball League for tonight at 8 o'clock at DeHaven's in Corriganville.

ONE of Britain's best-loved sports figures, Gordon Richards (above), the jockey who holds the world's record for winners—over 4,650—has been knighted by Queen Elizabeth II. The queen also conferred the title on Jack Hobbs, former cricket star. Never before in Britain's long history has a jockey or pro cricket player earned the knightly accolade and the right to add "Sir" to his name. (International)

McDougald's Homer Highlights Rally

CHICAGO, June 4 (AP)—Gil McDougald's two-run homer ignited a four-tally 10th inning which handed the pace-setting New York Yankees a 9-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox for their seventh successive triumph today.

The steam-rolling Yankees, keeping 5½ games ahead of second-place Cleveland, also needed a three-run homer by Mickey Mantle in the third to register their three-game sweep over the Sox.

New York's 17th decision in its last 21 games provided a hard-earned relief victory for Allie Reynolds, who succeeded starter Vic Raschi at the start of the eighth.

Reynolds, last scored upon in relief Aug. 26, 1951, yielded two eighth-inning runs for a 5-5 deadlock and had to hang on for the 10th inning heroics of his mates.

The loser was the fourth Sox pitcher, Gene Bearden, who singled across Chicago's tying run in the eighth as a pinch-hitter. Billy Pierce started for the Sox and trailed 5-0 after five innings.

Curt Simmons, Phils' Hurler, Suffers Injury

One Toe Is Mangled By Lawn Mower Blades

PHILADELPHIA, June 4 (AP) — Curt Simmons, one of the Philadelphia Phillies' major pennant weapons, was lost to the National League team for at least two weeks when he suffered a gashed left foot today while mowing his lawn.

The 24-year-old lefthander, with Robin Roberts the best one-two pitching punch in the major league, was mowing an embankment when he slipped, catching his foot in the rotary blades of the power-driven machine. A doctor said one toe was mangled but there was no apparent fracture.

He was taken to Abington Memorial Hospital by his wife and attendants reported he was resting comfortably.

Simmons has won seven and lost four in the 1953 Nationa League race, his latest outing a defeat at the hands of the St. Louis Cardinals last night.

George Fletcher, secretary of the Phillies, said a physician told him Simmons would be back with the club to work out in two weeks but that it was uncertain when Curt would be ready to take his pitching turn again.

To help bolster the Phillies mound staff in the five-way fight for the National League pennant, Fletcher said he was recalling a righthander, 24-year-old Thornton Kipper, from the Schenectady club of the Class A Eastern League.

Kipper has a 9-1 record this year.

Manager Steve O'Neill said he was "stunned."

"It certainly is a blow," O'Neill added in a shaky voice. "What will we do? Well, we'll pitch the other members of the staff and hope for the best."

Giants Chalk Up Seven In Eighth, Defeat Reds, 11-3

Kluszewski Hits Two Homers For Losers

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP) — A seven-run explosion in the eighth inning brought the New York Giants an 11-3 victory over Cincinnati today before a crowd of 2,672 including Heavyweight Boxing Champion Rocky Marciano.

Catcher Ray Noble climaxed the big rally with a three-run homer.

There were four other home runs in the game, one by Whitey Lockman of the Giants, another by Roy McMillan of the Redlegs and two by Ted Kluszewski of the Redlegs. For Kluszewski, they were his thirteenth and fourteenth of the year.

All Cincinnati homers came off Sal Maglie, who made his first start in two weeks. he left the game with the score tied at 3-all after working six innings and Hoyt Wilhelm, finishing up, received credit for his fourth victory. Wilhelm also helped on the attack, breaking the deadlock with a two-out triple to score Noble from first base in the bottom of the seventh.

Bubba Church started for the Redlegs, gave way to Southpaw Jack Collum in the seventh. Collum was charged with the defeat.

Kennel Club Plans Obedience Trial, Other Activities

Plans for coming attractions were discussed at a meeting of the Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club Tuesday in the Herman Room of the Queen City Brewing Company.

Reports show that the sanctioned match held recently by the club was an outstanding success in the quality of the judging, the dogs entered as well as financially and socially.

Interest in the club now focuses on the obedience class held regularly each Sunday at the Shrine Club picnic grounds under direction of J. C. Sherrill of Hagerstown. The final class will be held in the form of a trial which will be marked with special ceremony and will be open to the public. The date will be announced later.

Walter E. Corley, president, announced that a special movie on obedience training will be shown at the July meeting and that James Johnson of Baltimore will be guest speaker.

The August meeting will take the form of a picnic and a handling demonstration will be a feature. Special topic for the September meeting will be grooming the dog for the show ring with actual demonstration by a qualified handler. All persons interested in dogs are invited to these meetings.

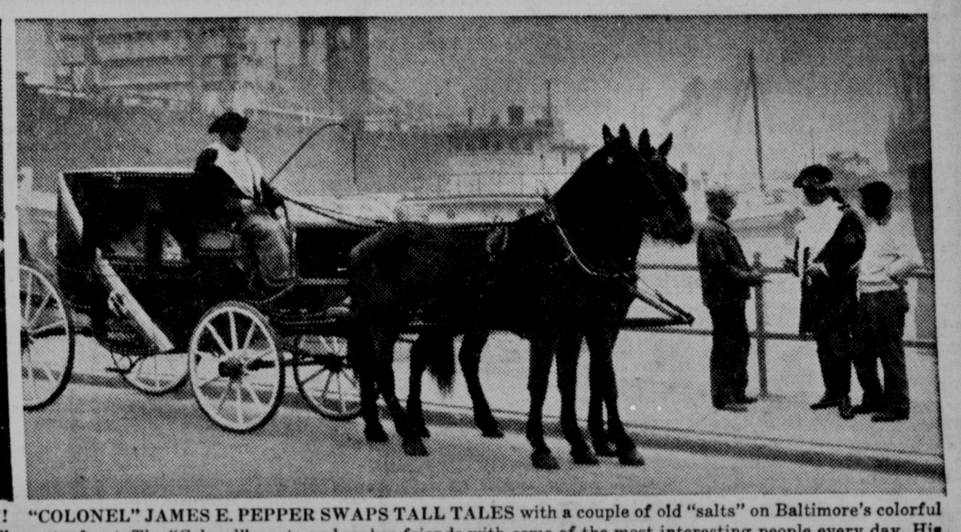
AUTHOR OF "THE BIG SKY" TOASTS THE "COLONEL"! Pulitzer Winner, A. B. Guthrie, Jr., salutes the "Colonel" and the great days when James E. Pepper, America's first Kentucky whiskey was born.



"COLONEL" JAMES E. PEPPER SWAPS TALL TALES with a couple of old "salts" on Baltimore's colorful waterfront. The "Colonel" meets and makes friends with some of the most interesting people every day. His adventure stories date way back to Colonial days, when the first James E. Pepper whiskey was distilled in Kentucky as the original Kentucky whiskey.

FASHION NOTE—1780. Sid Stricker, of the James E. Pepper Company, finds that this Hessian helmet dates all the way back to 1780, the same year that his favorite whiskey, James E. Pepper, was introduced to the market. You'll never taste a finer whiskey in another 173 years.

14 ounce gold rimmed highball glasses with the "Colonel's" crest (set of six) available for $1.00. Write to James E. Pepper & Co., Dept. G, Lexington, Kentucky. No C.O.D.

THE "COLONEL" PAYS HIS RESPECTS to historic Shot Tower. If you see the "Colonel", step right up. He'll be glad to meet you. And you'll be glad to meet James E. Pepper, the smoothest, mildest whiskey you have ever tasted!

CROWDS GREET "COLONEL" JAMES E. PEPPER on busy Baltimore Street. The "Colonel" will continue to appear in busy sections of Baltimore during the coming weeks. Don't be surprised if you see his genuine antique coach and matched thoroughbred Morgan Mares driving down your street. Just step up and say hello. He's bringing you America's smoothest whiskey.

Giants Chalk Up Seven In Eighth, Defeat Reds, 11-3

Kluszewski Hits Two Homers For Losers

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP) — A seven-run explosion in the eighth inning brought the New York Giants an 11-3 victory over Cincinnati today before a crowd of 2,672 including Heavyweight Boxing Champion Rocky Marciano.

Catcher Ray Noble climaxed the big rally with a three-run homer.

There were four other home runs in the game, one by Whitey Lockman of the Giants, another by Roy McMillan of the Redlegs and two by Ted Kluszewski of the Redlegs. For Kluszewski, they were his thirteenth and fourteenth of the year.

All Cincinnati homers came off Sal Maglie, who made his first start in two weeks. he left the game with the score tied at 3-all after working six innings and Hoyt Wilhelm, finishing up, received credit for his fourth victory. Wilhelm also helped on the attack, breaking the deadlock with a two-out triple to score Noble from first base in the bottom of the seventh.

Bubba Church started for the Redlegs, gave way to Southpaw Jack Collum in the seventh. Collum was charged with the defeat.

Kennel Club Plans Obedience Trial, Other Activities

Plans for coming attractions were discussed at a meeting of the Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club Tuesday in the Herman Room of the Queen City Brewing Company.

Reports show that the sanctioned match held recently by the club was an outstanding success in the quality of the judging, the dogs entered as well as financially and socially.

Interest in the club now focuses on the obedience class held regularly each Sunday at the Shrine Club picnic grounds under direction of J. C. Sherrill of Hagerstown. The final class will be held in the form of a trial which will be marked with special ceremony and will be open to the public. The date will be announced later

Walter E. Corley, president, announced that a special movie on obedience training will be shown at the July meeting and that James Johnson of Baltimore will be guest speaker.

The August meeting will take the form of a picnic and a handling demonstration will be a feature. Special topic for the September meeting will be grooming the dog for the show ring with actual demonstration by a qualified handler. All persons interested in dogs are invited to these meetings.

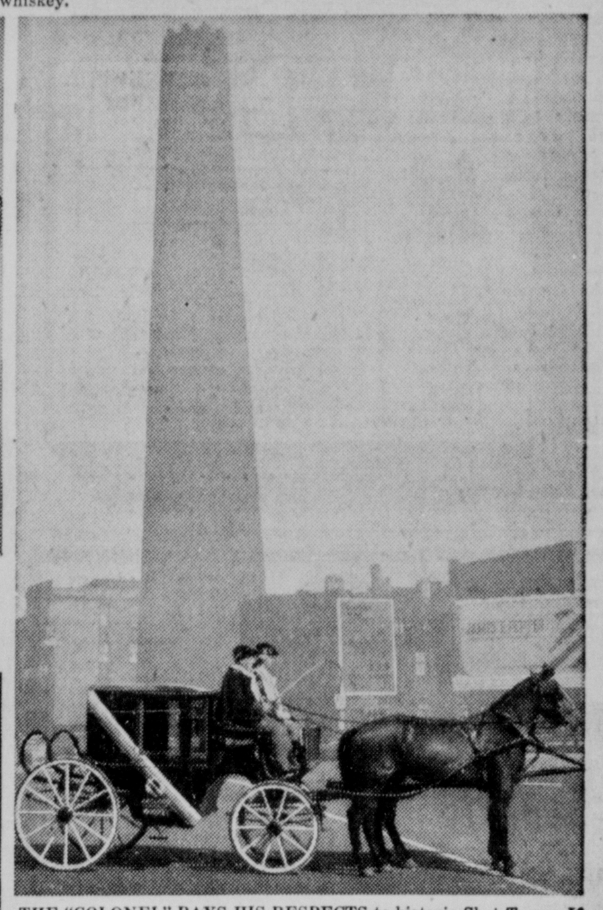
AUTHOR OF "THE BIG SKY" TOASTS THE "COLONEL"! Pulitzer Winner, A. B. Guthrie, Jr., salutes the "Colonel" and the great days when James E. Pepper, America's first Kentucky whiskey was born.

"COLONEL" JAMES E. PEPPER SWAPS TALL TALES with a couple of old "salts" on Baltimore's colorful waterfront. The "Colonel" meets and makes friends with some of the most interesting people every day. His adventure stories date way back to Colonial days, when the first James E. Pepper whiskey was distilled in Kentucky as the original Kentucky whiskey.

FASHION NOTE—1780. Sid Stricker, of the James E. Pepper Company, finds that this Hessian helmet dates all the way back to 1780, the same year that his favorite whiskey, James E. Pepper, was introduced to the market. You'll never taste a finer whiskey in another 173 years.

14 ounce gold rimmed highball glasses with the "Colonel's" crest (set of six) available for $1.00. Write to James E. Pepper & Co., Dept. G, Lexington, Kentucky. No C.O.D.

CROWDS GREET "COLONEL" JAMES E. PEPPER on busy Baltimore Street. The "Colonel" will continue to appear in busy sections of Baltimore during the coming weeks. Don't be surprised if you see his genuine antique coach and matched thoroughbred Morgan Mares driving down your street. Just step up and say hello. He's bringing you America's smoothest whiskey.



THE "COLONEL" PAYS HIS RESPECTS to historic Shot Tower. If you see the "Colonel", step right up. He'll be glad to meet you. And you'll be glad to meet James E. Pepper, the smoothest, mildest whiskey you have ever tasted!

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 4—(INS)—"Lord Vanity," a Literary Guild selection, will undoubtedly join the other Samuel Shallabarger novels, "Captain From Castile," and "Money Man," in popular appeal.

Darryl Zanuck bought the novel before any other company could put in a bid. He's turned it over to Charles Brackett, who will also write the screenplay.

I can tell you a little secret. Robert Wagner is all but set to play "Lord Vanity." The story is about the illegitimate son of an English nobleman, who makes his way in the world first as an actor and later as a soldier and statesman.

All I can say is, if Charlie Brackett does as good a job with this as he did with "Titanic," the line will form to the right at the boxoffice.

A very excited Shelley Winters tells me that unless a picture comes up at Universal-International to interfere, she will open at the Flamingo in Las Vegas August 13.

"I'm going to work with Nat King Cole and his trio, and you know how good they are," said Shelley. "Roger Eden is writing my material, and before I open I am going to try it out at some of the Army camps."

Shelley was almost as much excited over a ticket Vittorio Gassman received speeding home to hear her on Ken Murray's TV show as she was over her nightclub job.

Cochise himself—Jeff Chandler—will not play the role of Cochise again in "Son Of Cochise." After having portrayed the Indian chief in "Broken Arrow" and in another picture for his home studio, U-I, Jeff begged to be excused.

So Rock Hudson reports June 24 for "Son Of Cochise," but he'll have to finish by August 24, because that's the date that "Magnificent Obsession" starts.

Remember I told you that Jane Wyman was all but signed to star in this fine Lloyd C. Douglas story? Well, William Goetz has signed her, with Ross Hunter as producer and Douglas Sirk as director. And I'm betting now that Janie will be up for an Academy Award in this great story. I'm glad she is doing drama again for a change.

One of my very favorite comedy actors on stage and screen is Bert Lahr, and I am glad that Director Mervyn Leroy has signed Bert for one of the top roles in "Rose Marie."

Maybe you remember Bert as the cowardly lion in "The Wizard Of Oz." He was just wonderful. Mervyn also directed that. That's why I say Mervyn signed Bert, but could be Sidney Franklin, the producer. But I rather think Merv did the signing because of his friendship for Lahr.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Tommy Manville is looking for a house in Hollywood, and who do you think he wants to meet? Marilyn Monroe, of course!

Grant Withers tells me his pretty bride, Estelita, goes to Reno this weekend—but not for the usual reason. She opens at the Mapes Hotel with a night club act.

If Marlon Brando is as squirrely as Pete Martin makes him in his interview, I don't think I want to look at Brando on the screen again.

Harry Ackerman's CBS coronation was a great success, and all the English as well as our own top stars were there.

I sat next to Irene Dunne, who kept saying as we watched the young queen on her day of days, "What a great age we live in. To think all of this happened in the morning and we're seeing it here at TV center in the evening."

Among our American stars were Jack Benny and Mary Livingston, Gracie Allen and George Burns, Ann Sothern with Dick Egan—in fact, most of the CBS stars of TV and radio were there.

In the English group I talked with Ronald Colman and Benita Hume. I told Ronnie how good he was on my radio show.

Susan Zanuck was at the Bar of Music with Richard Burton to hear Josephine Premice—this with permission of Mrs. Burton. Josephine is packing them in.

Edgar Bergen cables that he and Charlie McCarthy started "From Little Acorns," in Dublin on Wednesday. Then they go on to film scenes of Charlie kissing the Blarney Stone.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, whose beautiful speaking voice charms the birds off the trees, will do the prologue for Hugo Haas' picture "Bait."

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Give 'Em Air!

Speaking of air power don't forget that Noah made that Ararat beachheading with one dove.

That's why we paid special earabsorbing to President Ike's speech on overhead mobilization.

The old invader believes in sky vitamines. His experiences in Africa and Europe have convinced the continent crasher that our last frontier is cumulus and cirrus.

So don't laugh at a guy with his wars. But you didn't know that Mitch was following the writings of Morgan Robertson.

More than 40 years ago Robertson told it all in the "Last Battleship" printed in Success magazine. It was the U. S. Argyll. It was sunk by a hostile airship motivated by the harnessing of the earth's centrifugal force.

It descended by gravitation control. Gravitation is a phase of magnetism. In magnetism repulsion equals attraction. By reversing its polarity, the airship is repelled from the earth at the speed of a falling body.

The airship wipes out the Argyll and is destroyed itself by a submarine which reverses its polarity. Naturally, it was all theoretical head in the clouds. That's where we are going to win.

We know that you know all about Billy Mitchell who was busted for saying air power would win future including Robertson's description of radar as it exists now.

Fair To Middling

After calibrating what happened to our policy makers in the Muddled East we pick a suggestion out of the blindfolded hat.

Keep our goodwill plenipotentiaries at home. Let the Mildewed East order by catalogue number.

The Meddled East is in a tougher spot than the rain maker who left town under a cloud. The theme song of the Suez Canal is not "Cool Waters."

Naguib of the Nile says the Arabs are tired of folding their tents. It's time for the English to collapse their pre-fabs.

He threatens to toss the English canaleers out on their reinforced seats. That will take more doing than running the Saraha through an hour glass.

Our good-Williams in the Near East are as definitely postponed as a ballet dancer with an ingrown toe-nail.

Although robins once were forest birds, many of them now build their nests in cities.

"I'm going to work with Nat King Cole and his trio, and you know how good they are," said Shelley. "Roger Eden is writing my material, and before I open I am going to try it out at some of the Army camps."

Shelley was almost as much excited over a ticket Vittorio Gassman received speeding home to hear her on Ken Murray's TV show as she was over her nightclub job.

Cochise himself—Jeff Chandler—will not play the role of Cochise again in "Son Of Cochise." After having portrayed the Indian chief in "Broken Arrow" and in another picture for his home studio, U-I, Jeff begged to be excused.

So Rock Hudson reports June 24 for "Son Of Cochise," but he'll have to finish by August 24, because that's the date that "Magnificent Obsession" starts.

Remember I told you that Jane Wyman was all but signed to star in this fine Lloyd C. Douglas story? Well, William Goetz has signed her, with Ross Hunter as producer and Douglas Sirk as director. And I'm betting now that Janie will be up for an Academy Award in this great story. I'm glad she is doing drama again for a change.

One of my very favorite comedy actors on stage and screen is Bert Lahr, and I am glad that Director Mervyn Leroy has signed Bert for one of the top roles in "Rose Marie."

Maybe you remember Bert as the cowardly lion in "The Wizard Of Oz." He was just wonderful. Mervyn also directed that. That's why I say Mervyn signed Bert, but could be Sidney Franklin, the producer. But I rather think Merv did the signing because of his friendship for Lahr.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Tommy Manville is looking for a house in Hollywood, and who do you think he wants to meet? Marilyn Monroe, of course!

Grant Withers tells me his pretty bride, Estelita, goes to Reno this weekend—but not for the usual reason. She opens at the Mapes Hotel with a night club act.

If Marlon Brando is as squirrely as Pete Martin makes him in his interview, I don't think I want to look at Brando on the screen again.

Harry Ackerman's CBS coronation was a great success, and all the English as well as our own top stars were there.

I sat next to Irene Dunne, who kept saying as we watched the young queen on her day of days, "What a great age we live in. To think all of this happened in the morning and we're seeing it here at TV center in the evening."

Among our American stars were Jack Benny and Mary Livingston, Gracie Allen and George Burns, Ann Sothern with Dick Egan—in fact, most of the CBS stars of TV and radio were there.

In the English group I talked with Ronald Colman and Benita Hume. I told Ronnie how good he was on my radio show.

Susan Zanuck was at the Bar of Music with Richard Burton to hear Josephine Premice—this with permission of Mrs. Burton. Josephine is packing them in.

Edgar Bergen cables that he and Charlie McCarthy started "From Little Acorns," in Dublin on Wednesday. Then they go on to film scenes of Charlie kissing the Blarney Stone.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, whose beautiful speaking voice charms the birds off the trees, will do the prologue for Hugo Haas' picture "Bait."

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Give 'Em Air!

Speaking of air power don't forget that Noah made that Ararat beachheading with one dove.

That's why we paid special earabsorbing to President Ike's speech on overhead mobilization.

The old invader believes in sky vitamines. His experiences in Africa and Europe have convinced the continent crasher that our last frontier is cumulus and cirrus.

So don't laugh at a guy with his wars. But you didn't know that Mitch was following the writings of Morgan Robertson.

More than 40 years ago Robertson told it all in the "Last Battleship" printed in Success magazine. It was the U. S. Argyll. It was sunk by a hostile airship motivated by the harnessing of the earth's centrifugal force.

It descended by gravitation control. Gravitation is a phase of magnetism. In magnetism repulsion equals attraction. By reversing its polarity, the airship is repelled from the earth at the speed of a falling body.

The airship wipes out the Argyll and is destroyed itself by a submarine which reverses its polarity. Naturally, it was all theoretical head in the clouds. That's where we are going to win.

We know that you know all about Billy Mitchell who was busted for saying air power would win future including Robertson's description of radar as it exists now.

Fair To Middling

After calibrating what happened to our policy makers in the Muddled East we pick a suggestion out of the blindfolded hat.

Keep our goodwill plenipotentiaries at home. Let the Mildewed East order by catalogue number.

The Meddled East is in a tougher spot than the rain maker who left town under a cloud. The theme song of the Suez Canal is not "Cool Waters."

Naguib of the Nile says the Arabs are tired of folding their tents. It's time for the English to collapse their pre-fabs.

He threatens to toss the English canaleers out on their reinforced seats. That will take more doing than running the Saraha through an hour glass.

Our good-Williams in the Near East are as definitely postponed as a ballet dancer with an ingrown toe-nail.

Although robins once were forest birds, many of them now build their nests in cities.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

No Color By Christmas

Now that we have all just become accustomed to Lucille Ball in monochrome we are going to have to get used to her in full color—which shouldn't be too difficult. (She'll have to do something about that hair. It isn't red; it's orange. That's all right for Technicolor but it isn't all right for color TV, especially for my Great Aunt Agatha who harbors strong opinions that hair should not be orange, purple or green, that white, black, brown and yellow are enough of the spectrum for the average noggin. Be that as it may . . .)

John Crosby

The color controversy has subsided into no controversy at all. The RCA compatible color system—you can get it in monochrome on your present set—will be the system as the Federal Communications Commission should have known all along. The Columbia Broadcasting System, which still holds the FCC's official approval for its sequential system, has long since lost interest in developing it. (It is too busy making potsful of money in black and white broadcasting).

Still, the battle cry of Rep. Wolverton, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of "color TV by Christmas," is very misleading and is causing a lot of concern to set manufacturers who plan to sell black and white sets for a long time to come. There won't be any color television by Ghristmas and Rep. Wolverton doesn't actually mean there will be. What he really means, I assume, is that the FCC may by then have approved the RCA system so that fanufacturers can go ahead and make sets and transmitters. Actually, there is grave doubt that the FCC will do that in so short a time.

There is strong sentiment in Congress to get on with color television right now, that public should not be deprived of it any longer. This impatience, I feel strongly, is not shared by the public. The principal public reaction is one of uncertainty; non-set-owners, who were on the verge of buying a black-and-white set, are hesitating a little longer under the mistaken notion that color television is right around the corner. It isn't.

RCA feels that its system is ready for submission to the FCC right now. July 1 is the date most often mentioned. Not everyone agrees. The National TV System Committee, a committee set up by the whole manufacturing industry, feels there is no sense in rushing things. In one of the most sensible speeches on the subject, Dr. W. R. G. Baker, chairman of the committee, argues that nothing but the highest possible standards are good enough for the American people. A few months delay are unimportant next to that goal. I think he's right.

His committee will finish its work by September and the whole matter can be dropped into the lap of the FCC in November. After that, there's still a long way to go. Its original color decision favoring the CBS system took a year of hearings. This time the hearings will not take that long but, in any case, FCC hearings are an intricate and cautious procedure which takes months. Even RCA admits that color television is a year away from the actual moment that the FCC approves it.

At the earliest, Dr. Baker predicts there will be a few color receivers—very few—in the fall lines of set manufacturers in 1954. Chances are you'll be able to see some exhibitions of color at the dealer then; you'll be lucky indeed if you can buy a set. There should be some color programs on the air almost everywhere where there is television by then.

The real growth of color, Baker predicts, will not come until 1955—and even then black and white sets will outsell color receivers by four to one. Now as to cost; color sets will be expensive. There have been optimistic predictions that they would cost no more than 25 per cent more than present sets. Most industry people say that figure is way too low, that color receivers will cost two to three times as much as black and white sets.

Good black and white sets retail now between $250 and $450. Comparable color sets may come to between $750 and $900. Lots of people, Baker feels, once confronted with that price difference will settle for black and white—even if they could buy color sets today.

Approximately, by July 1 we expect to have a voice transmitter that will be used on any of our present channels.

Then we can make emergency announcements at anytime. We also plan on using local commercial announcements and as stated before, they will help bring monthly rental costs down. Later, we plan on having a slide projector and eventually complete moving picture equipment. Our facilities will be used in the Civil Defense Program. Watch for later announcements.

No Color By Christmas

Now that we have all just become accustomed to Lucille Ball in monochrome we are going to have to get used to her in full color—which shouldn't be too difficult. (She'll have to do something about that hair. It isn't red; it's orange. That's all right for Technicolor but it isn't all right for color TV, especially for my Great Aunt Agatha who harbors strong opinions that hair should not be orange, purple or green, that white, black, brown and yellow are enough of the spectrum for the average noggin. Be that as it may . . .)

John Crosby

The color controversy has subsided into no controversy at all. The RCA compatible color system—you can get it in monochrome on your present set—will be the system as the Federal Communications Commission should have known all along. The Columbia Broadcasting System, which still holds the FCC's official approval for its sequential system, has long since lost interest in developing it. (It is too busy making potsful of money in black and white broadcasting).

Still, the battle cry of Rep. Wolverton, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of "color TV by Christmas," is very misleading and is causing a lot of concern to set manufacturers who plan to sell black and white sets for a long time to come. There won't be any color television by Christmas and Rep. Wolverton doesn't actually mean there will be. What he really means, I assume, is that the FCC may by then have approved the RCA system so that fanufacturers can go ahead and make sets and transmitters. Actually, there is grave doubt that the FCC will do that in so short a time.

There is strong sentiment in Congress to get on with color television right now, that public should not be deprived of it any longer. This impatience, I feel strongly, is not shared by the public. The principal public reaction is one of uncertainty; non-set-owners, who were on the verge of buying a black-and-white set, are hesitating a little longer under the mistaken notion that color television is right around the corner. It isn't.

RCA feels that its system is ready for submission to the FCC right now. July 1 is the date most often mentioned. Not everyone agrees. The National TV System Committee, a committee set up by the whole manufacturing industry, feels there is no sense in rushing things. In one of the most sensible speeches on the subject, Dr. W. R. G. Baker, chairman of the committee, argues that nothing but the highest possible standards are good enough for the American people. A few months delay are unimportant next to that goal. I think he's right.

His committee will finish its work by September and the whole matter can be dropped into the lap of the FCC in November. After that, there's still a long way to go. Its original color decision favoring the CBS system took a year of hearings. This time the hearings will not take that long but, in any case, FCC hearings are an intricate and cautious procedure which takes months. Even RCA admits that color television is a year away from the actual moment that the FCC approves it.

At the earliest, Dr. Baker predicts there will be a few color receivers—very few—in the fall lines of set manufacturers in 1954. Chances are you'll be able to see some exhibitions of color at the dealer then; you'll be lucky indeed if you can buy a set. There should be some color programs on the air almost everywhere where there is television by then.

The real growth of color, Baker predicts, will not come until 1955—and even then black and white sets will outsell color receivers by four to one. Now as to cost; color sets will be expensive. There have been optimistic predictions that they would cost no more than 25 per cent more than present sets. Most industry people say that figure is way too low, that color receivers will cost two to three times as much as black and white sets.

Good black and white sets retail now between $250 and $450. Comparable color sets may come to between $750 and $900. Lots of people, Baker feels, once confronted with that price difference will settle for black and white—even if they could buy color sets today.

Approximately, by July 1 we expect to have a voice transmitter that will be used on any of our present channels.

Then we can make emergency announcements at anytime. We also plan on using local commercial announcements and as stated before, they will help bring monthly rental costs down. Later, we plan on having a slide projector and eventually complete moving picture equipment. Our facilities will be used in the Civil Defense Program. Watch for later announcements.

Kent Avenue Residents Ask Paving Work

Residents of Kent Avenue met last night in City Hall and voted to have the city proceed with plans for paving the street.

The George F. Hazelwood Company this week submitted a low bid of $21,925.75 for paving the street, between Brookfield and Avondale Avenues.

C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, explained the details of the plans and said the Hazelwood bid, for a six inch slab of concrete, 30 feet wide, with rolled curbs, is about $8,000 cheaper than if the street were paved with blacktop and with conventional curb.

The cost to property owners will be $7.855 a front foot, or about $550 for the average 70 foot lot on that street.

After the bids and plans were explained by Nuzum, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, briefed the some 18 property owners present on the financing of the street project.

With Randall Rowley acting as chairman, the citizens took a secret vote which resulted in a 12-2 decision to proceed with the work.

All Trains Routed Over Western Md. To Cumberland

Twenty-six coal cars on an eastbound Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train derailed yesterday afternoon between Cumberland and Hancock, blocking all three tracks and delaying passenger trains as much as 2½ hours.

The railroad said no one was injured in the derailment, which occurred at 12:40 p.m. (EST) two miles east of Orleans Road. The scene of the wreck is 13 miles west of Hancock and 42 miles east of Cumberland.

Railroad spokesmen said Train No. 949 was heading east with 110 loaded coal hoppers when something caused the 77th car to leave the rails.

Another 25 cars piled up across the main line, leaving the caboose and the last six cars on the rails.

The careening hoppers chewed up a sizable section of all three tracks, and railroad officials did not expect the damage to be repaired until late today.

All B&O trains were immediately routed over the Western Maryland Railway's tracks between North Branch, near Cumberland, and Cherry Run (Miller on the B&O), near Hagerstown, a 54-mile stretch of line.

Wrecking crews were laboring at the scene late last night in an effort to get the railroad's passenger trains back on schedule. Many were running more than two hours late. The Capitol Limited, a crack through train, was due in Cumberland at 7:30 p.m. (EST), but didn't arrive until about 9:50.

Passenger trains were expected to be running on time by late today.

The railroad said all crewmen were in their proper places when the wreck occurred, and that no one was injured. The engine and caboose stayed on the tracks. Engineer on the train was C. F. Luman, and J. Bragg of Brunswick was conductor.

Railroad spokesmen said the cause of the derailment was unknown late last night.

Gamma Globulin Supply Here Is Strictly Limited

Gamma globulin, which has been widely publicized as a temporary polio preventive, will be available here only to children under 18 and to pregnant women living in the same household with polio victims, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, announced yesterday.

Dr. Frantz said the County Health Department has only a routine supply on hand, but that emergency supplies would be immediately available.

In the event of a recognized epidemic, said Dr. Frantz, arrangements could be made for mass inoculations in the high-risk age groups. That would mean that a special allocation of gamma globulin would be requested from the Office of Defense Mobilization, which is in charge of distribution to state and territorial health officers.

The State Health Department has set up strict allocation rules because the effectiveness of gamma globulin is limited and the supply is extremely short.

Gamma globulin, a blood derivative, under certain conditions protects against paralysis from polio for a few weeks. It has not yet been established whether gamma globulin interferes with the development of active immunity to the disease.

It has been estimated that for every 1,000 injections of gamma globulin given under the best conditions, approximately one case of paralytic polio may be prevented and that case might have fallen into the two-thirds of polio cases which do not produce permanent handicapping paralysis.

The limited supply means that only about a million doses may be given between now and September in the more polio-susceptible age groups, which include some 46 million American children and adolescents.

Supplies of the rare derivative will be handled by local health departments. Licensed physicians may obtain gamma globulin after furnishing ages and weights of persons exposed and clinical verifications of diagnosis of the original polio case.

In non-epidemic areas, gamma globulin will be available only to "household contacts" of clinically diagnosed cases, if the contacts are less than 18 years old or are pregnant women. A "household contact," said Dr. Frantz, is any person who lives in the same dwelling unit and is known to have been in close enough association with the polio patient as to have been exposed.

Dr. Frantz also said the public should not try to buy gamma globulin, as dosages from unstandardized commercial lots might not be effective.

Kent Avenue Residents Ask Paving Work

Residents of Kent Avenue met last night in City Hall and voted to have the city proceed with plans for paving the street.

The George F. Hazelwood Company this week submitted a low bid of $21,925.75 for paving the street, between Brookfield and Avondale Avenues.

C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, explained the details of the plans and said the Hazelwood bid, for a six inch slab of concrete, 30 feet wide, with rolled curbs, is about $8,000 cheaper than if the street were paved with blacktop and with conventional curb.

The cost to property owners will be $7.855 a front foot, or about $550 for the average 70 foot lot on that street.

After the bids and plans were explained by Nuzum, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, briefed the some 18 property owners present on the financing of the street project.

With Randall Rowley acting as chairman, the citizens took a secret vote which resulted in a 12-2 decision to proceed with the work.

Nuzum said he will recommend Monday that the Hazelwood bid be accepted and that the project get underway as soon as possible.

All Trains Routed Over Western Md. To Cumberland

Twenty-six coal cars on an eastbound Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train derailed yesterday afternoon between Cumberland and Hancock, blocking all three tracks and delaying passenger trains as much as 2½ hours.

The railroad said no one was injured in the derailment, which occurred at 12:40 p.m. (EST) two miles east of Orleans Road. The scene of the wreck is 13 miles west of Hancock and 42 miles east of Cumberland.

Railroad spokesmen said Train No. 949 was heading east with 110 loaded coal hoppers when something caused the 77th car to leave the rails.

Another 25 cars piled up across the main line, leaving the caboose and the last six cars on the rails.

The careening hoppers chewed up a sizable section of all three tracks, and railroad officials did not expect the damage to be repaired until late today.

All B&O trains were immediately routed over the Western Maryland Railway's tracks between North Branch, near Cumberland, and Cherry Run (Miller on the B&O), near Hagerstown, a 54-mile stretch of line.

Wrecking crews were laboring at the scene late last night in an effort to get the railroad's passenger trains back on schedule. Many were running more than two hours late. The Capitol Limited, a crack through train, was due in Cumberland at 7:30 p.m. (EST), but didn't arrive until about 9:50.

Passenger trains were expected to be running on time by late today.

The railroad said all crewmen were in their proper places when the wreck occurred, and that no one was injured. The engine and caboose stayed on the tracks. Engineer on the train was C. F. Luman, and J. Bragg of Brunswick was conductor.

Railroad spokesmen said the cause of the derailment was unknown late last night.

Gamma Globulin Supply Here Is Strictly Limited

Gamma globulin, which has been widely publicized as a temporary polio preventive, will be available here only to children under 18 and to pregnant women living in the same household with polio victims, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, announced yesterday.

Dr. Frantz said the County Health Department has only a routine supply on hand, but that emergency supplies would be immediately available.

In the event of a recognized epidemic, said Dr. Frantz, arrangements could be made for mass inoculations in the high-risk age groups. That would mean that a special allocation of gamma globulin would be requested from the Office of Defense Mobilization, which is in charge of distribution to state and territorial health officers.

The State Health Department has set up strict allocation rules because the effectiveness of gamma globulin is limited and the supply is extremely short.

Gamma globulin, a blood derivative, under certain conditions protects against paralysis from polio for a few weeks. It has not yet been established whether gamma globulin interferes with the development of active immunity to the disease.

It has been estimated that for every 1,000 injections of gamma globulin given under the best conditions, approximately one case of paralytic polio may be prevented and that case might have fallen into the two-thirds of polio cases which do not produce permanent handicapping paralysis.

The limited supply means that only about a million doses may be given between now and September in the more polio-susceptible age groups, which include some 46 million American children and adolescents.

Supplies of the rare derivative will be handled by local health departments. Licensed physicians may obtain gamma globulin after furnishing ages and weights of persons exposed and clinical verifications of diagnosis of the original polio case.

In non-epidemic areas, gamma globulin will be available only to "household contacts" of clinically diagnosed cases, if the contacts are less than 18 years old or are pregnant women. A "household contact," said Dr. Frantz, is any person who lives in the same dwelling unit and is known to have been in close enough association with the polio patient as to have been exposed.

Dr. Frantz also said the public should not try to buy gamma globulin, as dosages from unstandardized commercial lots might not be effective.

Methodist Youth To Attend Meet
